Right Heating is a question of pure air properly and cheaply warmed. Outside air passed through

Time to make up for 1916

The next in order is what is designated as "Philadelphia," and this embraces turkeys, chickens, fowls, geese and ducks. Pennsylvania has been occupied by a thrifty class of German immigrants, who early provided good poultry, especially in Bucks county of that state, which furnished the supply of the citizens of Philadelphia.

Northward progression of the description of famous poultry next halts at Rhode Island. There the poultryers have selected the largest of the cultivated strains, which attain the weight of twenty-five to thirty pounds the first year and fifty pounds and upward the second year.

Massachusetts has its claim to the production of high class poultry also on file, and to turkeys it adds geese, of which in New York, where all qualities and standards are passed upon and determined, the excellence is conceded.
