FOOD FAIR.

The Entertainments.

Manager McGown made a happy hit when he conceived the idea of organizing a young ladies' orchestra for his client and the best of it is he succeeded in getting together an organization that made a decided hit at once. Not because of its novelty, but because of its excellence, for rarely has a St. Johnsbury audience been favored by a visit from so pleasing a musical combination. The personnel of the orchestra is as follows: Lillian Page, director and violin; Annie V. Bettony, clarinet; Helen L. Burgess, viola; Bertha E. Simmonds, bass; Mae M. Warren, and Georgia Chapman, cornets; Alice H. Parmeter, Edith Hill, piano; Maud Sullivan, baritone; Cora E. Lewis, drums.

Miss Chapman is a young cornetist of rare ability and her solo, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," Monday evening was heartily applauded, and the violin duet, "Voltaire," by Misses Page and Parmeter last evening was a rare treat.

Monday evening Mrs. Don C. Stiles sang "For all Eternity," with orchestra accompaniment, in charming style.

Frank O. French and his Lithuanian Minstrels, with Miss Helen Sylvester, entertainer, Monday evening, were accorded a hearty reception and made a great hit. Their program included an essay on hens by Harold Abbott, solos by Marion Smythe, Kittie Straub, Eldridge French, Mary Gibbs, Joe Cheney and Miss Helen Sylvester. Master Cheney was presented with a fine basket of flowers at the close of his song.

Clarence Goodrich made his first public appearance as a pianist on this occasion and the duets with his teacher William Gill were so well rendered that Master Goodrich is sure of a place in the ranks of St. Johnsbury's best entertainers in the future.

Last evening the Elysian Entertainers of New York, held the boards and gave a very enjoyable entertainment. The program for the remainder of the week has already been published and the public is assured of an entertaining fair with "something doing all the time."

The Demonstrations. This feature of the afternoon has been well attended thus far, and Mrs. Isabel Jarvis has demonstrated that she is not only a cook of superior ability, but a teacher and demonstrator whose methods are of real practical value to all interested in this branch of domestic science. She is ably assisted by Miss Helen Gilmore.
