

LITERARY LOG ROLLING.

How Some Famous Authors Sought to Advertise Themselves.

The examples cited by Francis Griffith in his article on "The Literary Log Rolling" in the Strand Magazine...

And finally there was the case of Dumas, of whom it may almost be said that his whole life was an advertisement...

THE TAXIDERMIST.

He Stretches Animal Skins Over Plaster Recently a prominent taxidermist of St. Louis was taking a party of his customers through his establishment...

"Madam, we do no stuffing here. We stretch our hides over plaster of paris forms. The day of stuffing is past, and no up to date establishment does it."

Lincoln tried his last case in Chicago. It was the case of Jones versus Johnson in April and May, 1920, in the United States circuit court before Judge Drummond.

WHAT TRAIN DO YOU TAKE?

In Writing Give Its Number, Name of Road and Time of Arrival.

When you telegraph a friend the next time you are going to visit him and that you'd be delighted to have him meet you at the train the next day...

If the money, irritations and disappointments of the year were aggregated for the United States in hopelessly unintelligible telegrams of this kind, the average political economist would have a fit.

Will have for Chicago tonight on 8:30 train. Meet me.

This is the text of a ten word message which I received the other night from a friend in another city. He had started for Chicago before the telegram was received by me, and while I wanted immensely to meet him at the station...

Ordinarily no possible further information is necessary in the greatest railway center in America. The train number is unchangeable on its own system.

IRRESISTIBLE SLEEP.

An Experience in the Fierce Cold of Tierra del Fuego.

"Whoever sits down," said Dr. Solander to his company among the hills of Tierra del Fuego, "will sleep, and whoever sleeps will wake no more."

HE WANTED REST.

What Verdi Did With the Key of a Locked Piano.

Not all the great composers have courted the constant adulation of the world. Verdi used to lament that he was unable to find a refuge, even for a brief space, from the reputation that preceded him wherever he went.

THE POOR CAT.

One Occasion When the Animal Did Not Come Back.

When the cat did the whole family went into mourning, figuratively if not literally. No common back door cat this, but one that must be buried with all honor.

Some one proposed cremation, but this was rejected on the ground that it sounded too much like lynching. It was finally proposed that the feline who had to cross a forty every day to his place of business, should drop to overboard, and as a burial at sea rather than appeal to the sentimental attitude of the family this idea was received favorably.

The following morning the remains of the cat were made into a package and securely tied. It was a lovely day, and the ferryboat was crowded with passengers, and what had seemed so simple at home assumed unexpected difficulties in the face of a curious crowd, ready to imagine anything and to put the worst construction on an apparently mysterious action.

He waited until the boat was well out in the stream and then, glancing around furtively, laid his hand on the package. Suddenly it struck him what would seem strange in broad daylight would seem doubly so at night.

With a smothered groan he replaced it on the seat beside him. There was no help for it - he would have to carry it home again.

When he reached his house he threw it down on a chair in the hall and went in to supper. In the middle of it the maid came in and asked how she should cook the meat he had brought with him?

"Meat?" he exclaimed. "That isn't meat! It's..."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Drinking Excuses. Excuses for drinking are always at hand. Here are the five familiar ones:

Good wine, a friend, or being dry. Or let us should be by and by - Or any other reason why.

If they don't suffice one can always fall back upon Dr. Sam Johnson's "He who makes a beast of himself gets rid of the pain of being a man."

On the other hand, here are three reasons, one of them cogent, that a Bostonian gave for not drinking:

"First - I can't drink. For I've just lost a near relative. Second (when much pressed) - No, I really can't. You know I'm president of a temperance society. Third (when he was much more pressed) - No, I can't. I've just had four or five cock-tails." - Boston Globe.

Shopping in London. One of the first things an American man or woman rushes out to buy in London is a serviceable well cut mackintosh, and the second article that is purchased is usually an umbrella.

Here is a mixture of kingdoms, if not of metaphors, taken from a history examination paper: "He stretched his sultry length beneath the ewe tree's shade."
