

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The American Patriot.—Sketches, Biographies, and Stories of the War between the United States and Mexico, which they may see. By Henry F. Brown, Author of "With Friends as We Will," &c. 12 vols. $12.50. New York: J. M. Marshall & Co., Publishers.

We have had this remarkable volume in hand several weeks, but not till lately have we been able to give it an examination according to its merits. We call it remarkable, because it differs entirely, in its conception, from a biographical work, properly so called. It is neither a biography nor a collection of biographies. It is not a life of Dr. Cox, or Dr. Tyng, or of any other man which the reader has placed before him. The main points presented as a representative, or mainly so, of one peculiar development of sentiment or practice peculiarly religious, or at least closely allied to the religious sentiment of man. There is indeed enough of the same here to enlist our sympathies in him as an individual, but the influences at work in a great multitude are what give breadth to the picture, and enlist our lasting interest in it.

Though each chapter nominally forms a sketch of itself, after all appears to be but one of a series, and the whole take within their scope a great diversity of religious sentiments and action, as found in the different religious denominations of the country and in different divisions of them,—the whole having intimate relations to each other. They do not indeed present a complete picture of the religious sentiment of the American people, but certainly a very large and comprehensive one.

The names of the men who are brought prominently before the reader as representatives among the American preachers of the Gospel, (not always as representatives of the denominations taken as a whole, to which they generally belong, but in many cases of some well marked peculiarity of movement to be found in them,) show at a glance that the author's plan was a broad one. They are Reade, Edward N., Kirk, Chester Dewey, Robert Baird, John P. Dustin, Wm. Henry Milburn, Henry Ward Beecher, Wm. R. Williams, Charles G. Somers, Grinnell Dewey, Frederick D. Huntington, Leonard Beebe, Theodore L. Cuyler, Samuel H. Cox, Francis L. Hawks, George W. Bethune, Richard S. Stevens, Stephen H. Tyng, James W. Alexander, George B. Cheever, Albert Barnes, Beebe, and others, under the head of "Pioneer Preachers," are names of Wm. Burden, Bishop Asbury, James Clinton, Father Hawley, Peter Cartwright, and William Pitts.

Notwithstanding the length of this history, others could be named who might with equal fitness be brought before the public in a work of this sort. On this occasion seems to have been well aware that publication somewhere was a thing of necessity. The work is but a single volume, and not a cyclopaedia.

It is carried successfully a plan like that of the work under notice, requires in the author a union of qualities not often met with. It needs a man who delights in good preaching wherever it can be found, and who has had abundant opportunity to hear it, whose heart responds to every earnest expression of deep and sincere love for the honor of God and the temporal and eternal welfare of his fellow men; who believes and feels that Christian brotherhood is not found in the shield of a mere sectarian phraseology; who, though decided in his own opinions and fixed in their utterance, whenever there is a personal for them, fully realizes that the logically or illogically formed judgments of men's understandings are not in the sight of God, sicut ergo to be in the sight of man; who delights to see his family the family minister of the general use, and their action is safely relied upon.

He is also a man who will not easily be led away by the attractions of wealth, power, or popularity, of fame, or gain.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the removal of his wife, and fled the place, not leaving a vestige of it.

The inhabitants of Granada had removed to Rio, with all their effects, which will now be the Capital of Nicaragua.

A new battle had taken place between the Nicaraguan war-scholar Grindal, Captain Davis, and Dr. Cox, and Gen. Caras.

The enemy lost 200, while Hornsby had only 24 killed and 11 wounded.

Four days fighting at Massaya had ended in the retreat of the enemy.

Gen. Hornsby had returned to Granada, after giving there three days notice of his intention to allow time for the