ALBANY.

Rev. Mr. Watson, from Bangor Theological School, is at present filling the congregational pulpit in this place. There were six persons baptized and fitted with the Freewill Baptist Church East Albany, Sabbath before last.

The F. W. Baptists at East Albany have engaged the services of Rev. C. F. Griffin, a graduate from Bates' College, Lewiston, Me. He will commence the third Sabbath of this month.

The Sabbath School Concert at the congregational church on Sabbath evening, 7th, was rendered particularly pleasant by the presentation, by the Superintendent, Mr. Geo. Hill, in behalf of the members of the school, of a nice concordance of the Holy Scriptures, by Mr. Philander Sawyer, in consideration of his being the originator of, and a faithful and earnest laborer in the congregational sabbath school of this place. A beautiful and fitting reward; yet how blessed a thought it is that our Father has promised to reward his faithful laborers with the palm of victory, the crown of glory, and the inheritance of eternal life in heaven.

Byron Moore had an unwelcome visitor last Monday, in the shape of a streak of lightning, which, after throwing several bricks across the street, came down the chimney of his store and dwelling house, went behind the counter, rattled among the lamp chimneys, visited the family in the kitchen who were at the table, ripped up the zinc under the stove which was well nailed down, within 5 feet of the table; tore a hole through the floor and lightened in the cellar, came up and pretty thoroughly ransacked the house, going into five rooms in all, making its exit through the side of the house. No one hurt.

BARTON.

See advertisement of C. & P. R. R. in another column.

L. N. Chandler, at the Landing, is putting in a new water wheel, the Green Mountain Giant, manufactured at St. Johnsbury.

On the 11th inst. Mrs. Page, at the Landing, fell and severely sprained her wrist, and some of the bones are thought to be fractured.

Last Saturday the morning mail train ran over and killed three dogs "at one slap," at the Landing. Plenty of sausage had been there now.

A. C. Parker, at the solicitation of many, is doing quite a business in the torsorial line at the Landing. Those in that vicinity wishing a "hair cut" or shave, will find he can do a good job in that line and does not charge full prices either.

The prices paid for help during the hay-making season are full as high, if not higher, than last year. Some have paid as high as $55 per month. O. L. Cowles has been offered $25.00 per day, and board, for every fair hay day in the month of July.

A newly arrived Frenchman bought a piece of meat of one of the meat-men the other day, and after examining it a little closely, exclaimed "vo bon! no bone!" "Bon," said the meat-man, "you'll find bone enough when you come to cook it."

Don't be round here with long hair hanging down your neck, when you can get it cut in style for the small sum of twenty-five cents by calling on M. C. Curran, next door to the hotel.

The following is the list of letters remaining uncalled for in the post-office in this village:

Mrs. A. S. Atwood; Geo. A. Allen, 2; Miss Carrie Berry, (2) Jesse Butters; Lewis Chase; J. W. Hanson; Rev. T. A. Jacobs; C. H. Kiser; Moody Kimball; Geo. W. Lawton; Mrs. Fannie Nelson; Peter Hroux; Miss Nettie A. Parker; John Pierce.

One of those striped animals that sent so, got into Dean Rogers' barn at the Landing, Monday morning, had chicken for breakfast and stayed all day. He occupied the cow-manger, and, like a contrary hog, he could neither be scared nor coaxed to "come out," and thus for twelve long hours was "master of the situation." Lead finally brought him. Where?

Col. Eaton is a good Democrat, and a jolly, good-natured old fellow he is too. Standing on the post-office steps last Thursday evening, he heard of the nomination of Horace Greeley by the Democrats. He chuckled at the "ridiculousness" of voting for Greeley, took a good sized pinch of snuff, and after inquiring for some time to what wash his old black hat with, said: "I saw a snake the other day that had swallowed a great toad, and he—looked as though he felt mighty uncomfortable."

BROWNINGTON.

Quite a party went to Willoughby on the 4th, and held a Basket Picnic. They report a capital time.

A Mr. Countryman, a student of Yale, is filling the pulpit at the Congregational House, through vacation, with good acceptance.

I. C. Smith has bought the Kimball Smith place at the village, of George Smith, for $2,500, and Geo. Smith has purchased the Hiram Kimball farm for $3,500.

LIGHTNING STROKE.

On Monday forenoon, July 8, during a thunder shower, the barn of Mr. Horace Smith, was struck by lightning and burned. Mrs. Smith, who was the only person on the premises at the time, instead of being frightened out of her wits, went to work with right good will, to remove property inside—wagons, harnesses, a barrel of flour and other things came out with agility, until assistance arrived. The citizens of Brownington sympathize with Mr. Smith to the amount of one hundred dollars towards building a new barn. The barn was burned at eleven o'clock, and before night quite a lot of timber was out for a new one. That's the kind of a town to live in, where the people will help a fellow when he needs it. The barn was insured in Old Mutual for $80.

COVENTRY.

Goodwin Ordway has picked from some English strawberry plants, some berries three and three-fourths by three and one-fourth inches in circumference.

CRAFTSBURY.

The people that were in the spirit on the 4th, and those who had no spirits in them, met in a grove, one of Nature's most lovely spots, and not having our ears tormented with sounds of fire crackers, pop-guns, old anvils, &c., pleasantly listened to interesting remarks from A. W. Wild and J. McDonald, also Messrs. Dutton, Thompson and Dustin. The exercises were occasionally enlivened by music from the Craftsbury Corn Band, to whom many thanks are due for the many patriotic pieces they discoursed during the day. After satisfying the inner man at the tables so bountifully spread by the ladies, all went home feeling well paid for their trouble, and that the motto of every true and patriotic heart, was Grant & Wilson.

GLOVER.

The executive committee of the Orleans Liberal Institute are desirous of securing the services of an efficient teacher for the coming fall term.

The farmers in town are busy securing their hay crop. Scarcity of help and one-third more hay than last year is the general complaint.

Mr. Matthew Nesbitt has recently erected, in memory of his mother, Catherine Donald Nesbitt, a beautiful slab of dark mourning vein marble, with granite and marble bases. The cost of the stone was $85.00 and was from the shop of H. R. Mack, Hardwick. It is the best slab work in town.

IRASBURGH.

Geo. W. Bryant recently shot a bald eagle which measured eight feet from tip to tip.

Mr. Beaulark is repairing and intends to occupy soon the house known as the "Merrill House."

B. B. Jackson is repairing his dwelling house quite extensively, putting on another story, &c. This is one step towards building up the long neglected street, and we hope others may make similar improvements, especially in that vicinity.

A big sell was perpetrated on Geo. Y. Cook a few days since. Seeing an advertisement in some paper, of a sewing machine for sale at the low price of $2.50 he sent to the city for it, when in due course of time a neat little box came by express, marked C. O. D. With eager fingers he tore off the lid, when out came to his astonished vision, a first-rate shoemaker's sewing-awl, which retails at ten cents or wholesales at five cents per dozen. Previous to sending for the machine, Mr. Cook took the wise precaution of writing to the advertiser that he did not want to be humbugged, and asked as to the durability of his machine, when the proprietor returned for an answer "that with careful usage, it would last from three to five years." We guess it will. To sum the whole matter up, Geo. Y. Cook is mad, and we do not blame him. Awlas for the wickedness of city folks!

JAY.

While the Good Templars' Lodge was at recess, a man partially intoxicated walked in, deliberately taking a seat and claiming his right to the school room, as much as any of them. They tried to persuade him to withdraw, but not an inch would he budge. Rather than have a row, they quietly adjourned.

While C. Lucier was coming down the Crandall hill with a four horse team his neckyoke broke and left the wagon upon the horses, when they commenced to kick and run, throwing one of them down and dragging it until it was nearly dead.

Josiah Crandall has taken E. Bickford's farm—H. D. Chamberlin has moved to his farm—V. C. Sisco has left his farm, hired a place in Troy and goes to canvassing for Hildreth and Smith, picture artists—Potato blossoms and corn tassels July 1 for N. & J. C. Chase—A great yield of nice strawberries and raspberries are ripening finely.

LOWELL.

The Good Templars of Lowell, dedicated their new hall, in H. Parker's building, on Wednesday evening last, with appropriate exercises.

On the 4th, quite a number of school children and others, assembled on the Green, in front of the residence of Mr. B. Woods, and forming under the leadership of Miss Maguire, the teacher of the Centre school, marched to the Congregational church, where they were briefly addressed by Rev. F. B. Phelps, after which they returned to the Green and sat down to well loaded tables which had been prepared for them through the exertions of Mrs. Woods and other ladies. While they were enjoying their repast, Mr. Elkins, the artist, photographed the group.

NEWPORT.

The usual summer guests are beginning to arrive at the Magog House.

The hail storm of Monday last done considerable damage in this vicinity, destroying gardens, and greatly injuring crops. Hail stones as large as chestnuts were picked up quite plentifully.

A large crowd attended O'Brien's show Monday. The tent was so densely packed that only those fortunate enough to secure the higher seats could see anything. Heat intense inside the tent; show of animals very good; performances connected with the circus, slim. As the performance broke up and the crowd was leaving the tent, there was a very severe shower, accompanied with hail thoroughly drenching everybody exposed. On our streets there were not a few drunken men to be seen, a decided contrast with appearances on the Fourth; the reason let those who know best explain.

A sad case of insanity occurred here last week. Charles Vail, a young lawyer from Newburgh, N. Y., married a few days before, had been to Montreal and Quebec on his wedding trip, reached here on Saturday, the 29th ult., and took rooms at the Memphremagog House. On Sunday they attended church. Monday morning at the breakfast table Mr. Vail was taken suddenly deranged, jumped up from the table and screamed loudly; shortly after, throwing off his hat and coat he ran for the depot screaming at the top of his voice. His cry mostly was on God to protect him; he was in fear of the Jesuits, that they were about to take his life. He continued furiously insane, requiring several men at times to hold him. Though he had lucid intervals, he seemed to grow worse and more violent, and it became necessary to keep him under opiates. His friends were sent for and his wife's mother and brother and their family physician came on. It was finally decided to carry him home; a car was secured and fitted up with beds and necessary conveniences, and the unfortunate man and his friends, accompanied by Dr. Blanchard, S. G. Bean, and a man engaged as night watchman at the Memphremagog House, started for New York by the express train last Friday night. His recovery is considered very doubtful by the physician who saw him here. It is a singularly sad case. He is reported as a man of fine talent and excellent character, is a Presbyterian, superintendent of a Sabbath School, and President of a Young Men's Christian Association. We do not understand that there is any tendency to insanity in the family, nor that he had manifested any signs of it previous to Sunday. His wife observed a little strangeness in his manner on Sunday, but thought nothing of it at the time nor would he have remembered it afterwards but for the sad scenes which followed.

STATE ITEMS.

Eli Harrington, an aged citizen of Quechee, was found dead in bed on the morning of the 24th instant. Apoplexy was the cause of his death.

A servant boy of Mrs. Julian H. Dewey of St. Albans, stole a watch, bracelets, and other valuable articles and ran off. The Sheriff, not exhibiting sufficient alacrity in pursuing the thief, Mrs. D. pluckily started off herself, and after three days search, and two hundred miles travel in her own carriage, found the rogue in Canada, and recovered a part of the purloined articles.

Last Thursday afternoon, July 4th, Horatio Schoolcraft, of Swanton, was accidentally shot by his brother, who was engaged with him in trying to secure a squirrel in a pile of boards. The gun was discharged by accidentally hitting the hammer of the lock against the boards. The contents of the gun entered the hand and fingers, with the exception of about half a dozen shot which entered the ankle. Fear is entertained that the foot will have to be amputated.

John Reedy, aged 8 years, was sent to the Reform School from Montpelier on Tuesday, by Justice Robinson, on a charge of theft from the cellar of Frank Gravelin. Capt. J. O. Livingston appeared for the State, and O. H. Smith, Esq., for the lad. The latter fellow admitted the theft, as did his brother also, and he will doubtless be much benefited by his sojourn at Waterbury, he having the making of a man in him.

On Tuesday forenoon, July 2d, some boys discovered, a little north of the village of Windsor, the body of a man, entangled in some floodwood, lying in shallow water. The remains were in an advanced state of decay. No features of the face were recognizable, the flesh having entirely disappeared. The right foot was missing, and below the knee the decayed flesh hung in shreds. It is thought the body must be that of an elderly person. The remains could not be kept for recognition, and they were immediately interred in the village cemetery, by order of the town authority. Nothing whatever is known there of the origin of the body. That it came from some distance up the Connecticut, seems evident; but whether it can ever be confidently recognized now appears very doubtful.

The Herald says that drunkenness and disorderly conduct prevailed throughout the Fourth at Rutland. The next day $542 was amerced on the liquor dealers and patrons in Rutland for fines. One Brian McDonough was seen to emerge from his house dragging his wife by the heels, her head striking from the threshold to a platform below, and from thence over rocks and stones. He then threw a painful of water over her, and after again dragging her, by her heels, over the rocks and stones, he varied his amusement by jumping and stamping on her back with the heels of his boots.

He again attempted to renew the dragging process, when some of the neighbors made a flank movement on him with stones and other missiles, compelling him to desist and driving him off. He is now in jail and his wife is, of course, confined to her bed; the physician, however, does not apprehend fatal consequences.

RAPE CASE IN ORANGE.—Last week we chronicled a fatal affray in Orange, in which a man lost his life from a kick in the stomach, and now we are obliged to recount one of the most brutal cases of rape ever known in Vermont, which took place in Orange, on the 4th of July. It seems that Mr. Asa Magoon, a farmer in the south part of the town, left his home in the morning, with his wife and two boys, to spend the day at the capital, leaving behind as housekeeper his daughter, some eighteen years old. During their absence Alpheus George called at the house, and, after some conversation, made insulting proposals to the girl, which she treated as they deserved. He then attempted to achieve his ends by force, and after a desperate struggle succeeded. The girl was so badly injured that Dr. Watson, who was called as soon as the family arrived home and learned of the outrage, thought that she could not recover, and on Saturday her deposition was taken by Col. Samuel Kimball, of Orange. In that she fully identifies George as her ravisher, and places his guilt beyond a doubt. George fled as soon as he had committed the outrage; but was sharply followed by constable Huntoon of East Orange, Col. Jacob Mills, and others, and arrested in Plainfield village, Monday morning. He was discreet enough to say nothing upon his apprehension; but appeared to be very much cast down, and to realize somewhat the situation he is in. George is a widower, some forty years of age, and has one child. He is a cooper by trade, and supports himself by days' works. He has sustained a good reputation hitherto.

A FAMISHED PEOPLE.

It is a pitiful story that came by cable last week that the famine in Persia is still as bad as ever. A liberal hand ought to be stretched from the granaries of our productive land for the relief of these starving people. A writer in Zion's Herald gives a graphic picture of the horrors of such an Eastern famine as is raging in Persia to-day:

The details of such a terrible visitation are beyond human sketching. Food becomes scarce and costly. The poor have no longer money with which to procure it. Brass and iron pots are sold, earthen ones alone being retained; doors and window frames are removed and sold for food, which is doled out in mouthfuls to the household. The play of children ceases at the hearth, the noise of joy is hushed in the village. Everything is sold for grain; the bark of trees, pieces of old leather, fruits, and roots, are all consumed. Now fathers barter their children, and wives abandon their husbands for bread; the village is deserted, and the roads lined with men and children dying for relief. Wasted to shadows, worn out with anxiety, they totter along, or fall on the highway. Skeleton dogs gnaw the skin from skeleton men ere they are dead, in full sight of crowds too stolid, too indifferent, too weak, or too near death themselves to do ought to interfere with the carnival. Pestilence follows in the train, and the stretch from acres on acres of unburied bodies, attracts the vulture and the jackal. All animated life soon shares the calamity; the cattle are dead or dying; the very fish perish in the beds of the shrunken rivers, and the official report of the famine in Marwar, made to the British Government, now lying before me, says, not only the deer and the jackal, but the very field-rats die of starvation. Agriculture, the arts, trade, manufactures—all avocations are abandoned. Labor is protracted. Seed for future crops is unobtainable, and the few survivors are without ambition, and are without solace. In their generation they will never be anything but poverty-stricken toilers, and the inheritance of their children must be only one remove from their own desolation.

It is frightful to hear the yet more graphic picture which our missionaries sometimes depict of isolated instances of poor wretches sitting on their skeleton haunches, cranching blue marl, which, with both hands they are barely able to hold to their wasted jaws; of carts crowded with skeleton children crawling over their fellows dead in the same vehicle; of the brute force which was necessary, in making a tolerably equal distribution of a few grains of food to infuriated masses of men, women, and children, and of much beside from which the very steel of one's pen shrinks. Oh, it is terrific! We would that something might be done for Persia in this hour of desolation. She has been bitter against our Christian faith. She has given inspiration to all efforts to destroy Christianity in Asia; but just because of all this have we the greater opportunity to exhibit Christian magnanimity and charity. We ought to arm our missionaries with this additional manifestation of our Christian sympathies. In all conflicts, present or future, with the hordes of the green banner, Mussulmen prejudice and bigotry ought to be stormed by the recollection of the heart care of American, as well as British Christianity.

The preparation does not injure the quality of the goods, but improves the general appearance, and imparts additional firmness to the cloth, contains nothing that will in any way injure the feet, while the process of preparation adds so little to the cost, that ladies have no further excuse for wet feet.

The lasting and lining being both prepared, and the manufacturers being required to use the best quality of lining, and cause the same to meet and lap over the inner sole, gives a double security against dampness, and prevents any moisture from penetrating to the sole of the foot.

ALL goods require the License Stamp of the VENTILATING WATER PROOF SHOE COMPANY. None genuine without it.
