A Rimming Will.
Perhaps the most peculiar will ever written was probated in England at Doctors' Commons July 17, 1789. It ran as follows:
I give and bequeath,
When I am laid underneath,
To my two loving sisters, most dear,
The whole of my store,
Were it twice as much more,
Which God's goodness has granted me here.
And, that none may prevent
This my will and intent
Or occasion the least of law racket,
With a solemn appeal
I confirm, sign and seal
This the true act and deed of Will Jacket.

Many are coming from Glover village every evening. The singing led by the chorus choir is especially enjoyable and Mr. Smith puts variety enough into the music to keep everybody busy and happy. I wish to express my heartfelt gratitude to all the friends who have done so much in ways too numerous to mention, to lighten the burden of my sickness, both for myself and for my dear ones. The flowers, "God's smiles on the earth," meant so much to me during those hours of suffering. Also the postal shower when I received 56 cards was a source of great comfort. I am especially grateful to the neighbors who cared for the little ones so kindly. May God's blessings rest abundantly on each and all of you.

The baseball team went to Sheffield and came back with another game to their credit. The score was twelve to eight. Though it looked like anybody's game up to the last man out, Sheffield really didn't have a chance for a look in, after Leland came to the box for Glover in the sixth. He struck eight men out in the remaining four innings, and didn't allow a man to get to first. Laverly working for Sheffield in the last six innings, kept the hits down well, but was too liberal with the passes, giving nine bases on balls. Score by innings:

Glover 0 0 7 1 0 2 0 0 2-12
Sheffield 0 4 0 0 4 0 0 0 8

THE THREE CRAFTSBURYS

Craftsbury Lecture-Entertainment Course
The time is approaching for the opening of the lecture and entertainment course. The best course that ever came to town will appear this year. The course is being managed by the following committee, which was elected by the various churches last spring: Rev. C. E. Garvin, John Kendrick, Aurelius Shields, Martha Paterson, Rev. E. R. Gordon, N. B. Williams, Guy Garvin, Geo. Dunn, A. B. Pike, Ed. Wheeler, Martin Johnson, Rev. C. D. Pierce, Mrs. Sawyer, J. D. Leavitt, Geo. Wheeler. The officers of the committee are Rev. E. R. Gordon, chairman; Rev. C. E. Garvin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Sawyer, secretary and treasurer. The course will open this year at the town hall, Craftsbury, on Sept. 30 with a lecture by the famous Russell H. Conwell, who is the greatest lecturer on the American continent and who has the greatest orator ever in the town of Craftsbury. Dr. Conwell has been on the platform for fifty-one years, and has delivered more than 9000 lectures. He is the president of Temple University of Philadelphia, and is pastor of the largest Protestant church in America which is located in that city. It is understood that Dr. Conwell will deliver only twenty lectures this year, and that Craftsbury gets one of them. The door admission to this lecture will be fifty cents. The season ticket costing only one dollar will admit to this lecture as well as to all the other numbers of the course. The next number will be a high class concert at East Craftsbury, on Nov. 1, by the Hazel Dell Chandler Company, consisting of two men and two women, all of them soloists. On Nov. 17 at Craftsbury town hall the Floyds will give an entertainment of magic and mystery and sleight of hand. On Dec. 12, L. S. Wickesham, one of the most popular lecturers in the country, who has delivered over 1700 lectures in one state, will lecture at North Craftsbury. It will be remembered that this man delivered a lecture in this course at East Craftsbury last year, which pleased the audience so well that he has been invited to return again this year. At North Craftsbury on Jan. 28, there will be a concert by the Huntington Concert company, a ladies' trio. The sixth and last number will be a lecture by H. V. Adams at East Craftsbury on March 12. This course of six numbers, consisting of three lectures and three entertainments, will be evenly distributed among the three villages, a concert and an entertainment being given at each village. The course costs the committee $400, or $150 more than we paid for our eminently successful course of last year. The buyer of a season ticket received two years ago only four numbers for one dollar; last year he received five for the same amount of money; but this year he will receive six nights of entertainment for one dollar, including a lecture by the famous Russell H. Conwell. Rarely can a man get so much for that sum of money. The reason for this is that the churches are giving the course for the benefit of the public; they have in the past years not taken the profits for their own use, but have left them in the treasury to be used in buying a more expensive course on each succeeding year. The members of the committee have done the work without pay and have even paid for their own season tickets. Now if the citizens of the town will buy the season tickets promptly they will give financial backing to the course, and will help the committee. The door admission to Conwell's lecture will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students and children. The course will be 35 and 20 cents. The season tickets admitting to the six lectures and entertainments will be sold to adults for $1, but to children under 16 years and to all students they will be sold for only 75 cents.

How to Have Household Girls.
There is no one thing alone which stands for economy. One must study the daily needs and be well acquainted with standard prices. There is much truth in the saying, "Where there is a will there is a way."
The cheaper ones of last year are just as palatable when cooked properly. A tough round steak may be pounded well, sprinkled liberally with flour and seasoned well, after which it is ready for a hot frying pan. When cooked it is deliciously tender. Meat once a day is all that is necessary for any one, especially in summer. Baked macaroni with cheese is a good dish here.
When the dinner is ready to be served as much of the dinner as possible should be served first. After the oven is well heated the baked macaroni may be turned out and served at once.
Splendid soups may be made by boiling over. Lettuce, vegetables with scraps of meat, to which a handful of rice is added, are very nutritious. This makes a fine soup. Scraps of food are saved and other ground for use for dressings. Plenty of uncooked bread is better than the much eaten and pastry and is certainly cheaper.
After all, the high cost of living is a matter which can be controlled by the individual. It is not so much the amount eaten as the amount spent that makes household life so high.
