YALE HEARS THAT CAPT. MAHAN MAY BE UNDER BAN

New Haven, Nov. 18.—The report from Cambridge that Enwright would not be in the Harvard line-up next Saturday was not a complete surprise to Yale football men. For several days a rumor to that effect had been in circulation here. Moreover, it had been linked with a report that Capt. Mahan might also be out of the line on Saturday. It was recalled that since the Harvard team had drawn much attention had been given to Harvard's other backfield candidates, and this, it was said, would be accounted for by a threatened loss of Enwright and Mahan.

It is also rumored here that the Harvard faculty and other authorities have been besieged on all sides to give the men special examinations to raise their stand in their studies high enough to permit them to play and that up to now this has been unsuccessful.

The Yale authorities to whom the information was given do not think that the Harvard team plan would be successful, particularly in view of the stand Yale had taken in regard to the Harry LeGore and Bill Easton cases, where the violation of an eligibility rule was admitted by Harvard to be only technical, and where Harvard had generously urged that the two disqualified men—the stars of the Yale backfield—be allowed to play. This informal request from Harvard, as later history showed, fell upon deaf ears.

As LeGore and Easton were Yale's chief assets, so Mahan and Enwright have been considered here as the chief assets of the Harvard backfield and the men that Yale feared the most of all. Naturally, as the question is one of studies, Yale can take no stand in the matter, and as Yale refused to allow Harvard and Princeton to influence the decision in the LeGore and Easton cases, it is extremely unlikely that Yale would be willing to advise in the cases of Mahan and Enwright.

After the magnificent game Yale played against Princeton there was more reason for Harvard's sending in her strongest team against the Blue, and, according to the information received here, the Harvard team has been made during the past few days.

Yale finished its practice in the Bowl yesterday for the game with Harvard Saturday. After the practice more than 20 former Bill coaches and players who watched the team in its final drill were of the opinion that Yale has an excellent chance to defeat Harvard. While the veterans admitted Harvard has a more polished eleven, they declared the Elis possess sufficient football ability to come through victorious.

Doubtful If National Will Increase Player Limit to 25 in 1916

It has been suggested that the National league may raise its player limit next year to 25 instead of keeping it at 21, as it was during the past season. The American league has a limit of 25, and it is argued that the National should not be any lower, writes Ralph Davis in the Pittsburgh Press. There are two sides to the argument, and the best of them is that the National retain the old limit. The old limit this year had one of the best races in its history, and the fact that the teams were all held to the same number of players is generally believed to be responsible for this. Moreover, the clubs saved over thousands of dollars in salaries in carrying comparatively few men and this was a big item when conditions generally are considered. An inspection of the National league reserve lists would indicate that with a few exceptions the clubs can spare 21 men by next May without embarrassment and it is doubtful if a motion to increase the limit would prevail.

Block Negotiations For Peace in Baseball

One hitch in any proposed consolidation of the National and the Federal leagues would revolve about the players, writes James J. Long in the Pittsburgh Sun. A man high up in the councils of organized ball said that, in his judgment, contract jumpers and reserve jumpers would not be taken back on the big line. In fact there are very few among the Feds who could now hold down jobs in the major leagues. No club would care to add to its roster Seaton, Doolan, Tinker, or Johnson. These men are all through as big leaguers, and so are nearly all of the reserve jumpers.

WHEN ELEEVENS OF HARVARD AND YALE CLASH GRIDIRON ENTHUSIASTS MAY EXPECT GREAT BATTLE

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—The eleven of Harvard and Yale are now ready for their big clash at Cambridge, Nov. 20. Since Yale took the Princeton team into camp at the big bowl last Saturday the stock of the blue eleven has gone up over 50 per cent and there are many who believe the New Haven students will wind up their season with a victory over the Cambridge team. Two weeks ago the New Haven boys were not given a look by either Princeton or Harvard, but since they took the scalps of the Tiger moleskin warriors there are many who are willing to bet that Harvard will have to have its best team ready and fit for the fray at the Stadium. Yale has had a number of drills during the past few days, and, judging by the manner in which the men practice, they are confident of making things mighty warm for the wargers of the crimson. Harvard is in condition, and Coach Haughton and Captain Mahan are confident their team will take Yale into camp and of winning by a big score. The probable lineup of the two team eleven Nov. 20 will be: Yale—Right end, Wiedemann; right tackle, Way; right guard, J. Sheldon; center, White; left guard, Black; left tackle, C. Sheldon; left end, Church; quarterback, Van Nostrand; right halfback, Wilson; left halfback, Bingham; fullback, Guernsey. Harvard—Left end, Soucy; left tackle, Gilman; left guard, Dadmun; center, Wallace; right guard, Taylor; right tackle, Parson; right end, Harte; quarterback, Watson; left halfback, Boles; right halfback, King; fullback, Mahan. MOHR AFRAID OF SHERIFF, FAILS TO BOX IN ELM CITY

New Haven, Nov. 18.—When last hour substitutions at boxing exhibitions are made the prospects are that the show will not be as good as the original program calls for and this was the experience that the New Haven Athletic club of Bill Brown had when the arena last night. The card evidently did not have much drawing power for the attendance was the smallest of the season. The headline bout was to have been 15 rounds at 135 pounds between Samy Robideau of Philadelphia and Walter Mohr of Brooklyn, who has been living in Stratford for some time. Mohr phoned to the management early in the evening that he was sick and could not come here. An announcement to this effect made made from the platform and it was said that Fighting Fitzpatrick would meet Bobby and Jimmy Capper, who was scheduled to meet Fighting Fitzpatrick in the semi-final bout, would fight Chick Brown of this city.

Red Fleming, Football Star, Is Professional

Allentown, Pa., Nov. 18.—M. ("Red") Fleming, Louis Hayes and Franklin Day, members of the Muhlenberg College football team, were barred from all athletics at Muhlenberg yesterday on charges of professionalism preferred by an official of the Catholic University, Washington, D. C. Fleming is a former Washington and Jefferson and Gettysburg star. Fleming, it is said, had been playing Sunday afternoons with the champion Massillon eleven of Ohio. He had been suspected by the Catholic University officials who protested him before the game with Muhlenberg last Saturday. Sufficient evidence could not be obtained against him, however, and he was permitted to play. Last Sunday Fleming, Day and Hayes were reported as being in the line-up of the Massillon team by a representative from the Catholic University, and the matter was promptly reported to Muhlenberg.

EVEN MONEY ON YALE GAME SAYS COACH HAUGHTON

Cambridge, Nov. 18.—Coach Haughton told the students last night that next Saturday's Harvard game was an even money proposition. "These 2-to-1 bets are all bunk," he said. "I want to tell you that the facts do not warrant such odds. It is an even money proposition. Yale has had a poor team this season, but the Bulldog has come back with a rush, and they are all right now, be sure. I have a wholesome respect for Tom Shevlin and his works."

Mike Farrell Winner In Bout At Montreal

Montreal, Nov. 18.—Mike Farrell, one of the boys training at Dan Morgan's camp in Stratford, outpointed Young Costigan here last night in a ten round bout. Farrell had the advantage of his opponent all the way. Joe Smith, who is training strong pressure to place Doolin in charge of his team.

SHORTER TRAINING TRIP RUMOR ONLY JOKE FOR MAJORS

There are two situations in which baseball becomes funny. One is when a minor league meets, and its members assure each other that they must and will observe a low salary limit, and otherwise curtail expenses, writes the tactician in the Detroit News-Tribune. The other presents itself about this time each year, when the big leagues make the annual declaration for a common sense training period in the evening that he was sick and could not come here. An announcement to this effect made made from the platform and it was said that Fighting Fitzpatrick would meet Bobby and Jimmy Capper, who was scheduled to meet Fighting Fitzpatrick in the semi-final bout, would fight Chick Brown of this city.

For several seasons it has been the custom to split the boys into two teams which before the league year opened, jointly played more games than the club had scheduled on the road during the entire championship season, this got little money as most of the route was through territory not often visited by major league clubs. But it did the players no good. So Comiskey, shifting from California to Texas, were there is no great amount of exhibition money, has declared for a 35 days' training session.

DOOLIN MAY LAND JOB AS MANAGER OF THE PIRATES

New York, Nov. 18.—Charlie Doolin may get another chance to make good as a manager in the National league, news from the city comes. He is now tipped as a probable successor of Fred Clarke at Pittsburgh. Though it was reported some days ago that Jack Hendricks was slated to succeed Clarke, members of the New York ball club are inclined to believe that Doolin stands a better chance than Hendricks of receiving the appointment.

OWSLEY ROASTS PRINCETON STAND ON LEGORE CASE

New Haven, Nov. 18.—Coach Jack Owsley, '05a, made an address at the final Yale mass meeting preceding the Yale-Harvard game held at Dining Commons last night, which aroused the gathering to a high state of excitement. He began by referring to the days when he was head coach of Tom Shevlin's eleven, and declared that Tom was the best captain Yale ever had, and the best coach seen in New Haven in many a long day.

"Our Princeton friends," he continued, "thought that by keeping out Harry LeGore they could turn the trick. But they live in glass houses, and who's more they know it. We have overlooked many such similar affairs at Princeton, and look how they have repaid us. I was talking to a Princeton man the other day, and do you know what I told him? I said 'I'd start something down there, before long and finish it. A team made up of men who are bamboozled into coming to college to wait on table at Princeton clubs has got its fatal weakness when it comes to a close mail. They may not forget the signals, but somehow they lose heart.'

WAGNER'S OWN COLUMN

A report in the New York Sun said today that Bridgeport boxing promoters are negotiating for a bout between Harry Pierce and former champion Ad Wolgast in this city Dec. 8. Wolgast would probably want the Russian crown jewels and the Brooklyn bridge as his share of the receipts if he came here.

When President Barrow of the International league returned to New York yesterday from the National association meeting in San Francisco he wasn't so confident that his league could grab Hartford and Springfield. He admitted the territory is protected by the Eastern association and says if the league intends to get out of the International has no chance of getting the territory. That has been Jim O'Rourke's contention all along.

There will be no Yale football captain elected until after Dec. 4 and it is reported that Harry LeGore may get the plum. Representatives from Yale, Harvard and Princeton finish their session in New York by Dec. 1. LeGore is restored to eligibility his chances for the captaincy are reported good.

What will the Fordham faculty do to Dave Duno and Max? If they play with the Annex eleven against the Remington-Arms here Sunday? Several players from other colleges were not even allowed to take examinations because it was thought they wished to enter just to play football.

Johnny Evers says Charley Mullen, who came to the Yankees as a first baseman, has developed into a great second baseman on the cross-country tour of the All-Americans and All-Nationals. "Take my word for it," says Evers in a letter to Manager Bill Donovan, "that in Mullen you have the best second base prospect I have seen in ten years."

Al McCoy and Zulu Kid had been suspended for 30 days by the New York boxing commission for delaying the start of their bout last week. Zulu Kid, fellow citizens, that's a name for a fighter.

The Emblem A. C. will run the December boxing show in this city. The permit has been secured and Kid Williams is busy with the card. Williams couldn't have lost much money on Monday night's show or he wouldn't be toying up so soon.

The reason the Harvard coaches have been keeping Tom Enwright in the backfield all season, was undoubtedly because they feared he might fall below in his studies. He is a great player but evidently not much of a student. Even if he is able at the last minute to square himself with the faculty Harvard can spare him for in Mahan, King and Boles the Crimson has a good backfield.

Despite reports from New Haven that Capt. Mahan of Harvard at one time played summer baseball, it is not believed any action will be taken by the Harvard faculty. Mahan and Capt. Wilson of Yale were in a summer camp near New London last summer. After Harvard's generous stand in the LeGore case, Yale can't afford to go after Mahan's scalp.

There was some talk of matching Walter Mohr with Harry Pierce for the next show in this city but in view of Mohr's action in failing to appear in New Haven last night it is doubtful if local promoters would take a chance on him.

HARVARD DENIES TOM ENWRIGHT IS PUT ON PROBATION

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 18.—Harvard held its final scrimmage for the Yale game yesterday afternoon. The scrub team, which had scheduled a game at St. Paul's School, at the last moment was recalled and went into a short but very brisk scrimmage against the regulars. The coaches allowed no tackling, but the drive was hard on both teams. The scrubs have been working for 10 days on the Yale attack, but were able to do little with it yesterday. The regulars broke through well, and showed that they have learned the defensive assignment lessons.

Gilman and Parson may be shifted, and as the heavy guard, Cowen, will start the game, it will not be known until the last moment whether he will be on the right or the left side of Wallace.

Billy Boles, the regular right half back, was used at quarterback for the scrubs for a time, and McKinlock got into the scrimmage. Boles may displace Watson if the latter is injured, and this would mean that Enwright would go to half back. Enwright was on the field and in togs, and the managers said that they had heard nothing about his being placed on probation, this being one of the rumors that was about the college campus.

Harvard is now physically fit for the game. There will be a short drill today, and then the men will go to Lowell, Mass., to remain until Saturday morning. It has been decided that Taylor will not lead the game at guard, but he is now in shape to enter any time he is needed. Parson and Gilman received a lot of coaching from C. Blagden, the veteran tackle of the 1901 championship team. Parson was the weakest of all the Harvard rushers against Princeton, but the coaches are confident that he will be able to duplicate last year's brilliant game against Yale again this year.
