THINK THIS OVER MR. VOTER.

- Some of the things that Woodrow Wilson has done for the American people during his administration, which has yet to reach the first year and a half of its existence, to wit:—
- I—A Firm Foreign Policy—one of Watchful Waiting—which prevented a war with Mexico, and MADE IMPOSSIBLE UNTOLD LOSSES OF LIVES, THE DEMORALIZATION OF BUSINESS AND A STAGGERING WAR DEBT.
- II—A Revision of the Rules of Business without the usual and heretofore inevitable panic—as the result of the efforts of the President the laws have been made the same for everybody—big and little—not by wholesale denunciation and litigation, but by peaceable and judicious means.
- III—Restoration to the oft repeated taunts that the Democratic party had not capacity for solving questions requiring constructive treatment. Witness the Currency, Tariff, Income Tax, the nearly completed Trust Bills and other wise legislation that not only received the votes of Democrats, but the votes of Republicans and Bull Mooseers as well in both the Senate and House.
- IV—A Tariff that compels the Trusts to sell as cheaply to you as to the people of foreign lands. Framed without concessions to Special Interests.
- V—A Currency Law under which you get your money when you need it—ones that prevents panics and insures stable financial conditions.
- VI—An Income Tax that places upon the rich a just proportion of the $1,000,000,000 a year, which is now the cost of maintaining the Federal Government.
- VII—An Arbitration Act, providing for conciliation and arbitration in controversies between capital and labor, which has already been successfully employed in preventing great strikes that would have tied up the entire railway business of the nation.
- VIII—Enlargement of the scope of the Parcel Post, which has reduced the cost of transportation, and become a lasting and convenient instrument of benefit to the consumer and producer.
- IX—Trust Laws based on the Golden Rule. "The Trusts must do unto others as they would have others do unto them." I. e.:
- Okey Court Decree!
- Abandon Unfair Cutthroat Competition!
- Cease Discriminating between Purchasers of their Goods!
- Discourage Control of Competitors Acquired under the "Holding Company" system!
- Surrender the Enormous Power Wielded through Interlocking Directorates!
- (NOTE—This gives you and your son a better chance in life.)
- X—Legislation providing for cooperative agricultural extension work
- XI—The fostering and development of commerce at home and abroad as never before.

FINALLY.

YOUR PRESIDENT HAS WORKED UNTRINGLY, AND WITH A SINCERITY ENTIRELY NEW TO OUR POLITICAL LIFE FOR WHAT HE CONSIDERS THE BEST INTERESTS OF MANKIND. HE HAS WORKED UNCEASINGLY AND WITHOUT VACATION—DAY IN AND DAY OUT—FOR THE RANK AND FILE OF THE PUBLIC AND NOT FOR ANY CLIQUE OR GROUP. HE HAS WORKED FOR PEACE—PEACE AT HOME AS WELL AS PEACE ABROAD.

THE RECORD MADE BY WOODROW WILSON IS WITHOUT PARALLEL IN THE ENTIRE HISTORY OF THE NATION.

SECRETARY DANIELS' TRIBUTE TO WILSON THRILLS BIG RALLY

Cabinet Officer Eulogizes His Chief and His Policies at Democratic Gathering in Stamford--Flays Alliance Between Republicans and Big Interests

(Special to The Farmer.)
Stamford, Oct. 23.—"America wants peace," Hon. Joseph Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, told the 1,300 persons who crowded the Stamford opera house last night at the rally meeting held by the Democrats, and from the storm of applause which followed his remarks it seemed that the audience agreed with him.

Secretary Daniels defended the diplomacy of President Wilson, and pointed out the success of his chief's policy in handling difficult questions with Japan and more especially in Mexico. He emphasized the purpose of President Wilson to keep his platform pledges and asserted that the chief executive "knows only one thing about a promise, and that is to keep it."

That the present administration had drafted and caused to be passed more constructive legislation than any other one in the history of the nation was his assertion. He named the income tax law, the currency bill, and the tariff measure as representative achievements.

Secretary Daniels was introduced by Homer S. Cummings, state's attorney for Fairfield county and a member of the Democratic national committee who has served for 14 years on that body with the head of the navy department. Mr. Cummings said that he now realized how good it was to be a Democrat.

"I realize how great a thing it is to be a member of an organization no matter how humble, that has had a part in preserving the institutions and ideals of the country and that is what the Democratic party has done," he began.

"For sixteen years the Republican party had undivided control of all branches of the government, and it dominated those states, generally conceded as doubtful. During this period there came to be built up in this country, a co-ordination of interests which was antagonistic to ordinary citizens."

"There was a partnership between the big interests and the campaign managers of the Republican party. We beseeched the American people to hear what we had to say. Then revolutions came. The Fugio investigation, the Peasroe inquiry, and the insurance probe, showed what lay behind the great and apparently placid Republican party."

"In 1912, a large part of the Republican party lost faith in its leaders, and deserted to form an organization of its own. By long control the Republican party became blinded by success that when defeat came, it bewildered it."

"The attitude of the Republican party to the chances of the Democrats was not unlike that of the burglar who, interrupted in his nocturnal prowling, was not quite sure whether the owner of the premises was to be trusted with his own property."

"But we have assumed control of all these affairs of the government, and we have done this, without participating in any panic, although Ebenezer and others had prognosticated it."

"Ebenezer is very anxious to get back. I never have seen a man quite so anxious to get in office."

"After sixteen to eighteen years of office holding without saving the nation, he now says if we will only bend him back for two year more, he will rescue the country in 1916."

"There are bigger reasons than party ones why any appeal of the Republicans should not be heeded. We have had on hand international problems, which if handled under European methods of diplomacy, would have plunged us into war."

"The Republicans insisted that Democratic diplomacy was weak, that it caused derisive laughter in the courts of Europe and the clubs of London."

"Neither the Clubs of London, nor the European courts are laughing at 'Watchful Waiting' tonight. War in the East, peace in the West, and thank God for Wilson, should be our heartfelt feeling tonight. We would be less than patriotic, if we did not support the administration. The President is not only a Democrat. He is an executive of the ideal of government, justice for all men."

In introducing Secretary Daniels, Mr. Cummings declared that the honor was more than a formal one. He told of his long friendship with the Navy Department head, and stated that for fourteen years he had served on the Democratic National Committee, with him. The appearance of the Secretary of the Navy behind the speaker's table was the signal for the breaking forth of a storm of applause which finally had to be ended by a wave of the speaker's hand.

Secretary Daniels began his speech by summarizing the work which Congress had accomplished under the whip of President Wilson.

"Some regard a platform as something to get on and not stand upon," he declared. "Voters are keen and alive and will trust no party that does not keep its promises. If the Wilson administration has not kept its promises, which it made in the platform of Baltimore, it does not deserve a vote of confidence."

"In the early part of the administration, even before the 4th of March had been far past, the supporters of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law opposed any action of Congress upon a new tariff measure. They went to President Wilson and told him that they thought he had better wait a while."

"The President replied, 'I must keep my pledges. I know nothing about a promise, except that I must keep it. My boss won't let me do otherwise.'"

"And when asked who his boss was, he replied, 'My conscience.'"

"He is the first president, who ever admitted he was boss-controlled. I would that there had been others so controlled."

"Anything caused the ousting of the Republican party, it was the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, a law not written by Mr. Payne or Mr. Aldrich, but by those interests it directly benefited."

"In addition to the new tariff law we have passed the income tax, the fairest and most equitable tax that can be levied. If a man has an income he ought to be glad to pay the tax; if a man has not an income, he pays nothing. Fortunately the income tax is in force now, or the European war would make enormous special taxes necessary to carry on the tariff the higher would soar these special taxes."

"The panic of 1907 was caused by a currency famine. President Wilson resolved to help currency, by creating a scientific banking system, before the adjournment of Congress. The School-master President rang the bell, and said 'Boys there is more work to be done.'"

"The Over-class currency law will be in force fully on November 15, and neither you, or I, will live to see another currency panic."

"Bankers first opposed the measure but later co-operated to expedite its passage. It is a business throughout the country. Thirty-five Republicans in the House, and most of the Progressives voted for it; many Republicans and all of the Progressives in the Senate abstained from their ballot for that epoch-making bill."

"In fact, not a measure has been passed during the present administration that has not had some Republican votes. Such men as La Follette, God bless him—voted for the tariff measure. Senator Weeks, one of the most hide-bound stand-patters, said he voted for the currency bill because it was 75 per cent. good."

"If any stand-patter calls a Democratic measure 75 per cent. good, I will stake my life that it is 100 per cent. good."

"The present Congress has been in session longer than any other except the one during Andrew Johnson's administration, and during that session probably no more salutary law has been passed than the Anti-Trust one. There is a passage in the American government for the first time in American history that declares that the labor of mankind is not a commodity."

"That act alone should win the votes of all fair-minded persons. This anti-trust law takes human labor from the same category as trusts and monopolies, the position it had been assigned in the Sherman law. Laboring men from California to Connecticut, will say that this law gives more recognition to them than any other measure during a generation."

"It is a very good thing to be a Democrat this year, but I remember way back in 1908 when I sat in a little office in New York awaiting the returns from the presidential election. How doleful I felt, and when I found that my party had been overwhelmingly defeated, I packed my little handbag and slipped out of town. It was a serious time for Democrats then. It looked as though the Republicans had a mortgage foreclosed on the country for a quarter of a century, but in two years, the leaven of Democracy was working resultfully. In 1912 we saw more than half the Republican party leave it and form a party of its own. On the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November you will see such rock-ribbed states as Pennsylvania come into the Democratic column."

"But there are real, vital, pulsing reasons—not party ones—why these states should roll up a Democratic majority. The situation between the Japanese and the United States was a difficult one. Conflict was feared by many and for a time was considered inevitable. It was a time for consideration and courtesy."

"If we had a man in the White House who favored the iron hand of militarism, I shudder to think what the consequences would have been. But the man who was in the White House said, 'Although I have no passion for war, I have a passion for peace.'"

"That momentous day when Baron Chinda representing Japan, called on Secretary Bryan for this government's final answer to his nation's appeal for fairness, he said, 'Mr. Secretary, is this the last word?'"

"Our great Secretary of State, a man who has always been an advocate of peace, replied, 'Baron Chinda, there is no last word among friends.'"

"I predict that this statement will go down in the annals of world diplomacy as never even though it marked the working of what has been called amateur diplomacy."

"Tonight I wonder what you and I would be doing if President Wilson had not pursued his 'Watchful Waiting.'"

"I believe if it had not been for President Wilson's firm stand 200,000 of our fellow men would be fighting tonight in Mexico. If there is one thing that stands out in the work of the present administration it is the failure of the President to recognize the assassin dictator of Mexico."

"President Wilson, who has told that Europe had recognized Huerta he declared that he did not care a fig for any precedent, when it was against human right. There were some who thought that European diplomacy was wonderful but it has plunged half the world into war. Amateur diplomacy they may call it, but you and I are thankful tonight for it."

"America wants peace. There was never a war, except one for religious or political freedom, that was not a crime against mankind. Now all of the countries of Europe look upon us with hope and confidence. The United States is the only nation that has the power and influence to be of service to the warring nations."

"If on that Tuesday in November of this year we should take a vote on should we stand by President Wilson? I don't think that 1,000,000 votes would be cast against him."

"But there is another way to show your confidence in the administration. You can do so by sending Democrats to Congress. I am glad to hear that you are going to send that grand old man of Connecticut Democracy, Simon Baldwin, to the United States Senate. I hope and feel sure that you will also keep my good friend, Jerry Donovan and his colleagues in the House of Representatives."

"Lyman T. Tingier, candidate for governor, made a brief speech, in which he said that while he had not sought the nomination for governor, that since he had it, he was going to be elected. He compared the Democratic and Republican platforms, and said that much of the latter sounded as though Senator Brandegee might have written it."

"A liberal idea has not penetrated Brandegee's mind for years," declared the lieutenant-governor. "He voted against the eight hour law for women and children. He voted to sustain Lorimer and Judge Archibald."

"Mr. Tingier condemned lobbying and declared that he wanted to make lobbying a crime, and that he would do so if given a Democratic legislature to back him up."

Speeches were also made by Daniel F. Dunn, comptroller, who is a candidate for re-election; E. S. Roberts, state treasurer, who is a candidate for re-election; and John P. McDonough, candidate for attorney-general.

Thomas Keegan, Stamford town chairman, introduced Mr. Cummings, as chairman of the evening. More than 200 members of the Stamford Democratic marching club preceded by the St. John's band, paraded about the town before the meeting, and later marched to a section of seats in the front of the house."

The meeting was characterized by frequent and enthusiastic applause and was declared by Democrats to have been one of the most successful of the campaign."

KORSINO-SOMOLA

Miss Margaret Somola was united in marriage this morning to George Korsma at St. Stephen's Hungarian R. C. church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Stephen Chertinsky, pastor, with a nuptial mass. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Korsma left on a short honeymoon trip. On their return they will reside at Wordin avenue. The groom is employed as a chauffeur with the Elm Auto Co.

IT'S DAD'S BREAD!

That's the Name of Adams' New $10 Prize Bread

Decided so by the judges yesterday and selected from a thousand of names submitted by contestants. The name

"Dad's Bread"

WAS SUBMITTED BY TWO PEOPLE: MISS CATHERINE FROST OF 727 SEAVIEW AVENUE, and MR. ROBERT GAYNOR OF 300 NEWFIELD AVENUE. And the $10 in cash will be equally divided between them.

The judges in this contest were as follows: William Langdon, Mgr. for F. W. West, 665 East Main St.; John Reuther, proprietor meat market, 562 East Main St.; Joseph Burns, proprietor grocery and market, 579 East Main St.

The name decided upon by these gentlemen is a mighty good one—it is short, easy to remember and unique. And it is appropriate because "Dad" in every home is the bread furnisher, he's a good bread eater and he knows good bread when he tastes it. That's why "Dad's Bread" is a good name for this delicious new Adams' loaf.

WE WISH TO THANK ALL WHO TOOK PART IN THIS CONTEST.
