

SUBSTITUTE RATIO LESS.
Food Administrator Reduces Requirement to One-Third, Due to Shortage.
 "On account of the shortage of flour substitutes and until the market is replenished in the state of Washington, the quantity of substitutes required to be sold with flour has been reduced to one pound of substitutes to three pounds of flour," Food Administrator Charles Heberd notified Joe Reder, Thurston county administrator, this week.

 "Merchants will be permitted to sell flour in 49-pound sacks to consumers in cities and towns."
 The food administration requests that all effort possible be made to supply the state with the required substitutes to permit the sale of one pound of flour with one pound of substitutes as soon as possible. Millers are being urged to increase their supplies of one-eighth barrel sacks in order that flour may be distributed in that quantity.

ASKS SUBMISSION OF BONDING PLANS

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD WANTS TO PASS ON ALL ISSUES OF SECURITIES.

"The committee hopes that before offering for sale stocks, bonds, or notes * * * of states, counties and municipalities of $250,000 and above, advice will be sought from it as to whether such sale at the time will be held to be compatible with the public interest."
 This is one of the statements made in a letter received this week by F. M. Kenney, cashier of the Olympia National bank, from Paul M. Warburg, chairman of the capital issues committee of the federal reserve board, in which he outlines the policy of that board with reference to the issuance of securities during war time. Similar letters are being sent to every bank in the United States.
 "Any unnecessary use of credit, says and weakens the fighting strength of the nation," the letter says. "Credit improperly granted not only wastes to that extent funds that should be made available to the government, but misdirects at the same time the use of labor and material which should be devoted to national purposes."
 The letter goes on to say that the federal reserve committee "expects whenever necessary, to call upon the chairman and governor of each federal reserve bank for a local investigation and report, authorizing them to invite, from a list to be approved by the board, not more than three men likely to be able to give expert and judicial advice in the case, to join with them in particular examination and report."

In this connection, Mr. Kenney points out that the state highway commission of Oregon has adopted the policy of conferring with the federal authorities and not authorizing any road work until after the government has investigated each improvement and given it approval.
 Upon receipt of a telegram from Chairman Warburg, in which he said that his committee "holds to the broad view that no expenditures should be made at this time except those that are clearly compatible with and essential to national welfare as distinguished from local interest," the Oregon commission, at the request of Chairman John Perrin of the federal reserve bank at San Francisco, is preparing triplicate statements regarding the location and extent of highways to be constructed, for the information of the federal reserve board. All construction is held up pending the board's decision.

In speaking of the situation at a meeting of the commission, W. L. Thompson, one of its members, said: "The bond buyers have notified us that until the road projects for which bonds are to be sold have received the approval of the federal authorities, they will not be interested in bidding for these securities."
 "The government will apply to its program of post-road and forest-road construction the same policy of curtailment it has asked the state to pursue," Mr. Thompson added.

HANNAFORD RECOVERING FROM SERIOUS INJURIES
South Bay Farmer, Caught on Engine Flywheel, at First Thought Fatally Hurt.
 Caught on the rapidly revolving flywheel of a gasoline engine with which he was operating a grain grinder, Frank Hannaford, a well-known South Bay resident, was whirled about the shaft until his heavy mackinaw and other clothes were torn from him and he was thrown to the barn floor, sustaining injuries which until Tuesday it was feared would be fatal. He is now reported to be recovering.
 The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon of last week at the George Stearns farm, where the Hannafords have been living in the absence of the Stearns, who are visiting in the East. Mr. Hannaford was in the barn with his little 3-year-old boy at the time, grinding grain. After the accident he was able to drag himself to the house before he collapsed entirely.
 His injuries consist of two broken ribs and a badly battered and bruised body. His condition remained very low until Tuesday of this week and Dr. F. A. Longaker, who is attending him, feared he had suffered internal injuries. He has since begun to improve, Mrs. Hannaford reports, and is now expected to recover. With Mrs. Hannaford at the time were her mother, Mrs. P. A. Robbins, and sister, Mrs. Mary Swafford of Tolt.

SHIPYARD STRIKES IMPERIL SOLDIERS

SO CHAIRMAN HURLEY OF SHIPPING BOARD TELLS CARPENTERS IN EASTERN YARDS.

Addressing the striking carpenters in two Eastern shipyards, Chairman Hurley of the United States shipping board said:

"While the people of this country are mourning the loss of the brave young Americans in the Tuscania horror—while thousands of American homes are anxiously watching the lists of survivors slowly coming in to make certain that another precious life has been snatched from the Atlantic ocean—a telegram comes and with it the grim announcement that carpenters in shipyards are now on strike.
 "Before any government agency is given an opportunity to act, and despite the good record of our adjustment board's promptness and fairness in dealing with all labor matters, you attempt to paralyze the shipbuilding industry at the port of New York.
 "Do you realize that you are adding to the fearful danger our soldiers already face, the danger of starvation and the danger of slaughter if food and ammunition are not sent over in ships and in many ships at once?
 "Do you think the fathers and mothers whose sons are making this sacrifice will sit patiently by and permit this paralyzing of the life line between us and the western front to go on?
 "Will you take my friendly suggestion and go back to work at once? The machinery for dealing with all your demands and with the right of labor is at hand. You will be well-advised to follow the methods of well-managed and patriotic labor organizations, at least until you have tested whether or not your government, for which as shipbuilders you now are working, can be fair.
 "I advise you to end the paralyzing of the shipyard work now. I am sure you believe with me that those whose sons are now giving their blood, that you and I and our children may be safe and free, will not long permit either you or me to invite destruction of heroic lives and disaster to a great world cause"

 Another Son Enlists.
 W. T. Drips received word this week that another son, Will E. Drips, a senior at the University of Wisconsin, has enlisted as a second class seaman in the naval reserve force and expects to be called into service April 1. He expects to take the examination for officers, after a course of training at the Chicago naval station.
