U.S.S. TENNESSEE ANCHORS AFTER LONGEST CRUISE

Travels 14,227 Miles and Returns to Port in Excellent Condition.

New York, May 18.—After a voyage of 14,227 nautical miles, characterized by officers of the vessel as "one of the most successful ever made by an American war ship," the armored cruiser Tennessee, Capt. Edward L. Beach commanding, anchored in the Hudson river, off Ninety-sixth street, yesterday afternoon. The Tennessee has come here to allow her officers and men shore liberty. The length of her stay at this port has not been determined.

After her long voyage to South America and return, with the American section of the International High Commission on board, the Tennessee is "fit to turn and make the same voyage over again," officers of the vessel said yesterday. There is not a thing out of place on board her it was said. No accident happened to her during the long trip.

One of the features of the voyage was that the Tennessee was the largest vessel to navigate the Panama Canal. Major-General George W. Goethals, builder of the canal, and Capt. H. I. Cone, marine superintendent, joined the party of William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, on board the vessel at Balboa and passed through the canal with them.

"It was a most delightful trip from Hampton Roads to South America and return," Captain Beach said yesterday. "Nothing occurred during the entire voyage to mar the pleasure of it."

With the Tennessee there came first hand reports of the Trinidad and Callao incidents. It was authoritatively stated in neither case was Mr. McAdoo at fault. He acted, it was declared, with tact and good judgment.

His first act when he reached Trinidad was to call on Sir John Channing, Governor of the island. When Sir John failed to return the official call, Mr. McAdoo acted diplomatically in refusing to receive a lesser officer of the colony.

The American section of the International High Commission was prepared to land at Callao and go to Lima, when Peruvian health authorities went aboard the Tennessee when she reached Callao and informed Captain Beach that Mr. McAdoo had there was bubonic plague in the city.

Captain Beach, without offering any suggestion to Mr. McAdoo, issued orders that none of his officers or men might go ashore. Mr. McAdoo discussed the situation with the Peruvian officials and decided that it would be unwise and in violation of the United States health regulations for the commission to land.

Before leaving Callao the Tennessee fired a salute. If the salute was answered by the Peruvian shore batteries, it was not heard on board the Tennessee.

Since March 8 the officers and men of the Tennessee have had only two short shore liberties—one at Rio de Janeiro and one at Valparaiso. During the voyage the usual drills were omitted on only two days—when the vessel passed through the Straits of Magellan and when she passed through the Panama Canal, both of which days were declared holidays.

Officers and men of the Tennessee yesterday expressed highest praise for Mr. McAdoo and other members of the American section of the International High Commission. They declared that it was one of the most agreeable voyages they ever made.

Mr. McAdoo and his party, when they left the vessel at Hampton Roads, presented a motion picture camera to the men.

Among the officers on board the Tennessee other than Captain Beach are Lieutenant-Commander Yancy S. Williams, Lieutenant Thomas Withers and Lieutenant Claud A. Jones. Assigned to temporary duty on board the vessel with the International High Commission were Surgeon D. Thompson and Lieutenant E. M. Parker, naval aid to Mr. McAdoo.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets.

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force their way to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, feeble feeling—like headache—torpid liver, and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from two or three little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep it right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O.—Adv.

EVENING SUN'S FIRST CITY EDITOR DEAD AT 61, ON PACIFIC COAST

New York, May 18.—Allen Kelly, the first city editor of the Evening Sun, and known as a newspaper man from Boston to San Francisco, died Tuesday in Los Angeles of tuberculosis.

Mr. Kelly was 61 years old and a native of Cambridge, Mass. When a young man he went to California and worked for the San Francisco Chronicle and other papers of the Pacific coast. When he returned East he wrote editorials for the Boston Globe. Later he was managing editor of the Fall River Globe.

It was on St. Patrick's morning, 1887, that Allen Kelly made his first appearance in the office of the Evening Sun. Word had gone along Park Row that Amos Cummings was managing editor of Charles A. Dana's new paper and that jobs were open to the right sort of men.

The first man who climbed the antique stairs that scaled the Frankfort street wall of the old Sun building that morning walked into the city editorship. It was Kelly.

"I've got to have a city editor," said Cummings curtly. "Do you know how to be a city editor?"

Kelly said he did know and landed the job.

Kelly was city editor for seven months. He was a small, spare man and somewhat of a Socialist.

Several years later Mr. Kelly again went to San Francisco, spending a period as city editor, editorial writer, feature writer and manager of special editions on the Examiner. Then he was city editor of the Los Angeles Times.

Returning to the East again he served as editorial writer on the Philadelphia North American and when Frank Munsey acquired the New York News Kelly went with that paper.

In 1905 Mr. Kelly went to Australia and New Zealand as special commissioner for the Los Angeles Times to study there experiments in social and industrial legislation.

He was interested in big game hunting and served a term as State Commissioner of Forestry in California. It was Mr. Kelly who trapped in southern California and took to San Francisco the grizzly bear "Monarch," the finest specimen of his kind ever captured. "Monarch" for 20 years was one of the principal attractions for naturalists in the Golden Gate Park.

Mr. Kelly wrote a book on bears entitled "Bears I Have Known—and Others."

He leaves a son, Sherwin F., and his wife, Florence Finch Kelly.
