

St. Johnsbury Center.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Stone have gone to Newport for awhile. Mr. Stone has several buildings to move at that place and Mrs. Stone will visit friends there and at Derby.

George Wheeler has rented the Lois Ann Green house near the bridge and will begin moving this week. His mother and brother, Frank, will live with him. He expects to sell his farm, if not will rent it.

The Salvation Army held a meeting at Mr. Goodchild's last Monday evening. Rev. Mr. Streeter and wife are expected to arrive next Friday and on Monday evening a reception will be tendered them at the Congregational church.

Miss Phila Ann Hallett, of Massachusetts, is the sister of Ezra Hallett, is visiting at George Hallett's.

Rev. Mr. Snelling, of Danville, preached at the Congregational church last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Brown and daughter took a carriage drive to Newport last week.

At the Christian Endeavor meeting last Sunday evening Miss Carrie McLaughlin was elected delegate to the convention at Woodstock.

Several from here attended the Dewey celebration at Montpelier last Thursday.

Several members of the Epworth League accepted the invitation extended to them by the league at Lyndonville to attend an entertainment and supper last Friday evening. A very pleasant time was reported.

East St. Johnsbury.

Forteen tickets were sold here for Montpelier Thursday. Among those attending the celebration were Walter and Will Russell, Rev. G. W. Patterson and Arthur, Miss Susan Atkins, Ernest Dodge, Russell Griswold, Will Hovey and George Wood. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Richards, F. O. Pierce and Ed Smith went by carriage. All report a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Robertson and son of Woodville are in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Griswold, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Potter and Mrs. H. M. Knapp intend to go to Boston on the excursion Thursday.

Mrs. Arthur Shasteny is recovering from a slight attack of diphtheria. The house has been quarantined the past few days.

Two Runaways.

Last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Story were returning from a carriage drive to Danville, with friends, when just beyond North Danville, the whiffletree broke striking against the horses heels. Mr. Story wrapped a small boy one of the party, in a blanket and threw him into the bushes, saving him from injury, and then reined the horses against a bank, where they freed themselves from the carriage, at the same time tipping it over and throwing the occupants out. They were all bruised, some considerably, but none seriously. Carriages with other friends were a short distance behind them and brought them home. The horses were caught before they reached North Danville, but not before they had run over a lady and injured her some.

John Ryan's horse took a trip on its own account through Railroad street, on Monday, and stirred that section up considerably. Near Portland street the runaway collided with Orville Lawrence's team and sprung a wheel for him, then ran on into Ryan's carriage factory yard, having left portions of the wagon scattered along Railroad street.

State and County C. E. Conventions.

Woodstock will entertain the State Endeavorers Oct. 24, 25 and 26. Every plan points to an unusually interesting programme. The names of Rev. Wayland Hoyt, D. D., Philadelphia, Rev. J. Wilber Chapman, New York, Prof. Amos Wells, Boston; Rev. Addison Foster, D. D., Boston; Rev. G. W. Morrow, Burlington, C. W. Osgood, Bellows Falls, Rev. F. E. Marble, Brattleboro, and Mrs. Clement M. Leavitt, Auburndale, are an assurance of a feast of good things and we trust Caledonia county may be well represented and that every society will avail themselves of the privilege afforded of gleaming golden grain from this bountiful harvest.

The music, in charge of F. N. Jacobs of New York, cannot fail of being a wonderful inspiration.

The county union holds its 7th annual convention at St. Johnsbury Center, Nov. 7 and 8. A bright, practical, helpful and interesting programme is arranged. Delegates from every society and reports as usual expected.

At Summerville.

B. J. Foster and son, Charles, were in Bath, N. H., the latter part of last week. George Burbank is having a furnace and electric lights put into his residence on Concord Avenue.

William Wells is having repairs made on his house, and also extensive repairs are being made on the Howard house on Lafayette Street.

Mrs. E. L. Hovey leaves this week Friday on a two weeks' trip for the annual inspection of the W. R. C.

Henry Toussaint has moved from Caledonia street to St. Mary's street.

Civil Service Examination.

There is a vacancy at the post office, in the position of substitute carrier, and a special examination is to be held on Nov. 4, commencing at 9 a. m., for the positions of clerk and carrier. Examination will embrace spelling, arithmetic, letter-writing, penmanship, copying, geography and reading addresses. Age limitations are from 18 to 40 years. For application blanks and full instructions, inquire of F. C. Lanctot, secretary of the board of examiners.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gage move to Bradford this week.

Miss Annie Davis is employed at the Telegram office at Barre.

Mrs. Mary Johnson has returned from an extended visit in Barre.

Mrs. E. Park and daughter, Miss May Park, have moved to Passumpsic.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Brooks left Monday on a visit to Springfield, Mass.

Stanley Wilson, an architect in New York city is visiting at Mrs. E. J. Wicker's.

Mrs. D. S. Allen and son, Walter Allen, have been guests of Dr. J. M. Allen the past week.

E. M. Taft has moved from Peacham into the house he recently purchased of George C. Cary.

Thomas Pidgeon, barber in William Brown's shop, is enjoying a vacation trip to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Walker, of Windchendon, Mass., have been spending a few days in town.

Mrs. W. W. Wright has returned to St. Johnsbury for an extended stay, and gets a cordial welcome.

Mrs. F. A. Carter was called to Bradford Monday on account of the illness of her father, C. C. Doty.

Mrs. L. P. Slack visited her parents at Marshfield last week, and attended the Dewey reception at Montpelier.

Mrs. Abbie Hanaford, Mrs. Hattie Claves and Master Arnold Claves, from Portland, Me., are guests at G. W. Story's.

F. B. Hall, formerly an employee of the CALEDONIAN office, was married to Miss Mary E. Jacobs, of Barton, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. F. A. Balch who has been quite ill, is slowly convalescing. Her sister, Mrs. S. C. Streeter, from Charleston, has come to care for her.

C. H. Horton was in Boston on Friday night and Saturday and participated in the Dewey celebration. He reports it as something stupendous.

William Chesley has returned from his summer spent at the Mt. Pleasant House and will soon go to Ormond, Fla., where he will spend the winter.

Mrs. Mary B. Cowles, mother of Mrs. E. H. Blossom, who has been ill for the past four weeks, does not improve as her many friends would wish.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chaffee, from Portland, Maine, are guests for a week at W. B. Chaffee's. Mr. Chaffee is head clerk in the Congress Square hotel.

Miss Mattie Hunt is teaching in the Clay Hill district in place of Miss Lena Pike, who has been promoted to assistant in the Summer street schools.

Mrs. A. M. Brown returned home Tuesday from a two weeks' visit with relatives in New York. Her son, Ira, who accompanied her, will remain longer.

Wilbur Stearns, from Plymouth, N. H., visited his cousin, Mrs. C. G. Proctor, and other relatives in town last week. Mr. Stearns has just returned from an extended trip abroad.

Harry Randall, who has been spending the summer with his sister, Mrs. Robert Pettigrew, at Hot Springs, Va., returned home last Saturday. He came by the way of New York to witness the Dewey celebration.

Invitations have been received to the wedding of Lonnie Huntly, the popular clerk in W. B. Eastman's drug store, and Miss Lucie Powers, of Lyndonville, which is to take place at Lyndonville next Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Slack are soon to move into the Ethan Carr house, occupying the tenement which has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert W. Brooks. The latter move into George Spencer's cottage on Winter street.

The friends of Miss Winifred Horne will be pleased to hear that she has secured a position in the Lowell Trust Company, Lowell, Mass., one of the largest banks in the city. She is also studying music with Prof. Trumbull.

Major and Mrs. A. W. Roberts go Thursday to attend the biennial session of the Universalist General convention of the United States and Canadian provinces, to be held in the Columbus Avenue church, Boston, October 20 to 25, Major Roberts being one of the lay delegates from the Universalist State Convention of Vermont.

J. Wallace Grant was in town last week. He will be remembered by those familiar with the scale works 30 years ago as one of the "characters" in the scaling room and many witty anecdotes of him are still afloat. He went from here to the Philadelphia branch house and is now in charge of the Standard Scale Co., of Rome, Georgia.

Another Victory for the Academics.

Twenty-seven to six tells the story of last Saturday afternoon's football game between the Newbury high school and the St. Johnsbury Academy eleven; and the larger figures belong to the Academy side of the game. A fair-sized crowd saw the game, which was especially well played by the home eleven. Their "offensive" work was excellent—when they had the ball they made good use of it, while the reverse can be said of their opponents, who averaged heavier than the home team. Sault made four touchdowns and kicked two goals; his playing, and that of Hadlock, McFarland and Ranney were features of the game. Other contests will be arranged for in the near future.

Avalon Converse, of East Putney, shot a wildcat weighing 20 pounds, in the woods last week.

DEWEY DAY IN BOSTON.

(From our regular correspondent.) Boston has been in gala attire for the last few days. As soon as it became known that the great Admiral would surely visit Boston, plans for his reception were at once put in motion, and by Friday the whole city, especially along the line of march, was gay with bunting and evergreen. It was surely a brave sight, for from the smallest boot-black's stand to the Capitol the red, white and blue was shown forth in some form or other. Sometimes it was only a single cheap flag, sometimes a line of them spelling out—more or less correctly—"Welcome Dewey." On Tremont street the color scheme was developed in green and white, a line of arches in those colors reaching from Boylston street to Winter street. Winter street was in yellow and white, and School street in blue and white, while everywhere, the stars and stripes were waving. One of the theaters had a miniature warship on its front illuminated by electric lights, while from the theater to a telegraph pole across the street and wound down the pole was a line of red, white and blue lights.

By Thursday one noticed that the streets were already filling up with sight-seers, and by Friday night there was very little room left for the new comer.

Dewey arrived at the North station about five o'clock, and all along the line of march from there to the Touraine were crowds upon crowds of people. When the first hint of his approach was sounded from any point a great shout arose from the people all eager to show their interest in the great man. As he rode slowly up the streets the enthusiasm knew no bounds, and when the Admiral rose in the carriage and bowed the people fairly went wild with enthusiasm. Arrived at the hotel he and his son took their places in a conspicuous window and reviewed the parade as it passed. The flag was always saluted by the admiral, and cheer after cheer rose from the crowd at the sight.

All that night one might have heard the sound of saw and hammer as stands were in construction from every possible point of view along the line of the next day's march.

Very early on Saturday morning the people began to gather on the streets, wagons of every kind were drawn up in line and filled with chairs which were rented at good prices for the day. Every window was spoken for, and after all this many, many people stood for hours on the sidewalks to hold their places till the time of the parade.

The first exercise of the day was the singing by the children of the schools of Boston and vicinity on the Charles street side of the Common. The Admiral listened to these songs, apparently with much pleasure, rising in his carriage and bowing to the children. Some of them who were behind the carriage called out "Please turn this way," and the Admiral did amid the almost deafening cheers of the little people. At the close of the singing a little lot of five years presented to Dewey a warship made of flowers. Many other flower pieces were presented to him, so that his carriage was well filled with them.

At 10.30 he was driven to the City Hall, which was beautifully decorated in the national colors and laurel, with a fine bass relief of Dewey at the front. Before the hall were grouped about 250 members of the Handel and Hayden club, who, accompanied by the Municipal Band, sang "See the Conquering Hero Comes" as the Admiral approached. They also sang two other selections, closing the exercises with "America." At this point was presented to him by Mayor Quincy the freedom of the city, and a beautiful watch, the gift of the city. Dewey responded to Mayor Quincy's remarks briefly but very feelingly.

After this ceremony came luncheon at the house of Hon. Montgomery Sears.

At 12 o'clock the parade started from Arlington street, and there is only one thing to be said, that just as on the night before the Admiral was received with cheer after cheer, and he rose in his carriage bowing right and left. The parade was a most imposing one, there were soldiers and marines from the Olympia there, many of the state troops with Governor Wolcott riding at their head, and he received an ovation second only to that of the Admiral. Every possible point of view was utilized, even to electric light poles, roofs and cornices. The Admiral reviewed the parade from the state house, (which was beautifully decorated for the occasion.) After this followed the restoring to the state of battle flags, the ceremony taking place on the Common, and a very impressive ceremony it was.

The day closed with a state banquet at the Algonquin Club in the evening. Surely the people of Boston will have something to remember all the days of their life, and the story will be repeated again and again for the benefit of the generations to come, for the Admiral himself and the deed he did have already become a part of the history of the world.

F. F.

Edward Gaines, aged 20, was instantly killed last Wednesday morning at Bristol Flats. He was shooting chickens, and had just killed one as another flew by him. He took his shotgun by the barrel and struck at the chicken. The stock struck the ground, causing the discharge of the gun, the contents passing through Mr. Gaines' heart. He died after giving one cry. The accident happened within a few rods of his father's house.

Woman's Clubs at Lyndonville.

The fourth annual meeting of the Vermont Federation of Woman's Clubs is in session at Lyndonville this week in accordance with the programme published in last week's CALEDONIAN. Only one change is made from the printed programmes and that is the time of the opening hour this afternoon, from 3 to 3.30 o'clock. This is done to accommodate those wishing to go up on the afternoon train.

The Columbia yesterday, under peculiar circumstances. The Shamrock broke her topsail after making a start, and the Columbia sailed over the course alone, completing it within the time limit.

It looks as if the cup would not go back across the water this year.

The farm buildings of John C. Hardy & Son, of Bradford, were entirely destroyed by fire Friday night, together with six cows, three hogs, three hundred bushels of corn and other grains. The sugar house and tools were also destroyed. Mr. Hardy had spent the evening at the village, and retired about ten o'clock. About 11.30, Mrs. Hardy was awakened by a crackling noise and found the barn in flames. The loss is very heavy, insurance $3,000.

Dr. W. Seward Webb has purchased the large bay coach horse shown at Howard park fair by F. D. Clifford. The animal stands 17 hands high and will be to match one now owned by Dr. Webb.

The Rev. A. L. Wadsworth, of Newport, has obtained a charge at Monrovia, Cal.

A Card. The ladies of Clover Temple No. 1. Bath-house Sisters, wish to thank all who so ably assisted in serving the banquet to the Knights Tuesday evening, Oct. 10, and making it the success it was.
