—He didn't lose his hat at the Lake this year when he went to the Railroad meeting at Newport.

—The new fence before the Low property, opposite the Trotter House, adds much to the "fixed up" appearance of that section of our village.

—The Bradford Guards, with full ranks, left for Burlington on the 9:30 train on Wednesday morning. The soldier boys made a fine appearance as they marched to the depot.

—By the request of several of the friends in the South of the village, Rev. J. M. C. Fulton will repeat a late sermon, upon Inferior Expedients, in the Town Hall on Sunday next, Sept. 6, at 6 1/2 o'clock, P. M.

—Our town is to be favored on Tuesday evening, September 8, with Haskell & White's Swiss Bell Ringers. This company is a first-class one, having played in the Boston Museum several weeks and received high praise from the press.

—The Bradford Scientific Association will hold its next meeting at the Academy, Monday, Sept. 7, at 7 o'clock P. M. Subject for discussion: "Scientific observations, original and selected, on some of the planets, and on the great usefulness of the telegraph in peace and war." Dr. W. H. Carter and Dr. J. B. Ormsby will open the discussion. Rev. Dr. McKee will read selections from his forthcoming History of Bradford. The public are cordially invited to attend and take part in the exercises.

Election day passed off in this town about as usual. There was much work done by both parties, as is necessary in a town so evenly divided politically as Bradford. The Republicans here as elsewhere in the Second District, labored under the disadvantage arising from the Poland—Denison—Mead—Davenport split, in their ranks, and enough remained away from the polls to allow the election of a Democratic Representative and board of Justices of the Peace. Below will be found the state of the vote in Bradford, as returned by the Town Clerk, J. B. W. Prichard, Esq.

Table with columns for names and votes. Includes Asahel Peck (158), W. H. Bingham (154), D. C. Demison (241), L. P. Poland (82), J. W. Bliss (197), Orin Gambell, Jr. (167), J. B. Peckett (394), D. K. Andrews (197), E. R. Aldrich (198), Cyrus Stearns (200), J. H. Armstrong (199), E. P. Norcross (198), L. F. Hale (167), J. B. Woodward (156), D. T. Pillsbury (171), E. E. Johnson (171), Moses Rowe (167), Geo. Sampson (166), P. E. Craft (164).

It will be noticed that there was much scratching of the Justices' ticket by both parties. There was but little difference between the number of votes cast for county and state ticket.

Mr. Bliss was born in Bradford and has resided here nearly all the time since. He is one of our most enterprising and go-ahead citizens, and the interests of Bradford may be safely left in his hands.

The board of Justices is also an excellent one, headed by John B. Peckett, and will look closely to the welfare of the town.

The Equalization Board which recently assembled at Montpelier, returned the following as the appraisal per acre of lots of land exceeding ten acres, in various counties in State:

Haverhill. Arthur P. Pike was on examination before Agnira Felton, at this place Sept. 1, accused of putting obstructions on the railroad track near the big butments in Haverhill on Wednesday evening, Aug. 26.

Truman W. Carpenter, sworn.—What is your business? I am an engineer on the B. C. & M. railroad. What were you doing last Wednesday evening? Went from Woods-ville to Warren Summit, and from Warren Summit back to Woods-ville. What time did you leave Woods-ville? About eight o'clock. Where did you meet the way freight? At East Haverhill. Did you meet any obstruction on the track? When I came back from Warren Summit, about five minutes of ten I came down to East Haverhill, stopped and took water, then I came to Pike's station and as I went around the curve beyond the bridge leading to Mr. Ayer's I felt the engine and tender jump up, I looked down and saw something under the engine. I told the fireman to put up the brake and I reversed steam.—When the engine stopped I got off and found a sleeper run into the hind end of the tender. I got the sleeper out and then went back and found three sleepers lying between the rails and one that the engine or tender had cut in two pieces. I took the sleeper off the track and then came up to Haverhill and notified Wilson and the section men.

F. W. G. Smart, sworn. Where was you on the evening of last Wednesday? Down to Mr. Pike's. Have you been to work for Mr. A. F. Pike? Yes, sir. Were you with Arthur P. Pike that evening? I was, until about fifteen minutes past nine. What was his condition that evening? He had been drinking. What was his condition at nine o'clock? Pretty well intoxicated. Did he have any liquor with him when you left him? Yes. Where did you leave him? On the bridge that crosses the track near A. F. Pike's house. Where did you go? I went up to the house. What did he say to you? He said it was not very late, no great hurry to go to the house. Stevens started for Pike's house what remarks did Arthur make? He asked me if I would go down a little piece further with him. I told him I guess not, I was going home. He said that he was not going home then; he said that his night's work was not done. Did he swear? No more than by thunder. When was that used? After the expression that his night's work was not done.—Did you observe which way he went? I did not.

Cross-examination. How much liquor did he have when you first met him? I do not know. He got a bottle filled after I met him. He did not use it because it was too strong. How much did he get? One pint. During this time was there any proposition to cut up any slines? No, sir. Do you know the name of the man of whom you bought the liquor? No, sir. Where did you buy your liquor? Went out towards East Haverhill, turned up a road on the right hand side near a school house, went up the hill a little ways, then turned to the left and came to a bridge. We bought the liquor of a man that was there at the bridge. Was there a house there? No, sir.

Stevens, sworn. Where was you last Wednesday evening? At A. F. Pike's on the side track. Where did you leave Arthur P. Pike that evening? On the railroad bridge that crosses the track near A. F. Pike's house. Where did you go after leaving him? I went to bed. What time did you go to bed? Fifteen minutes past nine. Do you carry a watch? Yes. Did you wind it up before you went to bed? Yes, sir. Did he have any liquor? I do not know. Did he have a bottle? Yes. Did he offer you any? Yes. Did you take any? No.

Cross-examination. How long were you together? About an hour and a half. When you started to go to bed how far did you get before Smart overtook you? About two or three rods. Did you hear the remark that his night's work was not yet done? No. Would you be likely to hear it? Objected to. Did he propose to cut up any slines? No, sir. What way did he go when you left him? He went toward East Haverhill.

Frank Silver, sworn. Where do you live? Just by the big butment. Do you know where the obstructions were placed? I do. Do you know Arthur P. Pike? Yes. Did he come to your house last Wednesday evening? Yes. Did he have any errand? He rapped at the door and wanted to come in. Had you gone to bed? I had. How long was he there? About five minutes. What did he say when he went away? You go to hell, Frank. What did you say? I told him that was all right. Did he take away anything that night? I do not know. In the morning I found the cow's calf gone.

Isaac Corliss, sworn. Where were you last Wednesday evening? Out to East Haverhill to hear the band play. Did you meet Arthur Pike when you were coming home? Yes. Did he have anything with him? On the other side of the road was a calf. Did you see him have a horse that night? No, sir. A. F. Pike, sworn. Were you out to this village last Wednesday evening? I was. How do you know what time it was when you got home? A short time before I had bought a clock at Bradford, and I looked at it when I got home to see if it kept good time and I found it had stopped. I thought that I would set it and I looked to another clock and found it was fifteen minutes to ten. Did you see Arthur Pike that evening? I did. Where did you see him? On the bridge as I came up to the house.

Stevens recalled. Did you have any talk with Arthur Pike last Saturday evening? He said that he took a calf from Silver's. Did he say anything about taking a horse? He said that Hatch owed him $1.50 and he took his horse and rode it on Wednesday night.

John T. Ayer, sworn. Where were you last Wednesday evening? I was with a lady by the name of Chase, in the house near the side track which is a little beyond Pike's station as you go toward East Haverhill. Where does your father live? This side of A. F. Pike's, off from the road. State where you saw Arthur Pike that evening. I saw him about half past eight, he was with two other fellows. Did you see him after that? I did. The second time I saw him it was about a quarter past ten. Where was he and what was he doing? I saw him on top of a box car on the left hand side of the high way. What was he doing? He was trying to unwind the brake. Did you go out toward the car? Yes, sir. What did he do? He lay down on top of the car. I did not speak to him before he lay down on top of the car. After he laid down, I said: Hello there, what are you about? He jumped up and got off the car. When he jumped up I said: Hello, Arthur. What did he do? He went behind a pile of boards, and I heard steps on the sleepers, going toward East Haverhill. Where did you go? I went back to the house and staid three or four minutes; then went back to the car again, I jumped through the car on to the track and went home. What did you find on the track? I found a flat stone three or four feet long, three or four inches thick, one foot wide. This was on the track, on the rail. I took it from the track and put it up on the bank. What did you do then? I went along about a rail and a half and found another stone; this was a square stone one foot wide and six or eight inches thick, and two feet long. I moved that stone from the track. What did you do then? I went along to a path that leads up to our house.

Arthur P. Pike was bound over to appear at the next term of the county court to be held at Plymouth. His bail was fixed at $2000.

—Another lot of Hamburgs at Mrs. Stevens'. —Mottos on perforated card board are found at Mrs. Stevens'.

PIERMONT. A little son of Mr. R. A. Evans of Worcester, Mass., was run over and killed by the cars on Friday of last week, at a crossing near his father's place of business. A younger brother was burned to death a few years since in Bel-lows Falls. Mr. Evans was formerly from Piernont.

Mr. James Robinson of Piernont has gone to Kansas, on business connected with the settlement of his son's estate, who died in Hiawatha, that State, last season. His advanced age and feeble health makes the long journey hazardous.

—Fans, parasols, combs at Mrs. C. S. Stevens'. —A new lot of perfumery and hair oils at Stevens'.

CORINTH. The following were elected Justices of the Peace at the recent election: C. O. Sargent; John W. Lobbe; John M. Scribner; A. B. Grant; D. Dowland; A. Met-calf; S. W. Davis.

—Needles, any color or style you wish at Mrs. C. S. Stevens'.

FAIRLEE. According to your Oxford correspondent's eulogy of the young man recently sent from there to Haverhill, Fairlee raises some very clear-headed, intelligent, smart and bold boys. We have some very good men and smart boys here, but we would not claim honor that is not our due. Neither of the young gentlemen referred to by "Clericus" has, or ever had a home or a rendezvous in Fairlee.

—A new lot of kid gloves at Mrs. C. S. Stevens'.

THETFORD. At the election Tuesday the following persons were elected Justices of the Peace: H. P. Cummings; H. Dodge; H. M. Latham; E. F. Fillingim; T. Burr; J. Laird; S. Fletcher. All good Republicans.

—Needles, thimbles, thread, sewing silks, hooks and eyes, buttons, every thing you want you will find at Mrs. C. S. Stevens'.

THE HEATHEN GODS. The Erie (Pa.) Observer gives this extract from a Sunday school address of a pious old man at Pithole: "Children, you are very fortunate in being born in a Christian land. There are thousands in the world not so fortunate. It is peculiarly gratifying to know that you live in that portion of the earth where the rocks pour forth rivers of oil. Now, my dear children, there's Mormons, they worship old Morn; there's the Moham-meds, they worship old Mo-ham; the Heathens, they worship old Heath; there's the Hindos, they worship Hind; and there's the Pagans, they worship old Pag; while here we are worshipping whom we please. Teachers will now hear the classes recite."

MARRIED.

In Bradford, Sept. 1st, by Rev. L. H. Elliot, assisted by Rev. Silas McKee, D. D., Mr. Edward E. Baldwin of Cambridge, Mass., and Miss Caroline M. Prichard of Bradford. In Bradford, Sept. 3, by Rev. L. H. Elliot, Mr. Isaac N. Perkins of Lyme, N. H., and Miss Maria Ingalls of East Constance, N. Y. In Haverhill, N. H., Sept. 3, by Rev. J. Hooper, Mr. T. B. Wallace of Piernont, N. H., and Miss Ada Woods of Haverhill.

DIED.

In Morrisville, August 27th, Edwin Morris aged 56 years, youngest brother of Joel Morris. In West Newbury, Aug. 26, Everett, son of Dudley 2nd., and Martha A. Carleton, aged 3 years and 8 months. Lovely little angel Everett. From our sight she passed away, sweetly as the stars of even. Fade into the light of day. Everett was too pure and lovely, Long to linger here on earth, Where dark clouds of sorrow gather. Over the shades of night were round us, Leaving angels bore him hence; Laid him in the Saviour's bosom, And we would not call him thence. Lovely little angel Everett. We will weep and mourn for thee, Still rejoicing that our darling Is from sin and sorrow free.

Mr. Elliot. Please permit me to inform your readers, in Bradford and vicinity, that another, of our formerly estimable citizens, who removed a few years since into the Western country, has gone the way whence none return. Mr. John B. Ayer, died at Rochester, Minnesota, on the 13th of Aug. 1874, in the 47th year of his age. He had been very unwell, we know not how long, but his decease was not supposed to be so near. On the 21st of July last, about three weeks before his death, he wrote to a friend here that his disease was slowly progressing, and said, "I think I may live till winter; but my physician expresses a different opinion. I have become nearly helpless, on account of my terribly short breath; and then the rheumatism; so that I have not been able to sit up for the last three weeks. Still I am quite comfortable in many respects. That God will forgive my sins, give me a new heart, and prepare me for a better inheritance above, is the daily prayer of your friend, J. B. Ayer." After his decease, Mrs. Ayer wrote, Aug. 16th, "Although we had reason to expect his fatherly blessing, it took us by surprise. He bade the family good night, on Thursday evening last, a little past nine o'clock; and just at midnight we gathered around his bed to see him as it were, fall asleep; for each his dying seemed."

She expresses a comforting confidence that he died in the Lord; prepared, through grace, for heavenly blessedness. He left with his mother, three sons and two daughters; the eldest daughter, Mrs. Chandler, however, lives in Chicago. Mr. Ayer was highly esteemed while living here; and he belonged to a highly respectable and numerous family. In an early age, his principal cemetery may be seen a row of grave stones in memory of his grandparents, his uncles and aunts; of his own mother, of his father, John Ayer, to whose liberality the Congregational Society are indebted for their Parsonage and church bell; in memory also of his lovely twin sisters, Elizabeth and Mary, who died in youthful maturity. All these he remembered with undying affection; and though his own grave was to be far away, made arrangements that these graves of his kindred should be duly cared for after his decease. May his good influence be enduring. Heaven's blessing rest on his Christian household. S. M. K. Bradford, Vt., Aug. 25, 1874.
