Suit to condemn lots 1 and 8, block 9 of Swan's addition, owned by Herman and Ruth Meyer, was brought in the local superior court this week by the Olympia Terminal Railway company.

Frank M. Kenney, cashier of the Olympia National bank, returned the fore part of the week from a two week's trip through Yellowstone National park, in company with Leopold F. Schmidt and a party of friends. He reported all of the stage coaches gone through the park now have an escort of soldiers, as a result of the recent hold-ups there.

The question of the legality of the city's 1913 tax levy was raised again when suit was filed in the local superior court this week by Frank C. Owings against Thurston county and Treasurer W. H. Britt to recover $65.81 in taxes which the complaint alleges were in excess of the legal amount due, on the ground that the 1913 levy of 17.35 mills exceeded the amount permitted by law.

The public service commission has set for hearing eight cases involving the elimination of dangerous grade crossings, under the act passed by the last legislature. This procedure follows an extensive investigation in the field by special engineers of the commission, who have been working in conjunction with the county engineers and the engineers of the railroads affected.

Fires recently completely destroyed the Emil Smith home on the Westside, just west and above the Buchanan mill, the loss being about $1,000 with no insurance. Only a part of the furniture was saved, this being done by several employes of the Buchanan mill who boarded at the Smith home.

Under the 1913 law, it is unlawful to hunt ducks or other migratory game birds through the use of decoys, according to statements made this week by Leslie H. Darwin, state fish and game commissioner. He has also ruled that blue grouse cannot be hunted until September 16 instead of September 1.

Mrs. Sarah Ross of Alameda, Calif., who visited her sister, Mrs. J. V. Yantis of this city, for three weeks, has gone to Oregon to visit relatives there for a while before proceeding to her home. She went via Tacoma, being accompanied to that city by her niece, Miss Anna Yantis.

"Alaskaland" is the title of a new book just issued, written by Mrs. Isabel Ambler Gilman, who at one time lived in Olympia when she was the organizer and first president of the Thurston County Woman's Educational club. She was admitted to the bar here and practised law in Seattle and at Petersburg, Alaska, but for the last two years she has been in the government school service in Miss Etta McGlynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. McGlynn of this city and sister of M. J. McGlynn, will be married next Sunday morning at St. Michael's church to Phillip Jenovich, the ceremony to be performed immediately after the 8 o'clock mass.

The two lots on the northwest corner of Sixth and Washington streets, formerly owned by Mrs. B. B. Eugley and Mrs. Belle Willey, have been bought by Millard Lemon, who thereby became the owner of all the property on Sixth street facing Capitol park.

Two new residences, each to cost $2,500, will be erected on two lots at the northwest corner of Twentieth and Main streets recently bought of Mrs. Belle Willey by C. O. Johnston of Colorado, who has been in Olympia for some time with his family.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Cook, mother of Willis D. Cook of this city, who went to Victoria last May to visit her son, Charles E. Cook, died there a week ago last Sunday. She had been ailing for the last two years. Mrs. Cook came to Washington in 1902 with her son Willis and lived in Sequim, Wash., and other places, finally coming to Olympia with him. She is survived by her two sons, a daughter, Jane C. Dewey of Victoria, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Helps You Rest

A glass or two of good mild beer with your evening meal or in the hours of rest before bedtime is a positively useful pleasure.

Such beverages when moderately used, especially if the use be regular, enable the wearied brain to pause and rest while filled with pleasant and inspiring thoughts—true recreation.

This preparation for the duties of the coming day is economically good, both for the individual and for society.

Keep a case of mild, light Olympia Beer in your home and prove for yourself whether what we say is so.

RACE FOR CONGRESS TO BE SOME FIGHT

inent state official who has known Drury a quarter of a century, in anticipation of the results of the coming campaign, said after seeing Drury off on a campaign trip over the south half of the district:

"The best way on earth a man can advertise himself is by doing things. Drury knows this and that's the reason he keeps his eye on results and not on men. We who live in this district care nothing particularly about the personality of our representative. What we want and what the people intend to have hereafter is a congressman from Southwestern Washington who can do things at Washington.

Southwest Needs Real Congressman. "The Southwest of this state is one of the newest sections of the United States. Like a youngster in swaddling clothes it needs help from a paternal government. And our government at Washington is the most generous and munificent giver of any government on earth. Had you ever thought of that?

"Why, then, have not the new and growing communities of Southwestern Washington been getting the help due them? The great and only reason is that the congressmen this district has been sending to Washington have not had political sagacity. This is the reason why I intend to support Drury, and it is the reason why thousands of other votes of business, professional and laboring men in this district will be counted for him.

"Southwestern Washington has been playing a losing game at Washington. The men we have there fishing for us have either used the wrong kind of bait or else they are naturally poor fishermen. Drury is a skillful angler. Travel, wide experience in business, and a knowledge of men and the ways of the world have given him what the successful citizen everywhere today has—many diverse points of contacts, different methods of approaching hard tasks, and thoroughness and exactitude in detail.

"It is a man of this spirit, aggression and power that we need in congress, and, take by word for it, this district will send Drury to Washington this fall."

Many persons who read the first two numbers of the spoke of how it has taken hold to assist the development of business and farming in Olympia and Thurston County.

If you looked into the July and August issues, we are confident that they interested you.

The Journal is just one result of our intention to do everything we can toward the creation and conservation of wealth in this community.

If you do not receive the Journal, you are surely missing something helpful that will cost you nothing. Just give us your name and complete address.

PINE GROVE.

This community has been so busy fighting fires for the last two weeks there has been no time for anything else to happen. Some of our fires have been started maliciously and it will be an unhealthy job if the culprit is caught at it. Probably the buildings of R. G. Esterly, C. Callahan and William Elckhoff have been in the greatest danger so far.

Mrs. Robert Whitham has been sick for a long time. She had improved some but for the last three weeks has been worse again. A son and his wife have been making them an extended visit this summer. Their home is in Seattle.

Will Cassell is working for A. Dawson.

The J. N. Wiseman family visited their daughter, Mrs. Elmer Pease, of Little Rock one day this week. She has been sick for some time.

E. W. Andrews, president of the Seattle National bank, organizer of a bank in Olympia in 1890, going to Seattle two years later, died there very suddenly from heart failure Monday evening. He was one of the prominent financiers of the state and a close friend of the late Jacob Furth.
