Ladies of Charity Plan Sacred Concert During Next Month

Preliminary arrangements for a sacred concert during February were made by the Ladies of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul at a largely attended meeting at St. Vincent's hospital yesterday. It is planned to hold the concert Sunday evening, February 18. Committees were appointed at the meeting, yesterday, to secure talent and also to make arrangements for a suitable place for the concert.

BODINE IS THE "CLEAN UP KID"

Superintendent of Streets Bodine had 18 double teams and 40 men clearing the central streets of snow, this forenoon. He said by 8 o'clock tonight he expects to have the business section clean as a whistle. He is anxious to have the stuff cleared away before the impending cold wave breaks over the city. The superintendent is anxious that merchants about the center of the city should see that their walks are cleaned early in the day. On Saturday he was forced to have his men make three separate clean-ups, owing to the delay in merchants clearing their walks.

The Mill End Sale wins by merit mainly.

Merit is the main factor in Mill End; a success that grows ever greater and greater.

Not a piece of merchandise is admitted to the Mill End sale, unless it is possessed of true merit. No matter what price it might be sold at, 't would not be worthy of place in the sale unless it was truly worthy.

Alongside this merit, we place variety, and quantity, and smallness of price as the Mill End winners. Each of them does a large share. But without merit, none of them would win; all of them together could not win without merit.

There is absolute confidence back of every statement the store makes about the Mill End merchandise. We know that merchandise; know its merit. And so we are not afraid to talk plainly about it.

Every article in the Mill End sale bears a Mill End price. That Mill End price is lower, always, than the usual price. Some times it is very very much lower. Always, that price represents a saving.

Every article is sold with a distinct promise by the store that it will be found worthy; that its price is less than the regular price. Such is the confidence back of this Mill End sale that we offer to refund the money that was paid for any article, if that is not entirely satisfactory when inspected at home. Only one condition is attached to this offer and that is the condition that the return must be made promptly and the article be in the same condition as when it left the store.

Do you wonder the Mill End sale is a success; a bigger success than ever?

THE HOWLAND DRY GOODS CO.

Remonstrances To Be Heard Jan. 23

Commissioners Will Consider O'Donnell and McPadden Cases, But Bunnell St. Matter Postponed.

The trouble over granting liquor licenses at Williston and Bunnell streets has been settled to some extent by the withdrawal of remonstrances against Mrs. Anna Eggers Umstatter and Mrs. John Brown. The International Silver Co. will continue its remonstrance against Charles Dunscheit. The commissioners postponed the hearing on the remonstrance at the request of State's Attorney Judson and will not assign a date until Attorney Judson returns from his vacation trip. On January 23 the commissioners will hear remonstrances against Maurice O'Donnell and Michael McPadden. O'Donnell wants to transfer a license from 273 Water street to 298 Main street. The remonstrants claim the locality is unsuitable because there are already enough saloons there. Michael Mihaly is the remonstrant against McPadden, whose place is at 1156, Pembroke street. He says McPadden is not the bona fide owner of the business but that he owns only the license. Mihaly claims to own the business.

MERCHANT NABBED FOR PLANNING TO BURN UP BOSTON

(Special from United Press.) Boston, Jan. 15.—A dastardly attempt at arson, which had it been successful, might have resulted in a perfect holocaust and many deaths, was discovered, today, in the heart of a district including inflammable tenement houses and frame stores. Stopping to peer into the window of Nikola Detano's shoe store, 114 E. North street, to see why a candle was burning on the floor, Reserve Officer William Haverty saw several ropes of twisted linen strewn criss-cross across the rear of the room and running down through a heat-feed pipe. Calling for help, he broke in the door and found all the cloth ropes saturated with kerosene oil, with two inch candles standing on them at intervals of a yard or more. The oil-soaked rags were cunningly pushed through the heater to the basement, the heat pipe having been removed for the purpose. In the cellar, excelsior, oilsoaked and in piles with rags, littered the floor. More lighted candles were found almost burned down to the rags and excelsior. Detano was arrested. He admitted, having $4,000 insurance on his store. City officials said his stock was not worth $300.

SHERIFF CLOSES "LITTLE HUNGARY"

Proprietor of Main Street Restaurant Will File Petition in Bankruptcy

"Little Hungary" is no more. The restaurant, at 1208 Main street which was expected to prove an innovation to Bridgeport epicures, did not come up to expectations. Deputy Sheriff Joseph Wieler has closed up the place by attaching the goods in favor of a New York firm which furnished merchandise for the restaurant. Isadora Fischgrund is the proprietor of "Little Hungary."

NO WORD FROM RELATIVES OF DEAD SALESMAN

Funeral Director Henry E. Bishop had received no word up to a late hour this afternoon, from Buffalo, N. Y., relative to the disposition of the remains of Charles F. Pendell, a traveling salesman who died suddenly at the Hotel Stratfield yesterday.

TOO COLD FOR CHURCH AT SATAN'S KINGDOM

Winsted, Jan. 15.—There was no church in Satan's Kingdom yesterday as it was too chilly. The thermometer was 22 below and the meeting house was too cold. All weather records for the past 40 years were broken in this section of the country yesterday morning, the temperature ranging from 30 to 38 below zero.

Packers Operate As Syndicate Is Government Claim

(Special from United Press.) Chicago, Jan. 15.—The government today in the trial of the millionaire packers, set out to prove conspiracy by showing that every change in the system was made simultaneously by all and that at no period was this "test cost" department operated in the interest of any individual packer. To show this, the government is introducing, one by one, the books of all the defendants, to show the striking similarity which District Attorney Wilkerson declares will bear out his contention of conspiracy. "We will show by books," said Wilkerson, "that all these alleged independent concerns in reality were operating as a syndicate."

Mr. Tomlinson Sang

Wm. Tomlinson's singing was greatly appreciated at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon. He sang with his usual ability three well chosen songs and made a very fitting and enjoyable opening for the discussion which followed. The attendance was quite larger than usual and a most interesting discussion hung on the question of man's temptations.

Had Fun With the Foreigners. A passage in E. S. Bates' "Touring In 1000" makes the "bleeding" which Americans in Europe must expect seem a great improvement over other times.

"The two worst towns for brutality toward foreigners were by general consent London and Toulouse. In the former, according to Giordano Bruno, the shop people and artisans on seeing a stranger make faces, grin, laugh, hoot, call him dog, traitor, foreigner, the last name being the roughest they can think of, qualifying him for any other insult. Should he take the offensive or put his hand to his weapon an army of ruffians seems to spring out of the ground, flourishing a forest of sticks, poles, halberds and pikes. In a more playful humor, one will pretend to run away behind a booth and come out charging on the stranger like an angry bull. If an arm gets broken, as happened to one Italian, the bystanders shout with laughter, and the magistrate sees nothing reprehensible in the affair."

Behind the Scenes.

"The people who had the coveted 'privilege of the stage' in the days of our parents used to tell about the chorus women killing time between 'calls' with knitting and sewing. They would open their eyes wide if they could get a peep behind the scenes in one of the great vaudeville houses of London today," says a letter from that city, "where the managers have provided for the spare time of the entertainers. There are ten rooms for the women, where comfortable furniture and rugs take the places of the rickety chairs and bare floors of long ago. For the men there are club rooms, where between 'turns' one may see 'artists' in all the various branches of the profession at billiards, pool, bridge or chess. A trained nurse and a physician are always within call, and the management provides a school, where the stage children are educated while mamma dances and sings and papa does his share toward the entertainment."—New York Tribune.

The Fifteenth Century Gambler.

In the time of King Henry IV, of England the "smart set" managed to play bridge or its equivalent without shocking the susceptibilities of those who think it wrong to play for money. The fifteenth century gambler, according to one historian, "played at cards for counters, nails and points in every house more for pastime than for gain." "Everie scholar or petyte (little one) that plaies for money is to be expelled," ordains a grammar school charter of the period. One of the duties of hospital sisters was "to make diligent searche amonge the 'poore for cards or dice'."
