

Stetters Trade Lovers. Chicago Tribune. Henry Dipcomb, a well-to-do farmer near Malinta, O., has two fair daughters, Frances, aged 21, and Mary, not quite 19. They were admired by all the young swains of the community, but two young men from Fulton county, Frank Benson and David Rendice, became the acknowledged suitors and favorites of the lassies several months ago.

The young men have been close chums from boyhood up and it was only natural that when they became betrothed to the two Dipcomb daughters they should exchange confidences, and in time the four young people decided upon a double wedding. The wedding was to take place on Thursday evening and the young men armed with their licenses, but in appearance shortly after noon, Frank Benson was to marry Frances, while Mary was the promised wife of young Rendice.

Frances greeted the young man gamely when they arrived at the Dipcomb home, but Mary was not to be seen. Her sister later on found her in her room, weeping and disconsolate. Appeared to her for an explanation, she at length confessed between sobs that she could not marry Rendice, because she loved Benson better.

The other sister replied that she loved one of the young men as well as she did the other. Mary hinted at an exchange and the two sisters confidently talked the matter over. Then, without a word to the old folks, they called the young men into council. The consternation and surprise on their parts can well be imagined. The situation was carefully discussed with the astounding result that the exchange was agreed to all around. Then another complication presented itself. The licenses had been procured, but the young men were quickly on their way to the county seat, where new licenses were secured and they reached the Dipcomb mansion late in the evening, when for the first time, the guests were acquainted with the cause of the delay and the real situation at the two couples were united in marriage by a local minister.

Lemons as Medicine. Lemon juice sweetened with loaf or crushed sugar will relieve a cough. For feverishness and unnatural thirst soften a lemon by rolling on a hard surface, cut off the top, add sugar and work it under the lemon with a fork, then suck slowly.

During the warm months a sense of coolness, comfort and invigoration can be produced by the use of lemonade. For six large glasses of lemonade use six large, juicy lemons, roll on a hard surface so that the juice can be easily extracted. Peel and slice. Add sufficient sugar to sweeten and stir it well into the juice before adding the water.

Hot lemonade will break up a cold if taken at the start. Make it the same as cold lemonade, only use boiling water instead of cold water, and use about half as much sugar. A piece of lemon or stale bread moistened with lemon juice, bound on a corn, will cure it. Renew night and morning. The first application will produce soreness, but if treatment is persisted in for a reasonable length of time a cure will be effected.

The Coming Century. Judging by the progress of invention, the coming century will give to life all of the material comforts and happiness that any reasonable mortal could ask. At least the workers in natural science are doing their part nobly. All of the forces of nature are being subdued to the use of man. The Patent Record, the mouthpiece of modern invention, told in its last issue something of the vast possibilities of liquid air. Now it has to tell of wireless telegraphy, and an invention by a French savant, Mr. Georges Joubert, capable of restoring to vitiated air its original life-giving qualities. With four pounds of it a man could live for twenty-four hours in a box hermetically sealed. With this submarine navigation would be easy. Firemen in metal helmets could walk through fire and smoke unharmed. Miners imprisoned thousands of feet underground could breathe as freely as in the open fields. It is one of the great discoveries of a century wonderful in invention. More is promised in the future.

For irrigating large areas of desert lands along the Nile. It is considered quite probable that an American company will get the contract.

PRESIDENT AS A SMOKER. Uses the Finest Tobacco, but is Thought to be Overdoing it. Variety of Tobacco—Vuelta Abajo. Size of cigar—Imperial Perfecto. Price, each—$1.50. Number per day—7 to 10. Boxes per year—73. Length of cigar—5 1/2 inches. Circumference—2 1/2 inches. Weight per hundred—2 pounds. Reason for smoking—Neuralgia. Result of over smoking—Sleeplessness, nervousness.

President McKinley has become an inveterate cigar-smoker. He smokes the finest Vuelta Abajo leaf and his cigars are made to order. This is the favorite tobacco of the Prince of Wales, who pays a manufacturer of Havana $1.50 per cigar for the brand. The President is liberal in his distribution of his cigars. He gives them to his friends and smokes them himself. His physician has decided that as a result of his indulging in cigar smoking his nervous system is becoming affected. The President begins his day's work by smoking a cigar, and it is one of the last acts before finishing his work at night. The cigars which friends are sending him are made of the finest leaf grown in the province of Pinar del Rio, long celebrated for excellence of flavor.

Mr. McKinley averages ten cigars a day. This would not be excessive were the cigars small in size, but the President's friends send him the largest perfectos.

The President is a judge of a good cigar. Mr. Buell, who went to Porto Rico with the army, brought home some cigars which he presented to the President. General Francis V. Greene, when he returned from Manila, also brought some high-grade cigars from the Philippines.

The Northern Pacific Railway Company holds 260,778 acres of land in Stevens county. Pat Darling was fined $230 by a Walla Walla justice of the peace for tearing down a fence. Government employees at the Point Wilson fortifications now work 10 hours for a day's shift. The Spokane racetrack has been abandoned and has been donated to the city for park purposes. Robert Kennedy sold 20,000 bushels of 1898 club wheat at Walla Walla Wednesday for 49 cents a bushel. A heavy decline in the price of logs is expected on Gray's harbor. The supply greatly exceeds the demand. Of the 120,996 persons in the State between 6 and 21 years of age, only 35,000 are members of Sunday schools. An infant was found in a basket the other day on the steps of the public school at East Peone, near Hillyard. A new relief corps has been formed in Seattle to look after the welfare of the soldier boys now at Manila. The name of the new organization is the Fortson Relief Corps. The corps is named after Captain Fortson, of the Washington regiment, who died in the Philippines.

Contracts for the sale of the 1899 hop crop are being made by Eastern buyers with Puuyallup valley growers. The price runs up to 1 1/2 cents per pound, though the half-cent is more often left off. A number of contracts are on file in the County Auditor's office at Tacoma. A Self-Steering Bicycle. Chicago Chronicle. A bicycle without any semblance of a handle bar, but which is steered entirely by the motion of the rider's body, is the invention of Simon Metzger, of Lima, Ia. In the construction of this machine the stem of the steering wheel is supplied with a rearwardly extending stay, having a spring causing it to bear slightly on a support. This pressure is sufficient to hold the wheel steady, but not great enough to interfere with its free motion, so that it yields to every motion of the body. The fork of the front wheel is turned slightly under instead of outward, and the steering wheel is slightly smaller than the other, whereby the guiding of the machine is rendered more easy. The stay is also in cases of a sudden emergency.
