Kills 200 Pound Bear.

Monday, Oct. 27, while Willie Gardner of Charleston was looking after his sheep on the river near his home, he saw a bear at a short distance from him. He shot and missed the mark and the animal crossed the river. Willie, having heard there, followed and succeeded in killing the bear and bringing him to shore. It was found that it weighed over 200 pounds and its skin is now being made into a rug.

Attention Readers.

On page six of this paper will be found an advertisement of the new story the MONITOR is about to start. This story, "The Pillar of Light," is by Louis Tracy, the famous author of "The Wings of the Morning," and will be published as a serial story beginning in our next issue. The story is highly entertaining and fascinating and is interwoven with a love story of more than ordinary interest. To our lady readers we wish to call attention to two columns of articles on how to make dainty Christmas gifts, found on page six. These columns will appear each week from now till Christmas and will be interesting.

Largest Fire in Many Years.

An alarm from box 31 at Newport called out the fire company at 1:05 this (Monday) morning for a fire at the livery stable of F. P. Davis on Coventry Street. The fire was one of the worst the village has experienced for some time. The stable, which was a large wooden building, was entirely consumed, together with several horses, nearly a carload of oats, a large quantity of hay and several wagons, besides blankets, robes and other articles. Only a few horses, carriages and other stable articles were saved. That Newport has an efficient fire company is evident from the fact that the flames were principally confined to the stable, although surrounded on all sides by other wooded buildings. The fire caught around the chimney in the hostler's room. The loss is estimated at $5000. The property was insured at $3500.

A large crowd witnessed the roller skating masquerade at the ball Friday evening. A variety of costumes was displayed, while some were very dainty, others were "fearfully and wonderfully made." The lady's prize was awarded to Miss Grace Smith of Barton Landing, and the gentleman's prize to Gerald Grow.

At the meeting of the voters of the Barton graded school district Tuesday evening in the schoolhouse to see if the voters would by a two-thirds vote grant bonds to be issued to exceed five times its grand list for the erection and completion of a new school building no opposition was met and a unanimous vote resulted.

We note in the Salt Lake (Utah) Tribune an extended article regarding the Rowland school, a popular preparatory school of that city, and the laying of the cornerstone of a new building. Miss Clara I. Colburne, a sister of Miss Lydia Colburne of this place, is principal of the school and the paper speaks in highest terms of her management.

C. H. Jackson is building a house which is 28x32 feet on the ground. It is two stories high, has brick foundation from cellar up to eills. There is a piazza ten feet wide on both the east and west sides. He has a large gang of men at work and the house is up and covered. The building stands between Mrs. Josephine Foster's house and Seymour Hunt's residence.

J. G. Turnbull introduced in the house Monday a bill granting leave for the Barton graded school district to issue bonds not to exceed $37,000 for the erection of a new school building. If this bill passes, as it undoubtedly will, the last step in the proceedings to raise the money will be taken and the completion of the building will be entirely in the hands of the building committee.

The Afternoon Study Club met at the home of Mrs. J. N. Webster Tuesday, Nov. 1. Eighteen members and two visitors were present. The program was as follows: Roll call, current events, history lesson. Three of Barton's legal gentlemen, fully equipped with the proper documents with which to win their cases, went out Thursday to invade the realms of Reynard. This was in the morning; at noon the hunters met by appointment for dinner (without any game) and as they were engaged in building a fire, a client, Mr. Fax, knowing their ability as huntsmen, approached within easy winning distance; two of the gentlemen leveled their guns at the client and fired, twice each, but Reynard, unhurt, trotted away. Later in the day the third gentleman, having not yet had a case, saw a client coming his way leisurely. This legal gentleman raised his gun and fired, emptying both barrels, but no fox remained, for he went "over the hills and far away." Puzzle, name the gentlemen.

The MONITOR office is in receipt of an Oregon paper with an extended article on the arrival and placing in command of General Stephen Perry Joslyn at the Vancouver Barracks at Vancouver, Wash. The command is, General of the Department of Columbia. Gen. Joslyn is well known here as the sister of Miss Pomona Joslyn and visited here for a time the past summer. The article speaks of Gen. Joslyn's successful military life, his recent trip to Europe and his opinions of the European armies compared with those of the United States, and tells how he is beloved by those over whom he has had command. The article says: "General Joslyn is said to be the best authority in the United States upon the preparation of muster rolls and the enrollment and organization of volunteers."

It is with deep regret we record the death of Mrs. Amy A. R. Dow who died yesterday noon in a hospital in Montreal where she has been for five weeks for a surgical operation and medical treatment. For a time after the operation it was thought she would recover, but her heart was weak and, after the most intense suffering, which she bore with commendable patience, she passed away. Miss Amy A. R. Nelson was born in Wheelock on Oct. 13th, 1841, where she spent most of her girlhood. She was educated in the common schools and at the Lyndon academy. She married J. E. Dow on Nov. 29th, 1866, whom she has survived since May 21, 1891. For about ten years she has lived with Mrs. B. M. R. Nelson in this village. Mrs. Dow was baptised in Lyndon and joined the Methodist church when a young lady, where her name has always remained. Mrs. Dow was a most remarkable woman. She was gentle, kind, modest, cheerful, intelligent, conscientiously ready to help wherever she was needed, and the best of company. For the last year she has been in frail health, gradually failing, but bravely decided upon her course of action and trustfully accepted her chances of living, knowing the danger she was to incur in the operation. She leaves to mourn her loss her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Nelson, her sister, Mrs. B. M. R. Nelson, besides more distant relatives and a large circle of friends. The obsequies will be held from her late home at Mrs. B. M. R. Nelson's at three o'clock tomorrow, (Tuesday), p. m., Rev. W. A. Warner officiating. The remains will be taken to Minneapolis, Minn., for interment beside her husband and only son, her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Nelson, accompanying them.

The Barton Landing basket ball team went to Newport Friday night and played the team at that place, meeting a defeat of 25 to 15. The score does not however tell the comparative strength of the teams as the Newport hall put the home team off their feet.

About twenty-two of the former members of the two brass bands met last Thursday evening and organized into one band. It was difficult to support two bands and this uniting solves the problem of a good band. There are many good musicians in the place and a band of twenty-five or thirty pieces can be easily formed that will be a credit to the place. Dana Tripp was chosen manager, C. O. Parlin secretary and treasurer and A. H. Bullard leader. We shall expect after the necessary practice by the members of this new organization to be entertained with first-class music. The village ought to do all it can to support the band. Remember it costs a good deal of time and money for the members to keep up such an organization and do good work and help and encouragement from the community is needed.

Rufus Tripp has returned from the West. He with a party of ten left here on the 29th day of August for Winnipeg and further west. Seven of these were left in the great wheat country between Winnipeg and Alberta. Stopping only a short time there he went on to Vancouver, B. C. He took a boat from Victoria to Seattle where he stopped for a short time. From Seattle he went to Portland, Oregon, and from that place to San Francisco where he saw the ruins from fire and earthquake in that city and the hustle and bustle of those who were engaged in rebuilding. On his way home he went to Rialto, Nev., where he visited Wm. B. Twombly's people. From San Francisco he went to Los Angeles and down into New Mexico, came back to Oakland and on to Ogden, visited at Omaha and Chicago and then came home. He travelled 12,229 miles, and the longest time spent in any one place was at Seattle where he stayed eight days.

The "cook" secured the first and only buck on the afternoon of the first day but all helped to eat it as did some of the more fortunate among the numerous visitors.
