CHURCHES HOLD UNION SERVICES AT HIGH SCHOOL

Bishop Keator Delivers Address on Pronouncement of Lambeth Conference.

The union services of the churches of Olympia at the High School Auditorium last Sunday evening were attended by a splendid audience and the address by Bishop Keator was a masterpiece of timely discussion of modern times. The address was based somewhat upon the pronouncements of the Lambeth Conference in London the past summer, a meeting at which all the bishops of the Anglican church were in attendance.

Owing to the results of the war and the entirely new conditions created by it, the conference endeavored to prepare the church to meet its obligations to the public and thus perform its duty to mankind.

Bishop Keator is a logician and a keen observer of men and of social tendencies. His address was therefore startling in some of its statements and conclusions, but so faultless was his recital of facts and deductions therefrom that he was most convincing.

Selfishness and Force caused the war. Not all of these evils were in one nation—though we are apt to say that one autocratic nation caused the war. The same evils of selfishness and force cause all disturbances in the industrial world.

Fellowship is the real secret of human life. Fellowship which God first and then with man. The failure to have fellowship with one another always follows the failure to have fellowship with God.

The Commandment "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy might . . . and thy neighbor as thyself" is the answer to all the modern chaos in the political and industrial world.

Those who talk of going back to normal are prating idly of an impossibility—pre-war social structure was destroyed and we perforce must look for the coming of a new day.

He gave a definition of the practice of democracy, as follows: "To do justly, love mercy and walk humbly." The key to the industrial situation is the restoration of fellowship. The stewardship idea of the ownership of property was enlarged upon. Property, he said, belongs to men only so long as they are using it.

Pay for service must include respect for the man who does the service.

Industry is and ought to be a fellowship between employers and employed. No man has a right to take human life and use it as a machine to grind out more dollars. Neither has a labor organization the right to force more than they can give in return. The first principle the church must insist upon is brotherhood.

Democracy is not a form of government it is a spirit; the right of man to live a life up to the best of which he is capable.

Human life is of vastly more importance than property. Neither capital nor labor has right to control regardless of the other.

These were some of the salient points brought out by the masterly address.

The union service was presided over by Rev. R. H. Edmonds, president of the Ministerial Alliance. The music by the high school orchestra was directed by J. G. Gerwick, and congregational singing was from hymns printed on the programs.

Rev. R. Franklin Hart of St. John's Episcopal church, Rev. Charles True Goodsell of the First Baptist church, Rev. A. H. Lathrop of the First M. E. church, Rev. F. B. Huffman of the Christian church, and Rev. T. H. Simpson of the United Churches also had part in the services.
