INTERNATIONAL EGG CONTEST

The hens at Storrs yielded a total of 3996 eggs in the thirty-eight week of the contest. The Agricultural College pen of "Oregon" from Corvallis, Oregon, were an easy first with production of 61 eggs. Francis F. Lincoln's pen of White Leghorns from Mt. Carmel, Conn., were second with 59 eggs and George Phillip's pen of the same breed from Seymour, Conn., won third place with 57 eggs of 68 eggs. Monday Poultry Yards' pen of Barred Rocks from Springfield, O.; Abel Latham's pen of White Leghorns from Brierfield, England and W. E. Atkinson's pen of Leghorns from Wallingford, Conn., all tied for fourth place with 52 eggs each. There were a total of thirty-four pens, including Barred, White and Columbia Rocks, White Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, White Leghorns, Mottled Javas, and "Oregon" that made perfect individual scores for the week.

During the past two years the Storrs Experiment Station has carried on in Connecticut a campaign against bacillary white diarrhea of young chicks, a disease that is transmitted to the little chick through the ovary of the mother. The Experiment Station has not, of course, undertaken to do this work outside of the state, but the College arranged to have the test made without charge on all birds sent to the laying competition. This test which is known as the agglutination method of determining ovarian infection, involves drawing from the wing vein a sample of blood, but such a small amount that the fowls are not injured nor is their egg yield retarded or otherwise adversely affected. The hens in the contest were tested last week and approximately thirty birds were found to be infected.

The three best pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows: Plymouth Rocks. Rock Rose Farm (Barred) Katoanah, N. Y. 1459 Albert T. Lensen (White) North Attleboro, Mass. 1425 Jules F. Francals (Barred) W. Hampton Beach, L. I. 1416 Wyandottes. Obel G. Knight, (White) Bridgeport, R. I. 1708 Tom Barron, (White) Catforth, England, 1867 Abel Latham, (White) Brierfield, England, 1501 Rhode Island Reds. Pinecrest Orchards, Grotton, Mass. 1454 A. W. Rumery, Danville, N. 1432 Springfield Poultry Farm, Durham, Conn., 1402 White Leghorns. Will Barron, Bartle, near Preston, England, 1535 Francis F. Lincoln, Mt. Carmel, Conn., 1478 Frank R. Hancock, Jacksonville, Vt., 1423 Miscellaneous. Oregon Agricultural College, (Oregon), Corvallis, Ore., 1449 Collinson (Black Leghorn), Barnards, Garstons, England, 1372 Schwarz (Black Rhinelanders), Burlingame, Cal., 1345

CONLIN, TO BE SURE IT'S WARM, BUYS HUGE NEW THERMOMETER

A remarkably large thermometer has been installed by James Conlin, the well known Elm street paint and paper dealer in front of his place of business. The thermometer measures nine feet in height, gradations on the Fahrenheit scale being about two inches apart. A colored composition fluid is used in the tube. Elm street is said to be a hot place in summer and thermometers have been questioned in that vicinity recently. Mr. Conlin said today that he was determined to have an accurate thermometer visible to all and has purchased the new instrument for that purpose.
