Husband of Woman Who Shot at Former Boarder Renews Fight

Engaging in heated argument in front of police headquarters after city court had adjourned this morning, the husband of Mrs. Juliet Emeldiuda of 114 Highland avenue and Angelo Gardini nearly staged another episode of the quarrel that has been existing between them for some time and which was brought to a crisis yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Emeldiuda shot at Gardini in an alleged attempt to kill him.

She is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and in the city court this morning Judge Wilder continued the case until tomorrow under bonds of $500.

According to the story told by the husband and wife, Gardini, formerly boarded with them but because of trouble that he caused was ejected from the house. He is at present living on Stratford road but continues to circulate malicious stories about Mrs. Emeldiuda.

Yesterday further reports of Gardini's activities reached Mrs. Emeldiuda and she, in a fit of anger, took a revolver from her coat pocket, fired one shot. Workmen overpowered her before she could use the weapon further but stated that had she been so inclined she could have mortally wounded Gardini.

The story that has been circulated that the husband and wife were separated, is untrue according to Mr. Emeldiuda, who states that they reside at the Highland avenue address with their four children.

Miss Mary E. McCullough, daughter of Policeman and Mrs. Simon H. McCullough, of 98 Milne street, and Mr. Ambrose L. Ashley, son of Albert Ashley, of Center street, were married at 9 o'clock yesterday morning in the 9th nuptial mass at St. Augustine's church, by Rev. James B. Nihil, Miss Margaret McCullough, sister of the bride, maid of honor and John McCleary was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe meteor trimmed with Chantilly lace, and a large white hat. Her bouquet was of white roses with a shower of sweet peas. Miss Margaret McCullough wore blue pussy willow, a leghorn hat trimmed with pink and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley left during the day for Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride traveled in a costume of brown taffeta and a leghorn hat. Both the bride, who has been a stenographer at the Peck & Lines Co., and Mr. Ashley, who is a toy maker at the Bridgeport Brass Co., are popularly known to a wide circle of friends by whom they were remembered with many beautiful gifts of silver cut glass and china.

Richard Copans, who conducts a clothing store at 118 Pacific street, Stamford, filed a petition in bankruptcy today in the office of Referee John W. Banks. He has assets of $4,545 and liabilities of $7,944.47.

COPANS BANKRUPT.

The torpedo boat destroyer Benham arrived in the local harbor yesterday afternoon under command of Lieutenant Commander Gay. The boat will be here about four days after which it will go to Fall River where it will undergo some minor repairs.

KING IS ELECTED TO HENNEY'S JOB

The order was given to clear the aisles at 10:59. At 11 o'clock the aisles still were crowded with delegates who were making every effort to get seated.

There was a noticeable lack of demonstrations for local men. Senator Lodge came quietly in and took his seat. The same was true of Governor Whitman and other well known men.

Chauncey Depew was the first of the well known men to be applauded by the delegations and spectators as he made his way to the first row of the New York seats.

At 11:15 the floor was in as much confusion as before. The band played the "Star Spangled Banner" at 11:25 and everybody rose.

At 11:28 Chairman Hillis brought down the gavel. This brought applause.

The hall was still as Chairman Hillis spoke, saying a quorum was present and the convention would be in order.

Mr. Hillis said: "The hour 11 o'clock having arrived and a quorum being present, the convention will be in order. Paraphrasing a remark made by the late President McKinley, this is a year-anniversary of the truest of past years—when politics is patriotism and patriotism is politics. Therefore, the audience will please rise and sing two verses of 'America.'"

A male quartet led the singing. The voices of the delegates swelled through the big hall in a mighty chorus, almost drowning the band. There was a moment of confusion and the delegates took their seats and the Rev. John Timothy Stone, of Chicago, offered prayer.

There was deep silence as the prayer was read. At his request the convention remained seated. At the end of the prayer the convention was asked to rise and be photographed.

The next proceeding was the reading of the call for the convention.

The hum of conversation swept over the hall again as Secretary Reynolds finished reading the call.

When Secretary Reynolds had finished reading the call, Chairman Hillis presented the name of Senator Warren G. Harding as temporary chairman.

There were no other nominations and Mr. Harding was declared temporary chairman.

The first loud applause and cheers of the convention greeted Senator Harding.

W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Borah of Idaho and W. B. McKinley of Illinois were selected to escort Mr. Harding to the platform.

Applause greeted the mention of all the names as Chairman Hillis announced them. Prolonged applause and cheers greeted Senator Harding as he mounted the platform.

Many of the leaders took the opportunity to confer while Senator Harding was speaking. Applause punctuated Harding's speech from time to time but as a whole the convention listened quietly.

When he declared the country was calling for a Republican administration and when he asked all to forget the inharmonious convention of four years ago, but side party differences and to restore the party. His reference to the need of preparedness for national defense was greeted with a roar of applause.

More applause greeted his declaration that "this is not the time for reconsecration, it is a day of reconsecration."

"I know the Republican party to be genuinely progressive as well as effective," he declared.

"Taking up national defense, Senator Harding brought applause when he declared that there is a call today for prudent, practical, patriotic and ample individual defense."

"We ought to have a navy that will be the best in the world," he declared. When Senator Harding spoke of the tariff, he brought out the most enthusiasm and applause so far. There was another roaring demonstration when he declared that Republican policies promised all the means for the expansion of adequate defense.

"We love peace and justice and we intend to have them," he said, "and we are not too proud to fight for them."

The reference to President Wilson's celebrated remark brought applause and jeers.

Although Senator Harding's reference to the tariff drew applause, especially by his declaration that he believed in a tariff that gave protection and prosperity to America first.

There was more applause when he referred to the war munitions traffic and declared it had produced a prosperity at the cost of human lives.

"It is gold sluice from the river of blood," he declared. When Senator Harding had been speaking just 30 minutes he was exactly half through his speech.

The convention adjourned at 1:25 until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Platform of G. O. P. Will Seek To Gain Roosevelt's Favor

With the members of the committee on resolutions all selected by their delegations, it is becoming evident that the work of the committee as a whole will be one of elimination rather than of construction. Almost every man on the committee is loaded with planks of his own making and many in addition have taken the care of extra declarations for outside friends who feel inspired to outline the policy of the party for the next four years.

If there is one general purpose better defined than any other on the part of the leading members of the committee it is to give the party declaration such a tone that will meet the demands of Colonel Roosevelt and his followers and to this end they have made close study of the Colonel's recent utterances along the lines of preparedness.

"We shall meet the Colonel's wishes in this respect and will endeavor to make the pronouncement so strong that he cannot afford to oppose any man that may be placed in nomination," Senator Smoot, who is in close touch with what is being done toward framing the platform.

"We shall declare for a navy that will be a real protection, both in size and efficiency and up to the latest requirements and for such other military measures as will meet the demands of all emergencies."

Here and there opposition to extensive armament is encountered. The idea of a strong navy, it is thought, will prevail. The committee also will go far toward meeting Mr. Roosevelt's views on the question of national distinctiveness and there will be a strong declaration for Americanism first, last and all the time, at all times and at home and abroad. There will be no condemnation of the so-called hyphenated American in exact terms "but," as a member of the committee said, "it will be possible to read that language into the document."

Radical Bull Moosers Foiled in Attempt To Bring Convention Row

When the delegates were asked to take their seats they did so quickly. Reports that there might be an insistent demand for an immediate nomination of Col. Roosevelt as notice to the Republicans that they could not be ignored was dispelled by a statement issued by George W. Perkins, chief spokesman for the party, who declared that the Progressives were meeting in a conciliatory spirit and would not contain the most massive the possibility of agreement with the Republicans remained.

"Everyone should keep it constantly in mind," he said, "that the Progressive convention is not being held here at the same time as the Republican convention as a threat."

The Progressives feel that the first peace move ought to come from the Republican side and that the Republican convention as a threat.

Like him, snowflakes flecked over the auditorium, were pinned copies of "Teddy" songs to be sung by the delegates. A quartet singing "Teddy" songs from the balcony kept the crowd cheering.

CIRCUS PARADE IS AMERICAS OWN PAGEANTRY

Royalty of Europe Supplanted By Grandeur of Big Show's Spectacles.

Without question the most popular form of pageantry with the masses of the people is the circus parade. It may be called rightfully the pageant institution of this country. In other countries, particularly in monarchies, there is always the pageantry supplied by the coming and going of royalty and the passing of the innumerable and gorgeously uniformed regiments of soldiers, who make up the most standing armies of those countries. In this our own beloved and isolated land, vast as its expanse, there is of course no royalty and there are comparatively so few soldiers that they are almost an unseen quantity in the majority of the cities and towns in the United States, so, the people of the circus have come to look upon the display as the one thing that may be depended upon to supply attractive street display.

The parade given by Barnum & Bailey's Greatest Show on Earth, which comes to Bridgeport next Wednesday, is as a matter of course the largest of circus parades, and not only is it the largest, but it is the richest, most costly and most gorgeous. It may not be known generally that this parade contains the most massive, the most expensive and the most artistic wood carving extant in the United States. Four of the tableau cars represent the four corner allegorical groups that surround the American Memorial, the finest example of statuary to be found in Great Britain, which was erected by the late Queen Victoria in memory of her late Prince Consort Albert. These groups represent Europe, Asia, Africa and America.

That great creative genius of the circus world, James A. Bailey, sent Cox, who for years has been the creator of all wood carvers in America, over to London to copy these groups, which he did with the consent of the late King Edward, and after making his models in clay, Cox returned to New York where he carved the groups out of solid wood. After being carved they were heavily plated with gold leaf. There are also several other specimens of the work of Cox in the parade notably a tableau car representing the United States and bearing the seals of the several states carved by Cox; also an Assyrian car covered with the antique statuary of that first of all civilized countries, and there is also another representing Egypt, whose most distinctive feature is a row of ivory tusks.

Of course, in addition to these there is the great array of golden chariots, animals and domes, the marching bands of elephants and other beasts, numerous bands of music including one mounted on horseback, and then the great assemblage of superbly dressed and making at once the finest horse show to be seen anywhere in America, and all this is free to anyone who cares to look upon it.

Rings on Oyster Shells. A popular theory about rings on an oyster shell being an indication of its age is not supported by the careful investigation of Miss Ann L. Massey, who tested specimens from the oyster station at Ardry, at the head of Galway bay. It has been supposed by many that each ring, or group, on the oyster's deep valve stood for a year's growth. But Miss Massey says that this deduction is not reliable. After a patient scrutiny of over 600 samples of various ages, from eighteen months to six years, she says: "An oyster of eighteen months or two summers appears to possess at least two rings, but may have as many as five. One of three summers has at least two rings and may have six. A four-year-old oyster may have only three rings or may possess seven or eight."—London Mail.

Life of an Arctic Sealer. The arctic sealer has a very hard life. Sealing does not consist only of scrambling over ice fields in search of prey and battling breathlessly and bravely when it is found. There are many incidental hardships to endure.

The usual type of arctic weather is a dense, lung clogging fog, with cold that is enough to freeze a glowing furnace. This fog, strange as it may seem, is oftentimes mixed with cruel blizzards of heavy snow, made more terrible by high and constant gales.

The passing of the snow is usually accompanied by sleet and rain that are more penetrating than snow. Misery, therefore, is not an unfamiliar visitor to the crews of arctic sealers.—Detroit Free Press.

Known by Their Walk. A man's walk is as peculiar to himself as his personal appearance is. So much a part of himself is a man's way of walking, indeed, that it is most difficult to disguise. Many a fugitive from justice who has completely altered his ordinary appearance has been betrayed by his walk.

The peculiar gait of many people often indicates their occupation. The policeman, the soldier and the sailor each has his peculiar walk which betrays him.—Pearson's.

Samuel Susman of 207 Hamilton street was fined $15 and costs for reckless driving on Kossuth street Sunday morning. He narrowly averted a collision with the motorcycle Policeman Gerrity at the corner of Barnum avenue.

Fairfield Couple To Honeymoon In Jail

With iron bars for decorations and hardware for the wedding breakfast, Stephen Staryan, 17 year old, and Elizabeth Hillio, a 15 year old Fairfield girl, were married at the county jail this morning. Assistant Town Clerk Winton performed the ceremony and went through the customary motions of kissing the bride with the case gained only by long practice.

The young couple were recently bound over to the criminal superior court by Justice Bacon Wakeman of Fairfield. It was alleged that Staryan made a serious attack upon the girl. The parents of the pair had a conference and decided that a marriage would be advisable. Attorneys John Smith and James Cummings were witnesses. The husband will have to stay some nights for a little while, anyway.
