

ODDS AND ENDS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

Berlin, Aug. 10.—An interesting legal question has been raised in connection with the famous Rosa Luxemburg case by prominent jurists. If their construction of the law of the case is correct, it will be impossible to bring the woman to trial for the very sufficient reason that judges competent to sit in the case most probably cannot be found. In Germany, as in all other civilized countries, a judge is disqualified from taking part in a trial when he is related to any of the parties within a certain degree. In Germany collateral relationship by consanguinity to the third degree or by affinity to the second degree, even when, in the latter case, the married relation no longer exists, and, of course, all direct degrees of relationship in the ascending or descending line, are disqualifications.

The charge against Rosa Luxemburg is one of insulting all the members of the Prussian Army, which includes also former soldiers who, although dishonored, are still liable to military duty. As every able-bodied male German must serve in the army, it is highly improbable that there is any judge in the empire who is not related to some member of the army within the prohibited degree. The jurists who have raised this question point out also the extreme probability that seven competent judges could not be found to make up the quorum required in the Imperial Supreme Court in case of an eventual appeal to that tribunal.

There are great many people who do not believe that the Luxemburg case will ever be brought up again for trial. Their opinion has been strengthened by the withdrawal by the state attorney of a prosecution which had been started against one of the editors of the Vorwaerts, on account of an article dealing with the abuse of soldiers. This newspaper declares that it is evident that the war minister does not care to have the question of ill treatment of soldiers brought again before a civil court.

London, Aug. 10.—Jack Heaton Armstrong, an aristocratic young Englishman, has just returned from Albania with a story of the awe in which his monie was held by the unoppressed natives of the Balkans. He was in command of a field gun used against the rebels.

Armstrong, who is a brother of the private secretary of Prince William, set out from Alessio with Chief Frenk for the relief of the Prince, then besieged in his capital. Frenk had 2,000 men and one field gun. Armstrong commanded the field gun. No matter how hot the fire, the soldiers never deserted the gun, which was aimed and fired by the monieed Englishman. As they had never seen a monieed before, they thought it essential to aiming a kind of range finder. Armstrong did not dispel their illusion.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—One of Germany's famous medicinal spas, Sodenhall, near Aschaffenburg, Bavaria, will henceforth be barred to rich people. It has been bought and will be reserved for workingmen. The purchase has been made by the Imperial Insurance Department, from state funds and the spa will be reserved entirely for workingmen and women. The purchase was made by the state and sent to Sodenhall for treatment by their insurance fund office, upon the official physician's certificates. Hotels, baths, and all other things connected with the spa are now the property of the state.

Johannesburg, July 10.—Arrangements practically have been completed for the visit of a French lawn tennis team to South Africa. It is expected that the team will be composed of the well known players, Decugis, Germot, Gaul, Poulin, Madame Decugis and the American player, Miss Rzan. The tour will begin in October and extend into December.

Don't endure the needless pain and torment of rheumatism, aggravated as it is by the hot weather. W. T. Hutchins, Michigan, writes: "I suffered the aches and pains of rheumatism, swollen feet, irregular painful bladder action, but Foley Kidney Pills fixed me up quickly." CAPT. CHITTENDEN, DIVER WHO EXAMINED MAINE, DIES HERE

Capt. John W. Chittenden, veteran diver and chief of wrecking staff of Merritt & Chapman of New York, died yesterday at noon at the home of his brother-in-law, Thomas E. Kelly, 249 Harral avenue. Death was really due to two paralytic shocks which he suffered on Thursday, although the veteran wrecker had been ill for more than a year. His wife and six children were at his bedside when he died. Mr. Chittenden came to Bridgeport from New York three weeks ago, in hope that a change of climate would be beneficial. His family was summoned Thursday when it became apparent that his end was near. His children are: Mrs. A. E. Elmer, Mrs. F. W. Dege, Mrs. W. C. Opperman, John W. Chittenden, Jr., Raymond N., and Robert L. Chittenden. Capt. Chittenden was 70 years old.

His last notable achievement was the salvage of the steamship Jose from the bottom of the East river, New York. After the Spanish war Capt. Chittenden went to Cuba for the United States government and planned and executed the salvage of the Spanish fleet which was sunk off Santiago. He afterward examined the wreck of the battleship Maine and reported that the explosion came from outside the hull. His work has won him praise from many of the foremost American engineers. His body will be taken to New York for burial.

ATTEMPT TO DERAIL 11:30 N. H. EXPRESS NEAR DEVON FAILURE

Another attempt to wreck a New Haven passenger train was made yesterday, when the 11:30 express from New Haven struck a heavy log near Devon. The obstruction was hurled many feet and was broken into two pieces. The Milford authorities were notified after the engineer had brought the train to a stop, but could find no one to remove the log.

STS. PETER & PAUL BROTHERHOOD HOLDS 20TH ANNIVERSARY

Patriotic Speeches Ring Out As Russian Fraternity Celebrates.

With a representation of prominent clergy from city, state and country officials, present to laud the organization in short speeches, members of the Russian Orthodox Sts. Peter and Paul Brotherhood last night celebrated their 20th anniversary at Sokol hall on Hallett street. At times, the hall echoed and re-echoed, as short addresses were made commending the policy of Russia and Serbia, and throughout the evening the patriotism for the mother country was evident. Bishop Alexander of Alaska spoke of the organization as the growth of the Orthodox church in this country, and told in glowing terms of the wonderful work of those at the head of the movement. At the close of his speech, he presented gold medals to twelve surviving charter members of the Bridgeport lodge. They were Mathew Bakos, John Robstock, George Kozanich, John Kasper, Michael Kravak, Stephen Pavlovsky, Michael Lozinak, Stephen Pavlovsky, George F. Simon, George Charak and Michael Jankurka.

The majority of the speeches dealt with the conflict in Europe. They were enthusiastically patriotic, and the speakers were cheered again and again. Those who spoke were Stephen Erhart, president of the National Sokol society, Anna Robinson, ex-president, Slavonic National society, Sheriff Joseph Kalafus, Andrew Buzo, Rev. Alexander Pentalef, Father Peter Rohanik of New York, and Rev. Alexander Vanjaminoff of Ansonia. The war was deplored, and the organization commended in short speeches by Mayor Clifford B. Wilson, City Clerk J. A. H. Robinson, ex-president, Slavonic National society, Sheriff Joseph Kalafus, Andrew Buzo, Rev. Alexander Pentalef, Father Peter Rohanik of New York, and Rev. Alexander Vanjaminoff of Ansonia.

THREE MOTORISTS IN SUNDAY COLLISIONS

An automobile bearing Connecticut license 19687, while running at a high rate of speed about 11 o'clock last evening, crashed into a light about a hundred feet east of the round-house switch, Westport, demolishing the machine. The occupant escaped injury, it is thought, as witnesses declare he took a car shortly after. The name of the owner was not secured. A car owned by D. Vetromile was damaged when sideswiped by a larger car bearing a California license and driven by M. H. Blackwell of New York, at the top of Old Hill on Lincoln street. It is alleged by Blackwell that Vetromile attempted to cross the highway without any signal. Vetromile declared that he would bring action for damages.

DOG FAILS TO SAVE MASTER

George Egre, 42 years old, residing at 271 Hancock avenue, was yesterday engulfed in the swirling waters of Ash creek near the Fairfield avenue viaduct, as he attempted to take a swim after watering and washing a horse he had brought to the creek-side. Through a dog owned by the dead man made heroic efforts to save his master, grasping the clothing of the sinking man after he had risen once to the surface, the weight of the body forced the faithful animal to relinquish its grasp and the body was not recovered until later in the day, when a party composed of John Mek, Arpad Ludwinsky of Hancock avenue, and John Snyder and Stephen Gapski, 823 Ellisworth street, secured it with a scappling net. Permission to remove it to local undertaking parlors was later given by Medical Examiner W. H. Donaldson of Fairfield, on which side of the creek the accident occurred. Several days later a wireless message to the Erin diverted the yacht to Bermuda. There had been some apprehension regarding the safety of the yacht because England had become involved in the European war since they left the Azores. WHY GIRLS LIKE TO BE PRETTY

In the August Woman's Home Companion appears a friendly talk to girls who love beauty. The author explains, as follows, why as a girl she wanted to be beautiful and the reason that is generally at the bottom of a desire for beauty: "I wanted the power which, already, without reasoning about it, I knew beauty to possess. "And that is, I am sure, at the bottom of every girl's wish for beauty, though she herself may not know it. And all this claptrap talk about vanity is very claptrap indeed beside this real reason. We want beauty because it is a power, and—let all the mothers and older people shake their heads at me if they like—it is right and normal and healthy for a girl to want power, and I would not give a snap of my finger for the girl who did not want it.

"We all have, as Stevenson says, a great thirst for consideration."
