

THE LOOM OF LIFE.

All day, all night, I can hear the jar Of the loom of life, and near and far It thrills with its deep and muffled sound, As tireless the wheels go always round.

stuff will be banished from our State and its clandestine sale made a penal offense. If we cannot obtain a law to meet the case of drunkards, we must labor on and never cease until we shall obtain laws that will protect innocent women and children from the insane and cruel treatment of drunkards.

IMPORTANCE OF THE HERRING.—The Gentleman's Magazine has the following remarkable statement in regard to a new use for the telegraph wires:

Had any scientific enthusiast of the last generation announced his belief that the progress of electrical science would directly affect the supply of herrings to those inland Catholic countries where they are—when salted—in such demand for food on fast days, his friends would have been anxious concerning his cerebral welfare.

GAS FROM PETROLEUM.—The erection of works on the corner of New Montgomery and Natoma streets, for the purpose of supplying the Palace and the Grand Hotels with gas from crude petroleum, has created a great deal of interest and no inconsiderable amount of discussion.

CREMATION.—In Italy, where cremation has become quite common, the question has been raised, what shall be done with the ashes of the dead? When cremation was first practiced in this country, there were many humorous suggestions on this sombre theme.

DANGEROUS LIQUIDS.—Ammonia, especially the stronger kinds, is very dangerous, a few drops being enough to injure a person. When used for cleansing purposes, it should be handled with great care, that the gas, which is given off freely in a warm room, be not breathed in large quantities and do injury to the delicate lining of the nose and mouth.

A Western writer calls attention to the fact that the volume of water in the streams of Iowa is much smaller than it was when the Territory was first settled. He states that in the year 1858 steamers made regular trips from the Mississippi River to Des Moines, and that one went up as far as Fort Dodge.

The hardy varieties of grape vines may be pruned on mild Winter days. Large branches which may have become torn from the trellis should be tied up, even if pruning is deferred.

A man doesn't necessarily imperil his immortal soul by eating with his knife, but he stands a fair chance of slitting the top of his head off, besides leaving the impression that he is not posted on table manners.—Steuenville Herald.

Even a deacon won't say grace when he steps into a railroad eating-house. He knows that it would be asking too much to request that he be made thankful for anything he will get there.

A lightning-rod peddler having died recently, his widow had him cremated. She sifted enough brass out of his ashes to make a door-knocker.

Custom may lead a man into many errors, but it justifies none.
