The famous Duller farm has passed into the ownership of George Milton Savage, he being the mysterious purchaser for whom Mayor Carlson was negotiating. This fact does not in the least lift the mystery from a very queer proceeding.
The County Commissioners have bought a mile of way across the land of Thomas Kearney, to afford a thoroughfare for people living about Oyster Bay. The right to the road cost the county $250, and compliance with the condition that it be fenced.
Plans of Garden Park and Capital View additions to the "City Beautiful" were filed this week by the Olympia Development Co., on some of their Westside acreage. It will be well known that the company is an enterprise they have certainly started out well.

The Seattle scalpers who made a raid on the wolves on Hawk's prairie, Sunday, were unfortunate in not finding Reynard at home, or so much at least as to be visible to the hunters. P. F. Harvey, of this city, presumably attained the apex of earthly bliss, Monday, by closing an attachment for Miss Maud L. Moon, of Lands, Oregon, and a G. G. Sawyer, acting as executive officer. The mystery is now cleared regarding the injury to Thomas B. Sullivan, who for several days was in a comatose state and unable to give any account of the cause of his collapse, evidently from a severe blow on the head. He is now so far recovered as to be able to state the probable cause. It seems he was seeking employment at the West side mill and while standing near a blow along the back struck him a blow along the back of the head. He suffered no ill effects for several hours afterwards, but when he then became

MR. ISRAEL'S DOGS WIN
NEWS OF THE STATE.

The best dog-show ever held in Seattle—and the State for that matter—was held last week, and the matter has a special interest to our people from the fact that Mr. Geo. C. Israel's Sound End Kennels brought home three trophies and two beautiful cups won by his fine line of bull terriers.
The Times has this to say of the matter:
It was the old story of Richard Harding Davis' yarn. The "Bar sinister" with the bar left out, in the bull-terrier class, when South End Tobacco defeated his daddy, Woodlawn Gladiator, who, until this show was held in his class, Woodlawn Gladiator is owned by George C. Israel, a well known Olympia lawyer, who owns the South End Kennels and breeds fancy bull-terriers, as a diversion. The terror South End Tobacco is familiarly known as "Toby" and next to him on the benches lay his daddy, Woodlawn Gladiator, the winner of many a cup. In this story the bar which is the dominant note of Davis' story must be left out, for the pedigree of the winning pup is of the purest and most aristocratic. Nevertheless, "Toby's" victory was not less astonishing than that won over the champion bull-terrier in the novelist's story.

"Toby" is a pup of nine months, but large for his age. He is owned by W. W. Reed, of this city, and was bred by Israel, who showed Woodlawn Gladiator in the open class. Gladiator is a magnificent specimen of the fighting pure white terrier, but age has put banishes off his jaws and when he went up against his little, slim, long-nosed son Toby there was a contest in which all the other bull-terriers in the class had no look-in.
Three cups were won by "Toby" and Mr. Israel will go back to Olympia sorry that his long career, but not sore, as the kith and kin of his own pet carried away the blue ribbon in the open class.

Strawberry Growers Meet.
At last Saturday's meeting the strawberry growers ordered their constitution printed for distribution, and appointed a committee to get prices on the berries and to study development work and projects. The party will meet at Kansas City Monday, June 1, and go through Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, and other States interested in irrigation. The railroads will furnish free transportation, the Congressmen to pay their own expenses.

CROP BULLETIN.
Following is the crop report furnished the STANDARD by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Seattle station, for the week ending April 17th:
The past week was one with cold nights, with frosts on the 10th and 11th which were generally harmful, but they are thought to have killed pruned and cherry blossoms in some localities. There were showers on several days, but there was a general deficiency in the usual amount of rainfall, which, however, is not harmful at the present time.
The weather was very favorable for spring work, such as plowing, harrowing, seeding and planting. It was not favorable for the growth of grain and grass, although the cool nights have made growth somewhat slow. Winter wheat improves slowly, and its present condition is very satisfactory. Considerable early sown spring wheat has come up, and only seed some warm and moist weather to make it grow rapidly. Spring wheat sowing is nearly completed, in all except the late localities. Barley and oat sowing are also well along, except oat sowing in the low lands of Skagit county, where it is not half done. Potatoes are not very far along with potato planting. Some early potatoes are up, but are not growing rapidly. Early gardens are in a satisfactory stage of progress.

The steamship Olympia is boycotted at Honolulu, and her cargo of coal from the Sound found no sale, not a bid being submitted by auction. This is owing to the report that she would carry back a load of Japanese laborers, and she will probably have to return with the coal or find a market elsewhere.
JAMES GOUBY, an Indian, has carried his case to the U. S. Supreme Court for a decision as to the right to tax lands granted by patent to him by the general government, in former limits of the Puyallup Reservation.
THERE is a prospect of trouble between Japan and France, over alleged violation of neutrality in allowing a portion of the Russian fleet to coal at Kamran bay. A demand for explanation is couched in terse language.
