

"NOT GUILTY" FOR MAN WHO SLEW HIS WIFE'S INAMORATA

Jury at Vincennes Frees Man Who Shot Rival After His Wife's Confession

(Special from United Press.)
 Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 9.—Menlo E. Moore, today, was acquitted of the murder of Charles E. Gibson, the millionaire oil operator. The jury reached a verdict shortly after midnight, last night, and came into court at 9 o'clock this morning, its finding having been sealed over night by order of Judge Cobb. The verdict was generally expected.

Moore shot Gibson at the Union Depot here, on Oct. 3, last, after Mrs. Moore had confessed to her husband that she had been intimate with the millionaire.

The acquittal of Moore was a direct victory for the "unwritten law" for that was the only plea. Moore entered his plea. Mrs. Moore herself took the stand and it was the sordid story she sobbed out, more than anything else, that brought her husband's acquittal. Mrs. Moore swore that Gibson had long bothered her with his attentions and that she had shunned. Finally, she said, Gibson came to her and told her her husband was false that he had an engagement that day with a woman in a house out in the country. When she saw with the woman agreed to accompany Gibson to the house to verify the story he told. They entered the house and drove several miles. There Gibson induced her to enter a barn, where she swore he assaulted her.

After that Mrs. Moore admitted that she had been intimate for a long time with Gibson, always under his threat to reveal her intimacy to her husband if she refused. She admitted that often she had taken trips to Cincinnati and Louisville with Gibson while her husband was away on business trips.

A note, unsigned, was finally sent to her husband, urging him to watch his wife more carefully. Moore charged his wife with her unfaithfulness and she confessed to him and told him the whole story she later told the jury. She swore that her husband acted like a madman, bereft of all reason. He was always armed because he carried large sums of money with him on his business trips. The day after she confessed to her husband he met Gibson in the railroad depot and shot him to death.

Bishop Nilan Removes Stamford Polish Priest

(Special from United Press.)
 Stamford, Dec. 9.—Representative Joseph F. Maniszewski, of Terryville, has been sent here as temporary administrator of the affairs of the Holy Name Church, Polish, succeeding Rev. Ignatius Kuzynski, who left town, last night, after formal notification that he had been relieved of his charge by Bishop Nilan. Local Poles who had business transactions through Father Kuzynski were disturbed, today, by the reason for their alarm is not apparent.

The priest was known here as a shrewd business man. He gave advice in business matters to members of his congregation and acted for them in the purchase and sale of real estate and in various other business capacities. He understood English perfectly and his book being familiar with that language, or with the customs of the country. While it is known that the attention of Bishop Nilan was attracted to the affairs of the parish, and that he investigated them, those who are in a position to state what the situation is, decline to throw any light upon the matter.

(Special from United Press.)

Yeandle's lawyer filed notice of appeal. When Edward T. Rosenheimer, a millionaire, was placed on trial for the murder of Grace Gough, whom he killed with his automobile, Yeandle was selected as a juror. He remarked that he would "hang" the jury for $500, and was convicted on this charge.

PRETTY GIRL COMPANION OF DYING THIEF

Man and Woman of Mystery Captured While Housebreaking—Man Shot and Fatally Hurt

(Special from United Press.)
 Passaic, N. J., Dec. 9.—Lying on his death-bed in St. Mary's hospital, today, is a man of mystery, whose past life the police would like to fathom. Held as a prisoner in the Passaic jail is a young woman of beauty, refinement and education, the "pal" of the man in what the police believe was a series of daring burglaries.

The man was fatally shot, early today, as he broke in on the home of Theodore Lapley. With three bullets in his body he fell from the porch of the Lapley home into the arms of the woman who had been serving as a lookout.

The pair fled, the woman supporting the man. Detectives made a hurried search and came upon them in a drug store, where they were telephoning for an automobile to take them to New York. The man was sent to the hospital and the woman to jail. The former was told he was dying and admitted that he was the burglar. He is a handsome chap, splendidly dressed and with an air of culture.

He says his name is James Hanley, of Philadelphia. In the jail the woman said she was Jeanette Hanley, his wife.

Later in the day the woman told the story of her life. "My real name," she said, "is Irene Murray, and my home is in St. Johns, New Brunswick. My people are well to do and gave me everything but two years ago the little town became too slow for me. I had visited Boston several times and became infatuated with city life. I went to Boston, got a position and last summer I met Hanley. He told me he was a traveling salesman. I fell in love with him and he told me that his wife was getting a divorce, promising to marry me as soon as he was free. We visited a number of places in New England and finally reached Philadelphia. While we were there he told me he had lost his position.

"He came to Jersey City last Monday and last night went out for a trolley ride and wound up here. "Hanley told me to wait at a certain spot as he had some business to attend to. He went away and in 10 minutes was back, saying three men had held him up and shot him. I never had any idea he had done any wrong."

"There are some bequests made to members of her household. The Christian Science Church is the residuary legatee and the bulk of her fortune goes to the Christian Science church for Christian Science usages."

REPORT OF POLICE EXONERATES HALL

Boy's Story Subjected Dog Warden's Conduct to Severe Scrutiny

Dog Warden George Hall, whose activities have been under the scrutiny of the police department for several days, was exonerated today in a report made by the Detective Bureau to Prosecuting Attorney Delaney.

The trouble arose from a story told by Leroy Frye, a lad of 15, living in Jane street and employed by Edward Sherman, a dairy farmer of Long Hill. The lad claimed to have bought a dog from the dog warden who he had seized it as a stray animal.

He sold the dog back to the original owner, who paid the lad $1, the price he claimed to have paid Hall. Wilson also gave the boy a half dollar, in addition so pleased was the owner at finding his lost dog.

When the police investigated they learned that young Frye himself picked up the animal, and sold it to get 61 cents he owed Sherman. Not realizing the damage that might be done Hall he told the story involving the dog warden, the falsity of which he penitently admitted last night.

Again I say:

 "I stand back of this statement with one of Bridgeport's biggest stores of Good Clothing for men, women and child, from which you are at liberty to select at the BARGAIN PRICES named below and pay me later."

NO ADVERTISEMENT ever failed to "pay" a store if it "paid" the man who read and answered it. No advertisement ever paid the advertiser that did not pay the reader and "answerer." No matter how good an advertising medium the newspaper is; no matter how plausible the argument of the ad.—unless it carried to the reader and answerer the opportunity to save some money, or to obtain exclusive goods—or both of these things—or other and real remuneration for time and attention—then the ad. was a waste of money.
