HOME HEALTH CLUB

(Edited by Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago.)

Exercise: If you want to find out how many muscles you do not exercise, try some very unusual stunts. Do some work that you have not done for a long time. When you get through being sore and stiff after that job, try another kind, you will realize that when the physiologist tells you that there are in the neighborhood of 500 different muscles in the human body he knows whereof he speaks. You will agree quite readily that it is possible for all of them to atrophy at once.

As a rule, certain experiences stand out in our memory and we learn through them how to secure ourselves against suffering in the future. If we are teachers and have a desire to help others, we give them the benefit of our experience. I will remember a day's work in the hay field many years ago. It was after 2 years of office work with but little opportunity for physical exercise. I had only a boy to help me, but that boy must be saved so I pitched on and then off the wagon, ten fair sized heads, no more than I had often done before, but I was different, not the work. The cool evening air was very gratifying and to get still better results I took a swim in the river nearby. The next morning it would have been difficult to convince me that where were at least a thousand muscles and that each one could ache just a little more than the other.

Another experience taught me that when tired, keep warm and if very tired, keep very warm. At a time when a walk of over ten or fifteen miles per day was unusual, I was forced to walk 48 miles over the western prairie and during the last 15 miles it rained enough to wet through my clothing. Just as the sun was going down I came to a "dug-out." There were 15 people housed there, but they took me in for the night as there was no other habitation near. As the room was crowded I had to sit near the cook stove and it was hot. I also had to sleep near it and I perspired freely during the night. The next morning I felt fresh and vigorous and there were but few sore spots and they quickly disappeared.

A chemical examination of the perspiration thrown off under such circumstances would show a vastly different material from that which is thrown off in a Turkish or other heat bath. The sweat that is thrown off by violent exercise carries away vast quantities of impurities and waste matter, leaving the tissues in a fine, clean condition, while that which is poured out of the pores in order to keep the skin moist, while the body rests quietly under extreme heat, is almost neutral and carries but little waste matter out of the system. The weight of the body of a very fat person is reduced to be sure by the sweating process, but unless there is slight trouble, which prohibits active exercise, it is not a good way to reduce as it leaves the impurities in the system and causes the mouth to demand water, cold water and in large quantities. Exercise of a vigorous kind and a diet of the right sort will purify the body and restore it to a normal condition. I will be glad to give specific directions for a rational diet for reducing or adding flesh to those who suffer with obesity or leanness.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from reads of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 3033 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I have never yet talked with any one who has ever known a person with the same annoyance as I, namely, night headaches. I go to bed perfectly well and sleep until any time after 12 or 1 o'clock, when I awaken with a violent headache. At first I seem almost paralyzed with it, but as soon as I force my head to move it becomes relieved. I am then obliged to sit up in bed for a time until it goes away, when I can lie down and go to sleep only to be awakened suffering in the same manner. I am quite often compelled to remain up until after 5 o'clock. My husband says I quite often groan in my sleep before it awakens me. The pain seems to originate just at the back of my neck between the ears, apparently where the head and neck extend downward to the top of my head. If I rest my head against anything like a rocking chair during the day the pain starts immediately. Otherwise it is more of a soreness during the day. It seems to affect the eyes so the eyeballs are sore. I trust that I have made the matter plain. O. F.

I am inclined to think that the difficulty in your case is due to eye strain, and if you were to go to a thoroughly reliable and skillful oculist and have your eyes examined, I think he will confirm this opinion. You should also have your eyes carefully fitted with glasses. Until you have your eyes examined by an oculist apply hot fomentations to the back of the head and down the spine at least half way or to the middle of the back. This hot fomentation should be applied as follows: Secure a flannel cloth of a size large enough to completely cover the part to be fomented, after it has been folded double. You will require help to apply this, for you must be in bed carefully covered up and not get up until next morning. The blanket should be immersed in as hot water as can be borne, wrung out and applied to your back, then covered with a dry flannel and oil silk or oil cloth, then turn on your back and lie quiet. In about 15 minutes, possibly less, another cloth should be wrung out of the hot water and applied in the same manner just as soon as the first one is taken off, so as to avoid chills. Applications should be applied for about one hour. Just before the hot fomentations are placed to the head and back they should be sponged with warm vinegar, followed with a rubbing of olive oil, to prevent burning of the skin. These fomentations should be applied just before going to bed.

Dear Doctor: I have had a weak spine and bad nerves for a year but the present collapse was caused by an operation on the bladder and rectum which I had 5 months ago. Since a few weeks after the operation I have been unable to take anything into my stomach but milk. The minute I take solid food my stomach begins to get sore and burn, everything turns sour and distresses me very much. I dare not raise myself up in bed or use my feet much because it starts a nervous pain down in the small of the back somewhere. I have to be careful in turning in bed and sometimes I cannot lie on my side at all. I am weak and extremely nervous. J. C.

I would advise you to secure the services of a thoroughly reliable and skilled osteopath, have him make an examination and give you such treatments as you will need. It is quite evident that there has been some injury to the spine and unless this is reduced or overcome you are liable to continue to suffer. The Home Health Club Book, Vol. 2, would be excellent for you as it would tell how to gain control of your nerves, unless there is some mechanical irritation which would then have to be overcome. The osteopathic treatments would have that effect. I would also suggest that you apply to the spine the hot fomentation in the manner above described or first have the back rubbed with warm vinegar and olive oil, then have wrung out of hot water flannel cloths and placed upon the back, continuing to be changed enough to keep them hot for an hour. When the hot cloths are removed the back should be rubbed again with warm olive oil. This will infuse heat into the tissues and overcome the pain.

THE NATURE STUDENTS

There are days of automobiles, base ball and golf, when the people take their pleasure in speed, yelling or costly games. What has become of the simple old times when so many people used to find their recreation in studying botany, spitting up rocks to find their geological formation, or learning the notes of birds? Are there any nature students left?

If you ask the modern business man to find relief from the cares of his office by going out in the woods and learning the names and characteristics of the trees, the plants, and the insects he would be very much bored. Yet every species of birds has its own fascinations and graces, and it is a pleasure to number them all in your circle of friends. Every variety of tree renders its own service to mankind, and it is interesting to know what has contributed to human life. The outdoor world is a great stage on which nature is performing her thrilling drama. If one's eyes can be opened, there is a world of beauty and interest in the quiet and seclusion of the woods and fields.

STAGE STARS WILL SHINE TONIGHT AT SOUTHPORT FETE

Broadway Favorites Brought to Aid of Volunteer Fire Department.

A vaudeville performance which will include some of the best known members of the profession on its program and which will doubtless prove to be the largest affair of its kind held in this section is scheduled for the little town of Southport this evening as a benefit for the fire department. All in the cast are Broadway stars who do not often play towns the size of Southport. The affair will be held at the grounds of the fire house.

The Cochrane Artillery orchestra made possible only through the efforts of Mrs. Mark A. Luescher who is known to this country and Europe as Alice Lloyd, England's foremost singing comedienne. It is interesting to note that it is summer and through Mrs. Luescher's personal influence that so remarkable a performance, which will be the first of its kind ever given in America, could be arranged.

Mrs. Luescher, who is the star in "Little Miss Fix It," is the wife of a member of the firm of Verba & Luescher, who are managers for ten of the leading Broadway theatres.

In addition to the twelve big acts, which will be given an elaborate production, Mr. Luescher has promised to give a short address on "Chicken Farming and the Drama."

The Cochrane Artillery orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion, and Leo Stark will be stage director and Leo Edwards, accompanist.

Among the attractions of the bill are Lola Earle, the popular nightingale of the B. F. Keith circuit of theatres; Elkins, Fay and Elkins in a bit of minstrel; Blanche Merrill in song of the day, and Skeet Gallagher and Miss Irene Martin, who are called "the funniest pair on the stage." Mr. Gallagher will also appear with Charles McNaughton in an act entitled "England and America in Fun."

Gene Pelletier of Verba and Luescher, "The Spring Maid," will sing and dance and Rosie Lloyd, sister of Mrs. Luescher who is also a star will contribute to the program.

Others to appear are Lou Anger, who is known as the "Sam Bernard of Vaudeville," Leo Edwards, who has an enviable reputation as a song writer and Sophie Bernard, co-star with Raymond Hitchcock in Cohan and Harris' "The Red Widow." The complete program:

Overture, the Coast Artillery orchestra.

Miss Lola Earle, the popular nightingale, of the B. F. Keith circuit of theatres.

Elkins, Fay and Elkins, a little bit of minstrel.

Miss Blanche Merrill, in songs of today.

Carl McCullough, the favorite vaudeville monologist.

Skeet Gallagher and Miss Irene Martin, the up-to-the-minute pair.

Miss Rosie Lloyd, the famous English singing comedienne. Courtesy of E. F. Albee and Paul Keith.

Miss Gene Pelletier of Verba, and Luescher's "The Spring Maid" company.

Lou Anger, the "Sam Bernard" of vaudeville and star of "Safety First."

Miss Sophie Bernard, co-star with Raymond Hitchcock in Cohan and Harris' "The Red Widow" Co.

Charles McNaughton and Skeet Gallagher, England and America, in fun.

Miss Alice Lloyd, England's foremost singing comedienne in a song or two she made famous.

Leo Edwards, the famous composer of song successes in his own popular Broadway hits.

Stage under direction of Leo Stark, Leo Edwards, accompanist.

EXPLORER FINDS UNKNOWN TRIBE OF PAINTED SAVAGES

London, July 15.—Dr. Cuthbert Christy, well known as an explorer and an authority on sleeping sickness, has just returned from a three years' scientific expedition in the Congo undertaken for the Belgian government. He spent 18 months in the Ituri forest, where he met a remarkable people, who made themselves invisible by painting their bodies with dull red lines. They organize great hunts in the forest and drive the animals into nets.

Progress was difficult in the forest, said the explorer. Constant rain, continuous twilight, a plague of flies and ticks and water and mud, often waist deep, had to be contended with. Food was hard to obtain, and often there was nothing to eat but a few bananas or wild kola nuts. Shelters of leaves would be erected at night by the natives.

Dr. Christy traveled from Boma, at the mouth of the Congo, to the Rejaf on the Nile, from which he proceeded down the river to Khartoum.

NEWTOWN STATION IS BURGLARIZED AGAIN

(Special to The Farmer.) Newtown, July 15.—For the third time in six months, the Newtown railroad station was broken into last night. Although several hundred dollars were in the office, nothing was obtained, as the person who broke in was frightened away.

A hand truck was backed up to one of the windows in the main waiting room and the window was smashed open. Signs inside showed an attempt had been made to enter the office. Passerby are believed to have frightened away the intruder.

Following Rumania's refusal to permit shipments of munitions to Turkey the Austrian government prohibited the export of sugar to Rumania.

THAW FIGURES IN UNUSUAL DEMONSTRATION WHEN JURY DECLARES THAT HE IS SANE

THAW (indicated by arrow) LEAVING COURT AFTER JURY DECLARED HIM SANE

After a jury in New York had found Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White in 1906, sane, Thaw caused a great demonstration by a crowd of 2,000 men and women who had collected in the corridors of the courthouse, on the long flight of stone steps at the Chambers street entrance, and in Chambers street. There was much handclapping and sustained cheering as Thaw was led down the steps and across the street to the offices of Sheriff Griffenhagen in the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank Building. In the great crush some of the women were heard to cry out hysterically. Several men tossed their hats in the air and saw them trampled and crushed. Thaw took this demonstration quietly. He bowed once or twice and smiled as he faced a battery of moving picture machines and other cameras. A dozen deputies, headed by Sheriff Griffenhagen, tore a hole in the crowd and pushed him through. There was a last ringing cheer followed by shouts of good will and congratulations as Thaw disappeared into the bank building. At least 500 remained for half an hour in the street in the hope of getting a better glimpse of Thaw when he was taken away. It required police reserves to keep order.

CASSIDY SELLS INTEREST IN BROAD ST. RESTAURANT

Eugene L. Cassidy has disposed of his interest in the lunch wagon in Broad street to his partner, Tax Collector Howard F. Smith. He received $200 for his share in the business according to a bill of sale filed in the town clerk's office today. Some time ago Mr. Smith brought an action against Mr. Cassidy to compel an account. The sale is taken to indicate an amicable adjustment of the difficulties of the partners.

A contract for the construction of a 12,000 ton freight steamer at a cost of $750,000 was received by the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation.
