President: Guard, is the Sentinel at his post, and has he in his possession the talisman and pass-words of a friend?

Guard: Mr. President, the Sentinel is at his post.

President: Mr. Vice-President, are all present Friends, and have they in their possession that talisman which entitles them to remain with us and give us counsel?

Vice-President: Mr. President, for myself alone can I answer; of them I know not.

President: Then you will proceed to ascertain by the only true and proper method.

Vice-President: Sergeant-at-Arms and Guard, you will advance and communicate to me the mystic words and display to me the talisman of a true friend.

[The Sergeant-at-Arms and Guard arise from their stations, advance to the front of the Vice-President, give the words and display the talisman.]

Vice-President: Being in possession of the necessary qualifications, you will ascertain if all present are Friends of this Order and justly entitled to remain; you will then return and report to me the result of your examination. Be careful—pass none by.

[The Sergeant-at-Arms and Guard receive both words from every person present, except the President. Should there be any Friends present not in possession of the pass-words, they shall, if properly vouchered for and being justly entitled thereto, receive the same from the Vice-President. After all have been proved, the Sergeant-at-Arms and Guard return to the West.]

Guard: Sergeant-at-Arms, all have proved themselves Friends of this Order.

Sergeant-at-Arms: Mr. Vice-President, all have proved themselves Friends of this Order.

President: To your devotions, Friends.

Chaplain: Oh, Mighty Power, that rules the World; that gave the earth form; filling the heavens with gems that glitten by night, and the light of day in which thou Divine Being that breathes life into the flowers, the beasts of the field, the birds of the air and the fish that are in the sea; Thou hast given us power to understand and wisdom to instruct, so that the wicked in Thy name may not destroy us; Thou hast blessed us with light and truth; Thou hast made all men after Thine own image; no man, by reason of his riches, is greater than his fellow man to Thy sight; for do not all men come into this world through the same laws of nature, formed by Thy power and at Thy command? Do not all at their last hour leave by the same unto death?

Therefore, why should we feel exalted above our fellow-men, when we know Thy will and Thy power? We now humbly come to Thee, not in fear, but in love, craving Thy blessing upon us; while assembled, guide us by Thy wisdom, and may all our works be for Thy glory and our good. Amen.

[The President shall call the Council to order by one rap of the gavel and the officers shall assume their respective stations.]

President: Guard, is the Sentinel at his post, and has he in his possession the talisman and pass-words of a friend?

Guard: Mr. President, the Sentinel is at his post.

President: Mr. Vice-President, are all present Friends, and have they in their possession that talisman which entitles them to remain with us and give us counsel?

Vice-President: Being in possession of the necessary qualifications, you will ascertain if all present are Friends of this Order and justly entitled to remain; you will then return and report to me the result of closer with us for the accomplishment of the purposes of our Order.

Guard: Do you vouch for them?

Sergeant-at-Arms: I do.

Guard: Advance.

[Guard receives the — from Sergeant-at-Arms, and opens wide the door and says:]

Guard: Enter, you have thus far met all the requirements of our Order. [Applicants are conducted to and placed in line in front of the President.]

President: Sergeant-at-Arms, who have you so fearfully brought among us, to disturb our deliberations? Who are these men?

Sergeant-at-Arms: Mr. President, I come believing, trusting and hoping, not knowing, but I most honestly believe, as I have asserted heretofore, that these are some of God's noblest — honest, conscientious men, who love their fellow-men, who are willing to assist a fallen friend; I mean men in whom you can confide and in whom you can place the most implicit confidence. I mean such men as will stop and stoop to assist and counsel a fellow-man in distress, and such I believe these persons to be.

President: Sergeant-at-Arms, I declare you were over-bold to bring these persons here, and they were over-confident to submit so meekly to your guidance. Have a care. You are well aware of the dangers which surround us. Do you know these men sufficiently well to continue this journey and assume the responsibility of so grave a charge?

Sergeant-at-Arms: They have been well vouchered for and have passed the secret ballot card. I am willing to assume the responsibility. "As I would that they should do unto me even so do I unto them." And in my firm belief in their integrity, do I again recommend them to your consideration.

President: 'Tis well. We accept your plea in their behalf, and vite indubitably they be who would betray such confidence as yours. Bring them hither.

SECOND OATH.

[To candidates:] Place your left hand in that of your guide, your right hand upon your heart, say I, pronounce your name and repeat after me.

I —, do most solemnly promise and vow that I will always deal justly with my fellow-man, that I will measure out to him his equal and just portion of that which belongs to him of right to demand of me, that in the relations of life I will be just and equitable, as an employer or employee, as a counsel, or as a judge, or as a jurymen, or in the capacity of an arbitrator; in any and all of these will I be faithful and do and perform to the utmost of my ability, so help me Most Merciful God, and may he measure out to me as I do to others, with his keenest vengeance, should I knowingly or unwittingly violate this solemn obligation. Amen.

President: My friends, this is the Department of Justice. If there is anything in the proceedings of this Order thus far which you do not conscientiously approve, you are at liberty to retire. We feel safe to trust you, for you are surrounded by whom you know not, those who will always be present with you and you know it not; therefore, if you desire, you are at liberty to go. What will you do? Is it your desire to advance? [Candidate answers:] 'Tis well. Go with the Sergeant-at-Arms to the next department, where more and severe pledges will be required of you.

[Candidates are conducted to the Secretary of State.]

Sergeant-at-Arms: Mr. Secretary of State, I am directed to present these aspirants to you for further consideration and trial.

Secretary of State: My friends, I bid you welcome. But before you can be admitted, I must require you to assume a solemn and binding obligation, such as we have all taken. You say I, pronounce your name in full and remain silent.

THIRD OATH.

I —, do most solemnly promise and vow that I will not make known to any one in the world, anything I may hear, see or discover in this order, unless directed by proper authority to confer this degree or communicate this work to a regularly organized and recognized body of the same, and neither to any of them unless duly advised of the genuineness of the body to be so instructed.

That I will, to the best of my ability, preserve the purity of the ballot at any and all elections; that I will discountenance frauds and impositions by arts and tricks upon the people.

That I will maintain a rigid enforcement of the principles of honor and honesty against political usurpation and oppression; that I will maintain and defend the government of the United States in which I live against foreign invasion, against a foreign foe, national or ecclesiastical, against rebellion, treason, or the foes of good government. That I will forever renounce and abjure any foreign power, king, prince, potentate, or ecclesiastical power, whereby the same may in any way conflict with my rights as a citizen, or my rights of conscience, and, if need be, I will take up arms and, by opposing, end them. I further thermore promise and swear, I will ever make it the aim of my life to keep the Church separate and distinct from the State. [Candidate repeats.]

To all of which I do most solemnly promise and swear, so help me God, Amen.

My friends, if there is anything in these proceedings inconsistent with your conscientious belief as Christians or as citizens, or as honest men, you are at liberty now to retire, but remembering the obligation, you have taken. What will you do? Do you still desire to advance? It is well. You will now be conducted to the Chaplain for further trial.

[Are taken to the Chaplain, on right of President.]

Sergeant-at-Arms: Worthy Chaplain, I come to you for counsel, bringing with me — friends, in whom I have great confidence, and I feel I will find favor in your sight and that you will deal by them only as you have by us.

Chaplain: Sergeant-at-Arms, I am pleased to hear so favorably a report and the confidence with which you make it. [To candidate.] Place your right hand on your heart, repeat your name and remain silent.

THE OATH WITH THE STING.

I do most solemnly promise and swear, that I will not allow any one a member of the Roman Catholic Church to become a member of this Order, I knowing him to be such; that I will use my influence to promote the interest of all Protestants, everywhere in the world; that I will not employ a Roman Catholic in any capacity, if I can procure the services of a Protestant; that I will not aid in building, or in maintaining, by my resources any Roman Catholic Church, or institution of their sect or creed whatsoever, but will do all in my power to retard and break down the power of the Pope; that I will not enter into any controversy with a Roman Catholic upon the subject of this Order, nor will I enter into any agreement with a Roman Catholic to strike or create a disturbance, whereby the Roman Catholic employes may undermine and substitute the Protestants; that in all grievances I will seek only Protestants and counsel with them, to the exclusion of all Roman Catholics, and will not make known to anything of any nature, matured at such conferences; that I will not countenance the nomination in any caucus or convention, of a Roman Catholic, for any office in the gift of the American people, and that I will not vote for, nor counsel others to vote for, any Roman Catholic, but will vote only for a Protestant; that I will endeavor at all times to place the political positions of this government in the hands of Protestants. [Repeat.]

Chaplain: Sergeant-at-Arms, you will now conduct them to the Vice-President.

Sergeant-at-Arms: Mr. Vice-President, I present you these friends, to receive and try by instruction as to the necessities and purposes of our Order.

Vice-President: Now let the darkness be dispelled. Remove the cloud, that the light of reason may dawn on their vision.

[Hoodwinks removed from candidates.]

Behold, how glorious it is to be relieved from the pressure of a mental darkness, groping we know not whither! My friends, it is one of the purposes of this Order to awaken the citizens of this country to the fact that they are blindly allowing the papal power to gain absolute control of our educational institutions and State and general government. Even now we are in bondage through the terrible influence which the Roman Church wields over this continent. Let it be your duty to assist us in bringing all to the knowledge of the danger, which menaces our free institutions.

[Candidates facing Vice-President. Here may follow extempore speech by the Vice-President.]

Vice-President: Sergeant-at-Arms, you will present these friends to the President, for final test and instruction in the covered work of this Order.

The "covered work" is the most sacred part of this despicable organization. The President delivers his final instructions in language substantially as follows:

"You have been brought in here under a delusion. You expected you were joining the order of the A. P. A. Did you not? I will now disabuse your mind that you have not joined the order of the A. P. A., but that you have joined the order of Ammor-sens, which is name of an old and ancient order of similar objects. Should any one accuse you of being an A. P. A. you can make an affidavit that you are a member of no such order."

[Here the altar service is given.]

President: Place your right hand on the assumed emblem of the Roman Catholic Church, your left hand upon the Book of your faith and repeat after me.

CURSING THE POPE.

I hereby denounce Roman Catholicism. I hereby denounce the Pope, sitting at Rome or elsewhere. I denounce his priests and emissaries and the diabolical work of the Roman Catholic Church, and I hereby pledge myself to the cause of protestantism to the end that there may be no interference with the discharge of the duties of citizenship, and I solemnly bind myself to protect at all times, and with all means in my power, the good name of the Order and its members, so help me God. Amen.

Instructions: To gain admission during the session of a Council, you will approach the outer door and alarm the Sentinel; to him you will give the term word, which is —; you will then approach the inner door and give — raps, which will be answered from within by the same; then, if in order, the wicket will open, and to the person in charge you will give the permanent word, which is —, and means —; for whatsoever measure you mete shall be measured to you again; being admitted you will approach the altar and facing the President, will give this sign —; he will respond thus —; then facing about you will give the Vice-President the response and he will give you the sign thus —, when you will be seated. If you should desire to retire during the session, ask permission, and, as on entering, give the sign; if responded to, you may retire. Voting sign is thus —. The grip is made with the — hand thus —. You will now be seated.

CLOSING.

President: Secretary of State, what tidings have you from the Department of State?

Secretary of State: Mr. President, the State has suffered at the hands of dishonest and disreputable men, who have attained their high position by imposing upon the credulity of a trusting people, but they are becoming aroused to the fact and now the halls of State are becoming purified and the unworthy lawmakers are being set aside by the great will of the people; but still we want more honesty and manhood in the high positions of the State.

President: Chaplain, what cheer from the Church?

Chaplain: The light of the dawn has begun to beam upon the children of men, and my brethren can now see more clearly through the darkness that has enfolded their vision as in a cloud, error and blind superstition are being scattered by intelligence, and a knowledge of the light that illumines the pathway of truth is fast leading to a full understanding of the symbols, dogmas and creeds of an ancient mythology. Home no longer, as of old, in the New World controls the free action of mind and conscience; but the fettered intellect is casting off its shackles, and declares a freedom to live with God and not an oppressive and arrogant priesthood.

President: All hail the glad tidings! And so goes on the reformation. Justice, too, is asserting herself. Though blinded these long years, she now casts aside the hoodwink and looks upon the wrongs to right them; stretches forth the sword to protect the weak and the innocent, to sustain in the right the down-trodden, elevating and nobbling the principles of the first of these to all justice. It grinds exceedingly slow, but the final product is sure. And by the law shall the people be made to rejoice, rather than by going about mourning all their days because they sought and found it not perfect. Mr. Vice-President, heard you not the glad tidings from State, Church and the Place of Justice? What will you do that we do to show our appreciation of these coming changes?

Vice-President: Mr. President, wisdom suggests that we be not flattered by the outward show of a reformation; and being instrumental in bringing it about, we feel a pride, and it puffs us up and we become vain. Let us commune with Duty and ask guidance, light and protection.

Friends: To your devotions.

Chaplain: Most Wise Designer and Maker of all that is, give us wisdom to understand aright the things we should do; guide us by Thy silent counsel as we go forth from this place to mingle with the pretenders of Thy love, protect us from the evil influences of our inborn passions, give us light to
