Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Kirk left this week for their home in Missouri after an extended visit to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Martensen.

Silas Randall, formerly of this city, and Miss Beatrice Buddington, of Tacoma, were united in marriage in that city Monday.

Laas Korvall, of Tumwater, died Tuesday after a brief illness, from pneumonia. He is survived by a wife and five children.

Mrs. M. J. Vertrees, who has been spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Mary Johns, left Monday for her home in Kansas.

J. W. Lyons has been named for permanent Secretary of the State Railway Commission, a position he held "temporarily" two years.

G. M. Miller died at St. Peter's hospital of dropsy, Wednesday. He came over from Oregon a month ago. A daughter of deceased lives in New York.

Mrs. Thomas Casey is seriously ill at St. Peter's hospital, following an operation for appendicitis. She is the daughter of T. H. Safley, who resides on Eastside.

The steam tug Estella has entered the field here for general towing and jobbing. Captain E. W. Peterson has charge of the boat and promises prompt service at reasonable rates.

The wife of Henry Whitaker, of Mud Bay, who is seriously afflicted with inflammation of the stomach, is undergoing treatment at the home of E. Borner on Plum and Third streets.

Railroad assessments will be the subject of consideration by the State Board of Equalization to-morrow, and a full representation of those corporations is expected to be present.

The death of J. D. Bond, Tuesday, adds another fatality to the list of injured by the Shelton fire. Samuel Holt, however, whose name was among the dead, is reported alive and well.

Tenino is to have a new stone building to be occupied by a State bank. It will be 22 by 60 feet in size, one story in height, and next to a store 40 by 60 feet, for Campbell & Campbell, also of stone.

Jacob Hanna, who has spent about a year in the office of Dentist Van Buskirk, left Wednesday for Philadelphia to take something like a post-graduate course in dentistry, in the University of Pennsylvania.

A. H. Chambers, Will Hopkins, Brad Hill and C. M. Hartwell were called to Tacoma as witnesses in the "Celebrated Case" of the Green Stamp Company vs. Geo. A. Mottman, on trial this week in the Federal court.

George V. Lyda and Fred Roseman were fined $10 and costs Monday by Justice Giles, for killing a quail out of season and W. R. Richel was subjected to the same penalty for killing a Chinese pheasant, prohibited by law.

Misses Marie Roth and Flora Schively went to Tacoma, Wednesday, where they will attend the Annie Wright Seminary.

Preston M. Troy, our respected townsman, was elected Grand Orator of the order of Native Sons, at their 17th annual session, lately held in Port Townsend.

The hull of Weston's new boat, the Olympia, built by Crawford & Reed of Tacoma, has arrived and is moored at Hor's dock. It is 60 feet length, 16 feet beam, and it is stated will have 80 horse power.

Mr. Holthausen's auto ran out of gasoline four miles from town Wednesday and his owner had to plod to town in the car for more oil while his wife sat patiently in the machine and waited his return. They changed their minds and went to the races by train.

George E. Filley and wife leave today for the Eastern cities, for business and recreation. Mr. Filley thinks that with his wife along he will be able to pick out a line of holiday goods that will please everybody and be the best assortment ever offered in this city.

J. H. Norris, a former realty dealer of this city, is over from Vancouver where he is engaged in the same line of business. He says that many of the pieces of the railroad bridge across the Columbia and much of the road-bed of the Portland and Seattle railway are in place.

It is said that what has been known as Dolleny's Point has been platted into town-lots, a hotel erected, and the wharf built when it was the prospective city of Harriman, extended, and that very soon ground-flood lots of a prospective city will be placed on the market.

A daughter of Thomas Gerlike, Bertha, aged 17, of Rainier, died of diphtheria Monday and was buried the succeeding day. Three other children of the family are ill, one dangerously from the same disease. The stricken home has been quarantined by Dr. Bridgford.

That peaches may be successfully produced here is shown by some fruit grown upon the Burton place at the foot of Washington street. Some of them attained a circumference of nearly twelve inches and the smaller ones measured nine inches. They were seedlings at that, but of the Royal George variety.

David W. King, the play-writer and author, of New York, once editor of the Oregonian, was on a visit to his old stamping-ground this week. He will return to the Empire State in November. He is now engaged in the dramatization of "The Way of the Man," now running as a serial in Outlook, for Emerson Hough.

It is alleged that gold-bearing rock assaying $46 per ton has been found in the vicinity of Grand Mound prairie, eighteen miles south of this city, and that already forty claims have been located. A portion of the alleged find extends over the holdings of Mr. E. N. Sargent, who has taken steps to protect his interests.

A. Cole, the well-known florist, whose specialty is dahlias, has gone to Pennsylvania to buy stock, and especially of that flower. His assortment of 125 varieties of it was decimated considerably last year by frost and other causes, and his purpose is to make it even better than it has been. He will be absent several weeks.

Mrs. May Connolly was installed as Past Noble Chief of the Pythian Sisterhood at a session held Tuesday night, which was followed by a banquet. It was announced that the order would give a hall early in the fall season, and Mrs. Thos. Connolly, Mrs. Jas. Brewer and Mrs. C. Will Shaffer were appointed a committee on arrangements for the event.

It is said that watermelons cannot be successfully grown in this State west of the mountains, but it has been demonstrated by W. H. Lee, of Bush Prairie, that as luscious and sweet samples of that delightful product can be grown in the district that produced the world-prize wheat, as in California and Eastern Washington, both of which are famous for their melons.

There should be no hesitation about removal of the storage-place for explosives beyond possibility of danger to life and property. The building erected for that purpose at least half a mile from the nearest inhabited building of any sort. It is already provided by ordinance that powder or dynamite shall not be stored within 900 feet of any other building.

The Equal Suffrage Club, Mrs. Mary Hayes McElroy, president, met on Saturday last, at the office of Rev. Mrs. Lake, on Fifth street. Several suggestions, pertaining to the work in hand, were discussed, one new member added, and others promised. Time and place of next meeting will be announced later, as also the date of the State Convention, which is to be held in Seattle during this month.

A grand concatenation of the Hoo-Hos of Oregon and Washington was held in Eagles' hall, Monday night, under the patronage of the Standard. A banquet was held after initiatory ceremonies at the Mitchell hotel, where that prince of good fellows and most illustrious cat, Frank B. Cole, officiated as toastmaster. It is safe to say that under his delicate and refined management, congratulations were sent to a concatenation being held simultaneously at Atlantic City, N. J., and its support was asked in securing the annual concatenation for Seattle in 1909.

The Gospel Mission was saved from a probably a disastrous fire last Wednesday night. It was occasioned by a heap of smouldering rags, near a stove in one of the rear living-rooms. It is charitably stated that it might have been ignited by a spark from the stove, but the frequency of these fires is about as suggestive as the experience of a quarter of a century ago, when a score of men stood guard nightly to discover a fire-bug, who they caught finally, and found to be one John Keenapple, who was allowed to go and never returned. He has kept the compact, but a still safer way was suggested and voted down by a close vote.

The Daily News blossomed Sunday morning, with eight large pages of interesting reading and a generous supply of those sinews of war, live advertisements. It was not under-estimated that it had been a bud of promise that had aroused a lively expectancy. Its patrons were not disappointed, either in quality or quantity of matter presented. It is now their duty to keep its roots in nourishing soil, carefully watered, and the bugs picked off its foliage. The blessing of the oldest paper in the State is bestowed upon this latest venture in journalism, with the hope that it may prove a success commensurate with its usefulness.

The Aves is enterprising enough to publish in connection with a picture of the High School building another one, which it declares was the first school building in Olympia. A portion of the building stands near the old-time Wood's brewery, on Fifth and Columbia streets, and had been originally used as a cooper-shop. Really the first school taught in Olympia was by A. W. Moore, in a small one-story building on Columbia and Third, opposite the blacksmith shop, a part of which still exists. It was then in the midst of the aboriginal population, whose wigwags covered several acres of the area on which the Carlton House was built.

There were 1,100 pupils in attendance on opening day of Olympia schools, and it has been subject to a steady increase ever since. In the domestic Science department, just instituted, are fifty girls, under tuition of Miss McCann, a graduate of the State College, and instructions in plain cooking and serving will be given them soon as equipments are placed. The Manual Training department under direction of Prof. Briffett, will open next Monday, or as soon as its equipment arrives. It is claimed that these pupils, under instructions, will be able to manufacture benches for their own use at an expense of about $2.25, that cost in the market five times that amount.

If there is any one incident in life which makes the heart of a pioneer bound with joy, it is to meet an old-time friend, after the lapse of many years. This was the experience of the writer, yesterday, when he received a visit from Fred S. Lawson, of San Francisco, who was an Olympia boy twenty-seven years ago, while his father, Capt. J. S. Lawson, was in charge of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, having his headquarters in this city. This was afterwards transferred to San Francisco, and the family, so well known to the pioneers, became residents of the Bay City. "Fred," as he was always known, in those days, grew up with the leading city on the coast, and now has an office at 515 Market street, where he is engaged in railroad promotion and management. He retains the same cordiality of disposition that characterized him as a "boy" and manifests that warm friendship that has not been dimmed by years of absence or circumstance. There are many former associates, whose hearts have been more rapidly while turning back with him the pages of time in reviewing the incidents of happier youth, or as the cheer chances would express it, of "auld lang syne." Capt. Lawson died in 1893, and his wife about a year and a half afterwards. Fred will visit Seattle before his return.

KILLS CLEMATE.—One of those unfortunate occurrences against which it seems at times impossible to make adequate provision, took place at the Stellacoom asylum, Sunday night. Thomas W. Brown, a cell-mate, killed Ed. Artola, by choking and pounding him on the head, apparently with his fists. Brown was committed from Tacoma about a year ago, and Artola was sent up from Snohomish county in 1904. The victim was about 37 years of age.

SANTA BARBARA AGAIN ON THE ROCKS.—The steamer Santa Barbara seems to have had bad luck. She ran on the rocks after entering Active pass, Sunday night, but no fears were entertained for her safety as the pumps were keeping her afloat and the weather promising fair. A tug has been sent to her relief, however, from Seattle. She was on her way to Catala, with 1,000 tons of railway supplies.

Request for Settlement of Accounts. Owing to the complete loss by fire of my shop and business, I find it necessary to ask all those owing me to kindly settle their accounts without delay. I make this request for the reason that I must proceed at once to re-establish my business and will need every available dollar for this purpose. T. J. McBRIDE.

THE Seattle Republican says that the trial of Chester Thompson cost King county nearly seventeen thousand dollars. And it cost also the life of one of its most talented and respected citizens.

PENITENTIARY Warden Kincaid has resigned, to "accept" a better offer in a private business. He has taken a position as Assistant Superintendent of the Portland and Seattle Railway.

It is said that a hundred trees were shattered and two cattle electrocuted on Vashon Island by lightning, Tuesday, during a fierce electrical and rain storm.
