PATRIOTIC PEOPLE GATHER AT EAST LYME WHEN ANCIENT COLONIAL HOME IS RESTORED

Thomas Lee Homestead Is Placed Upon Original Footing By Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames.

East Lyme, June 10.—The old town of East Lyme fairly outdid itself yesterday, when the Connecticut Society of the Colonial Dames of America held a meeting at the famous Thomas Lee homestead.

Over 500 people from all parts of the State attended the meeting, there being over 100 automobiles parked on the lawn in front of the house.

Mr. President Taft, who was the next speaker, was received with great cheers, and the band appropriately playing the "Star Spangled Banner."

Mr. Taft was at his best, entering fully into the historic and patriotic feeling of the day. His speech abounded with wit and humor.

Speeches of a patriotic kind were also made by Mr. Dowd, president of the New London Historical society, and several of the town officials.

The ladies served a dainty basket luncheon on the lawn. There was singing by a double quartet of ladies and the East Lyme band added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion by their music.

ALIBI DEFENSE OF WILLIAMS IN MURDER TRIAL

Two Men Accused of Killing Commissioner Case Have Important Witnesses.

Litchfield, June 10.—Counsel for Isaac N. Williams, of Bridgeport, and Harry E. Roe, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., charged with the murder of Commissioner Hubert B. Case at Winsted, last November, continued today to submit evidence in the superior court here to establish alibis for the accused men.

George Roe, brother of one of the accused, was recalled to the stand and repeated most of the testimony given by him yesterday afternoon, which was to the effect that his brother Harry was home on the night of the murder.

Miss Belle Hawley, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Roe's sweetheart, testified that she attended a moving picture theater with her on the night of November 28.

Mrs. Rosae E. Roe, mother of the accused Roe, testified that Williams came to the Roe home in Poughkeepsie late in the forenoon of November 28 and remained there through the night, leaving the next morning.

SUFFERING FROM AMNESIA, WOMAN CREATES MYSTERY

Holyoke Mother and Children in Bridgeport Do Not Know Correct Name.

Mystery today surrounds the identity of a well appearing woman of middle age, who alternately says that she is Katie Harris and Kate Harris LaConde, of Holyoke, Mass., picked up at an early hour this morning in the West End by Policeman Martin Kane.

Believed to be a victim of Amnesia, her two children, found at the home of Mrs. Roger Bailey, 82 Clinton avenue, answering to the names of Walter, aged nine, and Arthur, aged six, are unable to throw much additional light on the situation.

When found by Policeman Kane, the woman was looking for a doctor, High street. She said she was ill. Later she told the police that she was in love with an old sweetheart and that she had left her husband to come to this city in search of him.

It was at first believed that she might be the wife of James Blanchard, a merchant, living at 22 Oliver street, Worcester, Mass. Mrs. Blanchard, however, said that she had never been in Worcester, Mass., but that she had lived at 211 High street, Holyoke, said she had been brought to this city yesterday by their mother who took them to the Bailey home.

Later it was ascertained the woman alone in lodgings at Mrs. Winspun's house, 732 Howard avenue and had also visited the James Montivoni residence, 694 Howard avenue. She is believed to be temporarily insane.

SI AND MARY, IN FROM SLAB CITY, GIVE TOWN "O.O."

Dodge Jitney and Try To Buy Hosiery While in Quest of "Uncle John"

Oh, yes! They liked our fair city and displayed marked surprise at the many tall buildings on Main street, but they were not particularly called away with delight over having a crowd of several hundred curiosity seekers following them in their first journey through a real, gosh-durned big city, where they were "hoyars" and jitneys try their all-mightiest to separate you from your very breath.

They left the railroad station shortly after noon, these good, unobtrusive country folk who, bashfully admitted that they were Si and Mary Stebbins and their son, Joshua. They were in search of their uncle John Taylor, who some years ago had tendered them an invitation to enjoy the hospitality of himself and wife, but blamed if they knew on just what road in Bridgeport John Taylor had told them he lived.

They visited several of the big stores for Si wanted Mary to buy herself some new clothes and he also wanted his son Joshua, a bright, alert young fellow, to look like the city boys.

In Howland's they nearly purchased a pair of stockings and Ma ever so modestly raised her skirts to show the clerk just the kind of stockings she wished to buy. But stores of today are so considerably modern in every detail that they couldn't supply Ma with her idea of a real style pattern in hosiery and she left the store complaining.

Si led the procession at all times while Mary held the back of Si's coat in a paternalistic grip with her woolen-gloved hand and Joshua, with his funny little hat, brought up the rear.

The last a Farmer reporter saw of the trio was on the corner of Main and Golden Hill streets, where Pa and Ma were debating in no smothered voice, upon a suitable "restrum" where they might obtain home-cooking for as Pa Stebbins said, "I'm scared of my indignation in these city places, Ma."

I Told You So!

M. B. ERLANGER, Mgr. P & Q Shop.

Those new P & Q Suits in "McAlpine" and "Warwick" models have met with a warm welcome. Between you and me, they're great suits at $10-or-$15.

Picked them out while in New York last week, you'll remember, at the P & Q Convention of our 12 stores managers.

Smart-Dressers are strong for the "McAlpine" and "Warwick" because they're mighty nobby looking. Its another case, pure and simple, where the P & Q Shop is "Always the Earliest to Show the Latest."

Splendid suits (some silk-lined too), in triple the variety of the 'General Store'! Yes—even the you're stout as Bill Taft or slender as President Wilson your size is here. A P & Q 'TRU-BLU' or 'Quaker Grey' Serge makes a nice, neat suit for the conservative fellow.

Talking of "TRU-BLU" Serge reminds me: An extra pair of Flannel Trousers at $3.00-or-$3.50 will go great, for a change, with your Blue Serge Coat.
