METEOROLOGICAL

Spelt are running in countless numbers and the fishermen are scooping them up by the sea-fall. At this season of the year they are fat and delicious.

Capt. Tow has bought the new steamer Northern Light, a 14-mile passenger boat, 120 feet in length, but has not yet announced the service she will perform.

A Bible student says that if Ananias and Sapphira were alive, today, they would stand appalled at the stalwart falsehoods that adorn the columns of the Tacoma Ledger.

W. H. Bennett has been vested with authority by Sheriff Billings to look after the interests subserved by the Rod and Gun Club at Sherlock, in preservation of game.

The city will receive bids till next Monday for building a four-foot sidewalk from Long Bridge to the West-side mill, an improvement lately ordered by the City Council.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clark greeted Mr. and Mrs. Rosenbaum, of Canby, Oregon, who were on their return home from the East and old-time friends of host and hostess.

Maple Park Horse Co. hold a dance this evening in Grand Army hall, at which a small admission fee will be charged to obtain funds for improvement of the company's equipments.

It is worth the time and pains for anybody to go across Long bridge and see a train load of logs tumble into the bay. There is now a daily train of monster logs from the Black Hills district.

Wm. McGowan, employed as knee-bolter in the Richardson shingle mill, met with an accident Wednesday, whereby the flesh of his arm was badly lacerated from a rapidly revolving saw.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. George, of Chicago, called west to attend the marriage of their son a few days ago in Seattle, and before returning home came to the capital, were for a time guests of J. O. B. Scobey and family.

Miss Lulu Eckert left for South Dakota, Monday, to complete a course of instruction in the State University. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. E. Horton part of the way, to her home at Lynden, N. D.

The new government tug Gen. J. M. Wilson came up Monday, in command of Herbert F. Beecher, to take Capt. Harry Taylor, in charge of the government dredging in this city, to his official headquarters in Seattle.

The effort to admit Mow Goe's sons, on the ground that they are natives of this country has been successful, and although nearly all their childhood has been spent in China, they are now "alle same Melican man."

Misses Anna and Mary Shields will leave to-morrow to resume their positions as teachers in the Cosmopolis and Shelton public schools which begin next Monday. Miss Anna goes to the former place and Miss Mary the latter.

H. E. Davis owns a prune orchard of 800 trees near the college grounds at West Olympia, which are in an exceedingly thrifty condition. He reports the loss of but one tree in 200 during their growth so far, which is a splendid showing.

The Fort Angeles Tribune-Times gathers from non-official reports of the locating engineers of the Fort Angeles Eastern Railroad, that the route will probably follow the line of the water-front of Hood's Canal, from Quilcote to the foot of the canal.

The steamship Walla Walla left the Sound for San Francisco to-day, an Olympia passenger by her being Alex. M. Thompson. The next steamship for that destination will be the Umalla Wednesday, with Mrs. Grace Metler as a passenger from this place.

Nearly all the familiar landmarks of the Barnes residence block, on Fourth street, are changed. The hedge rows have been removed and the outbuildings all changed from their original sites, making a complete metamorphosis of this once charming home.

The steamer Aberdeen met with a severe scorching at Ballard, the other day, from a fire in a mill, near which she was lying undergoing repairs. The damage is considerable and will necessitate her remaining in retirement a week or more longer than was intended.

One of the neatest salesrooms in the city is that which is to be occupied by J. E. Dailey & Co., with gentlemen's furnishing supplies, in the Turner building, corner of Fourth and Main streets, lately purchased by Mr. John Byrne. Read their advertisement in this issue of the STANDARD.

William Bricker, of Boone, Iowa, is a guest of Aaron Hartsuck. Mr. B. is a farmer by occupation, and although he happens to visit this State when the seasons seem to be far from usual conditions, he has seen much to favorably impress him with its resources. The best evidence of this is that he thinks of making it his home.

Gotfeldt & Bennett have just returned from the Fraser river, where they completed a very lucrative season in fishing for sockeye salmon which were sold to the canneries in that section. The prices for these fish ranged 30 cents down to 15 cents each. They will now engage in fishing at Johnson's point for a Seattle firm.

The Carlton House has been engaged, this week, by commercial travelers, representing almost every department of trade. The typical drummer is always at home with Mr. Gimblet. As one veteran puts it, "I always like to take in the Capital city, just for the sake of stopping at the Carlton, even if I do not secure an order from any of the business men of this sprightly town."

An effort is to be made to supply the city cemeteries with water by digging a well and pumping therefrom by windmill. A much better plan, and one involving no risk of failure would be, we think, to place a ram at the Deschutes falls and run a small pipe to an elevated tank at the cemeteries, from which pipes could be laid to hydrants at convenient points for hose connections.

Robt. Cunningham, Aaron Royce, W. E. Minter, Win. Hall, W. Whitthorne and Chas. R. Wilcox are additional recruits enlisted this week for the Thirty-fifth regiment. The latter closes a well established barber's business in this city, but he has been promised the position of regimental barber in the 35th, which is a "pick-up" of considerable importance, averaging four or five times as much as his pay as soldier.

It is a good thing for our city that the proposed M. E. excursion to Seattle has been abandoned. It was to have been a two days' affair—going one day and returning the next, thus affording 24 hours for visiting bargain counters and spending money that had better be kept at home. The steambot management wisely, we think, placed the round-trip fare at a figure that precluded a speculative interest on the part of excursionists, and that ended the matter.

There is nothing in our exchanges over the route played by the Shirley Co. but unstinted praise of the band and company, collectively and individually. It has played in first-class theaters and return dates in many instances, as it does here. There is not a play on the repertoire for the week but what will prove a delight to our people and is worthy of a full house. The public will note that the prices of admission charged here are less than in Tacoma or Seattle—the best seats selling at 50 cents in both those cities.

John Lowe, charged with assault and battery had a trial before Judge Schomber, this afternoon. Defendant and his wife have separated and are living apart. The assault consists in his persistent efforts to force himself into her presence whenever he gets under the influence of liquor, a very common proceeding with him. He then breaks into her domicile at the east end of the N. P. tunnel and makes himself peculiarly objectionable, and it is to restrain him from such visits that he has been held to answer for assault.

W. L. Bowen, of Spokane, and Miss Edith Cavanaugh, of this city, will be united in marriage at the family home, corner of Union and Franklin streets, Wednesday, and leave by the afternoon train for a bridal tour in Eastern Washington. Mr. B. is a civil engineer on the Great Northern Railroad, and the bride a daughter of our popular Postmaster, W. T. Cavanaugh. The best wishes of the STANDARD go forth to the young couple on this joyous occasion. May their pathway ever be strewn with the brightest flowers of affection, and their life be one of continued peace and happiness.

William Scottland, a stranger to this community was taken into custody, Tuesday, by Sheriff Billings and after an examination before Judge Linn was committed to the asylum at Ft. Steilacoom. The unfortunate man is a German by birth, about 35 years of age, and his hallucination is that the Governor of Oregon is his Nemesis and constantly searching for him to inflict torture. As he had been an inmate of the Oregon asylum a year or more, and was recently discharged therefrom, it is probable that this fact associates the executive with his incarceration and consequent pursuit.

The Baptist church people have waxed defiant even in the face of an overruling Providence. Having postponed their down Sound excursion several times on account of stormy weather, they proposed to go to-day, rain or shine, sink or swim, survive or perish—and go they did. Their last, unique dodgers are couched in the following positive terms: "Going! Without standing upon the order of our going. This time there will be no postponement!" This reminds us of the preacher who denounced to his hearers that there would be services "next Sunday if the Lord is willing and it don't rain. But, beloved brethren," he added, "there will be services Sunday after next, whether or no!"

Death of Jacob Ott.

The sudden death from apoplexy of the pioneer, Jacob Ott, leaves another vacant place in the rapidly shortening line of those who stood the brunt and burden of western civilization. Sunday morning, the announcement of his death sent a thrill of anguish through the hearts of all who had known him so long and so well. He died with scarcely an evidence of the approach of the dread messenger.

Mr. Ott was a native of Switzerland. He was born Feb. 28, 1825, and came to this country in the flush of manhood, in 1850. From New York he went to St. Louis, and in 1852 journeyed across the plains for this coast. Mr. Ott came to Tumwater, where he settled. He was a carpenter by trade, which avocation he followed till the decline of life ended his more vigorous labors. He moved to this city in the 80s and up to the time of his death his residence here was continuous. He was of a retiring disposition, never seeking nor holding public office of any kind. He was married in 1869 to Miss Elizabeth Ott, a namesake but no relative, and three children were born to them, all of whom survive—Henry, Walter and Gertrude. Mr. Ott died possessed of considerable property in this city.

The funeral rites of deceased took place at the Presbyterian church, Wednesday afternoon, at which Rev. Mr. Shaw, of Tacoma, conducted the services. A large attendance of citizens testified to the esteem in which deceased had been held as well as their deep sympathy with the bereaved family.

STATE NEWS.

parties who agreed to support him for the rest of his life. His failure to do so caused him to become dependent and finally to take his own life.

A burglar going about his business on a bicycle is one of the newest things in criminal life at Seattle. He entered a house late Saturday night, but made so much noise that he awoke the people. He was in such a hurry to get away that he forgot his wheel.

Patrick Clark, the millionaire mine owner, closed a deal at Spokane the other day, whereby he becomes the owner of a fraction less than a controlling interest in the Traders' National bank, the oldest banking institution in Spokane. No figures are given.

Lee Won, a Chinaman, was murdered in Chinatown, at Walla Walla, last Sunday. According to Chinese testimony, a white man wearing an old brown coat, blue overalls, and a light soft hat, entered a Chinese house in the alley and made a disturbance. A woman made an outcry. Her man came, and tried to eject the white man, who drew a knife and stabbed the Chinaman in the neck, making a large irregular hole. The Chinaman ran across the alley, 20 feet, and fell dead. The man ran down the alley and disappeared.

Mrs. Beste, keeper of a Palouse boarding house, publicly horsewhipped a man who goes by the name of "Scotty." The whipping was the result of a quarrel over a board bill which "Scotty" refused to pay. Mrs. Beste is a powerful woman and agitated the whip vigorously, and "Scotty" was forced to beat a hasty retreat. As he was doing so Marshal Woodward arrested him for disorderly conduct. He was convicted and fined $10 and costs, which he refused to pay, and now languishes in the city jail.

Several prune buyers have been in the Yakima valley for the last few days, and have been offering growers from $12 to $13.50 a ton for their shipping varieties on the trees, and 30 cents to 35 cents a box packed for shipment. A number of the largest growers are urging others to hold out for higher prices. They say that prunes should bring 1 cent a pound this year on the trees, or 50 cents a crate packed. There is a very large crop in Yakima valley and the fruit is of unusually excellent quality. The crop will be ready to pick next week.

The Puget Sound Oyster Company has bought about 1,500 acres of oyster bed land near Union City, and is planting it to native and Eastern oysters. The land is at Tahooya, in Anas bay, at Hoodport, Carman's spit, and near the Narrows. The company has bought all the land suitable for this purpose, which has not been reserved by the State, and has already planted five tons of oysters at Tahooya. J. W. Alexander has charge of the business there, and the Scotch-American Investment Company is behind it.

Frank Dupea and William Coates met with a hair-raising experience late Saturday night as they were returning to Gig Harbor from a hunting trip in the woods back of Olalla. Just as they turned a particularly dark corner of the road a big black bear loomed up in front of them, holding out his long paws as if to invite them to a collar-and-elbow bout. Both boys fired their guns point-blank at the bear's splendid front, and ran. In about an hour they cautiously reconnoitered the road, but except for gore and tracks leading off into the darkness there was no sign.

That you will live longer and die happier by preserving than by eating? That you can preserve that equanimity in no way so well as to have a good and constant supply of DRY KINDLING by which to start up a roaring, crackling fire, to heat the room or make the kettle boil? The household happiness—your meals well cooked—your stomachs satisfied—then contentment reigns, and "A contented mind is a happy life." Well, all this by way of promise to the staid, that you can obtain refuse shavings—made, as it were, at Mr. Richardson's angle mill, at 65 cents for four bunches (100) which is cheaper than you can take your hatchet, go into the woods and cut "pre-lick."
