IRASBURG GRIST MILL.

Just a Word to the Townspeople.

If there is anything you are in need of and have got to buy, why not buy at home? The town wheel is a large one and goes hard, but if every man in town would put his shoulder to it and push hard, in a few years there would be a change for the better. But as it is you are helping other towns to pay their taxes, support their Churches, and build up their Villages, while your own is going down. It may cost a trifle more to buy at home, but your money is in your own town helping to build it up and making your taxes less. As for my own business, the more I sell the cheaper you can get it.

ORLEANS COUNTY SUMMER SCHOOL.

The following article on the Summer School was written for our issue of Aug. 5, but we were unable to use it at that time and therefore give it this week.

An audience of teachers and townspeople assembled in opera hall Tuesday evening to listen to Miss Arnold's lecture on "The Child as a Future Citizen." Miss Arnold is a very fluent speaker and she never hesitates to find a word to express her meaning. She speaks in a conversational style with lucidity of expression so as to leave no doubt as to her meaning and fills her theme with most apt illustrations taken from her own observation or experience. If it be a fact that "the best teacher of a child is its mother, and the next best teacher is the one most like the mother," Miss Arnold must be one of the best of teachers, for she impresses one with a large-heartedness which would take in all the children of all the schools over which she presides. Some of the thoughts of her lecture were as follows: "Every lesson which we teach the child has to do with the future citizen. What is the school doing for our coming citizen? In it we must make our citizen to be intelligent, and intelligence means more than book knowledge. Knowledge should end in doing good to the people of community, the doing something to better our country. We teach with knowledge uprightly and honestly. Our future citizen should be self-governing. The schools are helping the children to acquire this power. The citizen should be capable of the highest patriotism. How are the schools helping our children to be more upright, intelligent and patriotic citizens? How much deeper and more enduring is the making of character than the teaching of arts and sciences. Education makes men more independent. How narrow the life of one who cannot read. When we read of the events that are transpiring anywhere in the world how our lives are enlarged as we enter into the experiences of others. A well read man is a cultured man. A spiritual help comes to us through the ability to read. We are stronger and braver and nobler because we can read. The glory of America is that every boy and girl may go to school. Are our schools doing anything to make our boys and girls to be more upright? High ideals are placed before our children continually. The heroes of literature and history impress themselves on the children's lives." All these ideas were illustrated, showing how the schools are developing character as well as intellect, nobility, patriotism, unselfishness and all the elements which go to make the truest and noblest manhood.

Thursday evening the teachers and many other young people assembled at Seaver's opera hall for an informal reception, and to become better acquainted with each other. Hon. F. W. Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin, Walter D. Parsons of Woodstock, County Examiner E. G. Baldwin and Rev. A. B. Blake received and after introductions an impromptu literary and musical program was given for the entertainment of those present; and we doubt if it could have been much bettered if it had been carefully prepared beforehand. The fact was there was talent enough present to have presented a first class entertainment at a moment's notice. The program was opened by a piano solo by Mr. C. Stevens of Charleston followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Cora Prime. Miss Lothrop of Barton Landing sang a song and Miss Ewens of North Troy gave a dramatic reading on "The Earthquake of Charleston, South Carolina." Miss May Wheeler of Irasburg gave a whistling solo. Miss Lucile Prime sang a song and J. L. Briggs of Attleboro, Mass., played a difficult piano solo; Charles Stone favored the audience with a selection and Master Olive Seaver of North Troy fittingly closed the program by a little pleasantry. Interspersed was marching to piano accompaniments by different pianists. It was a most enjoyable occasion for teachers, instructors and visitors, especially those who have been under the strain of hard class work, for it gave them the relaxation needed to prepare them for the work which followed.

Several mornings during last week Examiner E. G. Baldwin gave short lectures on preparation for examination and teaching which were very helpful to teachers. A large proportion of the questions which he propounded were "thought questions"—questions which required considerable thought rather than questions which appeared simply to the memory. They were to test the reasoning powers of the mind and so help in the development of other powers than the faculty of memory. The idea seemed to be that in every branch essential facts were necessary to learn, and when these had been mastered, then, general principles were to be so thoroughly understood all the details could be wrought out from these principles. He touched on certain questions relating to the history of the evolution of the present system, or town system of schools from the old district system, and a little on school law preparatory to a more general and thorough exposition of the subject by W. H. Taylor, examiner of teachers for Caledonia county. Mr. Baldwin is a very good presiding officer and keeps his workers exceedingly busy and prompt in beginning and closing their recitations. These lectures are enjoyed by the teachers and they expressed a desire that they be continued.

EX-SENATOR EDMUNDS' VIEWS.

In an article of great power in the August number of the North American Review on "The Insular Cases," ex-Senator George F. Edmunds shows that the recent decisions of the supreme court derive special significance from the fact that they tend to determine, for all time to come, the fundamental and constitutional relations of congress and the president to peoples who may not happen to be within the boundaries of any state in the Union, but also are still within the political dominion of our country in some of its territories. In effect, it is settled by the decisions that there are some of the protections of the constitution against unbridled power to which the inhabitants of ceded territories are not entitled. But the question remains, whether they are entitled to any constitutional protection at all. Mr. Edmunds enumerates some of the rights secured to the people of the States by the constitution against invasion by congress—such as the rights to the free exercise of religion, to freedom of speech and of the press, to peaceable assembly and to petition of the government for redress of grievances, to keep and bear arms, etc. These and other similar rights, the venerable statesman asserts, were understood by framers of the constitution to be among the fundamental and inalienable rights of man living in civilized and organized communities; and it can hardly be intended that congress, the creature of the constitution, should exercise the power over territories imparted to it by the constitution, except under the limitations and prohibitions imposed upon it by the constitution. A sovereignty created and existing only by the constitution, and yet liable to be exercised contrary to the provisions of the constitution, is, indeed, a paradox.

Awaiting New Building.

The Boston Journal has successfully accomplished the tremendous feat of moving its entire plant from one location to another and setting its machinery running as usual within a period of 15 hours. The departments are now in their temporary quarters, awaiting the erection of the Journal's million-dollar structure on the site of its old building and that adjoining. So great an undertaking is the putting up of an 11-story, steel, fireproof structure that even in these times it will take something more than a year before the paper can return to its former location. Meantime, the Boston Journal's business office is at 15 State Street, just around the corner from Washington Street, and the editorial and mechanical departments are at 14 and 16 Oliver Street, near Post-Office Square.

An Old Friend.

A clergyman, taking occasional duty for a friend in one of the moorland churches of a remote part of England, was greatly scandalized on observing the old verger, who had been collecting the offertory, quietly abstract half a crown before presenting the plate at the altar rails.

After service he called the old man into the vestry and told him, with emotion, that his crime had been discovered.

The verger looked puzzled. Then a sudden light dawned on him.

"Why, sir, you don't mean that old half crown of mine? Why, O'iv'e 'led off' with he this last fifteen year."

LETTER TO E. H. WEBSTER.

BARTON, VT.
 Dear Sir: You know and see and talk with everybody in and about your town; we want you to know Devco lead and zinc, that lasts twice as long as the old-fashion painter's paint (lead and oil); and costs no more.

What would you expect of a paint sold under this guarantee?
 "If you have any fault to find with this paint, either now in the painting or afterward in the wear, tell your dealer about it."
 "We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."
 If we could make you a better paint we should like to do it—There's nothing too good for a postmaster. We can't; it's the best yet known. And we've had 145 years' apprenticeship.

Yours truly,
 F. W. DEVCO & CO.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Those who had calculated upon making democratic political capital out of the Schley court of inquiry, because Schley happens to be a democrat, are beginning to see that their calculations will not be realized. The navy department would have been glad to have ordered a court of inquiry at any time within the last three years had Admiral Schley asked for it, and now that the court is to be held, it will render every official aid possible to Admiral Schley, in order that light may be thrown upon the dark places in the naval campaign which resulted in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, and if it be shown that the department was wrong in its assumption that Schley disobeyed orders without properly explaining his reasons and that he displayed a lack of judgment at a critical period, nowhere would there be more satisfaction than in the navy department. Every record of the department has been thrown open to Capt. Parker, who is one of Schley's counsel in order that he may have access to every scrap of official evidence that will be laid before the court. Judge Advocate General Lemly of the navy, who will be Judge Advocate of the Schley court of inquiry, has gone away on a vacation and will not return until Sept. 1. His subordinates will arrange all the details, such as making a list of witnesses who will appear before the court, etc.

If you think of putting up a new Steel Ceiling write to M. J. Caldbeck & Son, St. Johnsbury, Vt., for their prices and blue prints of the same, as they can save you money.

Decrease in Consumption.

A Western physician has just called attention to the rapid decrease of consumption the world over. He ascribes this to better living, greater cleanliness, a new understanding of the need of ventilation, sanitary appliances and longer vacations in the pure air of the country. And this is easy to believe. The laborer lives better now than did the mechanic of forty years ago, and the mechanic as well as the professional man of that time. The means afforded in the modern house for keeping clean and warm and comfortable, the increasing leisure, the multiplying of amusements, especially of out-door games and sports, the importation from other countries of foods, insuring greater variety on our tables, the great increase in the materia medica and in the range of surgery, the new achievements in preventative therapy, the measures taken by States and cities for betterment of factories and tenements, the purification of water supply, the cleaning of streets, and the like, all tend to lengthen life and make it better worth living. The good old times were not always good, and if one of the most dreaded of all diseases shall yield itself to the assaults of silence, the new times will be the best of all.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How He Saved His Dinner.

In the little town of Arundel there is a taxidermist who is gifted with wonderful presence of mind. Here is an instance:

Some time ago a gentleman called at his shop with a cock pheasant, which he desired to have skinned, stating at the same time that he did not require the body. This quite suited the taxidermist, who thought the pheasant would do for his dinner on the morrow.

However, later in the day the gentleman called again and said that he would take the body away. The taxidermist replied that it was unusual for customers to take the bodies away, but that he had no objection, and he fetched the bird, which his wife had put on a plate and covered with flour.

"Ah!" exclaimed the gentleman. "It looks very nice. But what is this white powder with which it is covered?"

"Oh, that," replied the taxidermist quietly, is arsenic. I always cover the bodies with that until I can dispose of them."

"Ar-arsenic!" stammered the gentleman. "Why, I thought that the bird would be good to eat. Thank you, I won't trouble to take it away with me. Good day."

The taxidermist had saved his dinner.—London Answers.

A Stand for the Right.

"That reminds me of a story," said one of a group of men, looking around furtively, "as there are no ladies present."

"No, but I am," promptly responded a tall young fellow, as he turned on his heel; "and you need not tell me any story that you would not tell your mother." Each individual encourages or discourages. This young hero did both.—Youth's Companion.
