OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

State Societies—University Club—Hubbard Memorial Hall—National Geographic Society—Peary's Trip Postponed—The Red Cross Society—American Tract Society—Interesting Address by Dr. Huse.

Many state societies have been formed in this city within the past few years, tending to increase local patriotism, and it seems to keep up an interest in one's own state. Three of the New England states, Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire, have formed successful organizations. The Vermont society at first met in small halls, but it outgrew them all by its increased membership, so it now meets in the parlors of the Woman's Club House on Q. street. The program at the March meeting was a fine one; the chief address was given by Dr. Baker, once a missionary in India. His subject was "The Life and Customs of the People of that Country." The recitation, "The Chariot Race," from Ben Hur, was given by the young man who took the prize at Georgetown College. The Kimball Quartette, sons and daughters of Judge Kimball, furnished excellent music, and brought out encores for their inimitable rendering of one of Mother Goose's melodies.

The New Hampshire society meets in the Lyonal Legion Hall on H. street, N. W. Mr. Hildreth, the president, is a distant connection of the historian of the same name. They have a very enthusiastic society. They make it a vote to have at least one paper or address upon some state historical theme. Ex-Representative Baker has given them some very valuable papers on the veterans of the Revolutionary war from that state. At the last meeting Hon. Frank Hackett, ex-assistant secretary of the navy, gave a very interesting talk upon the early settlement of the state and some sketches of her old towns. He is a native of Canterbury, near Concord, N. H. They have a project on foot to centralize all of the various state societies so that any man in one state can find out any New Hampshire man in another city and state if they become confederated.

The New University Club with about 100 members representing more than 600 colleges and universities was formed and the following officers were elected: President, Judge William H. Taft; 1st and 2nd vice-presidents, George B. Corley, secretary of department of commerce, and Charles G. Wolcott, chief of geological survey; secretary, Ralph B. Barnard; treasurer, Prof. C. E. Monroe of Harvard College. Judge Taft graduated in 1878 at Yale, second in a class of 120. All members must have taken some degrees at the college.

The Hubbard Memorial Hall located on 16th and M. streets, N. W., was recently opened and dedicated. It is the gift of Mrs. Gardner Hubbard, erected in memory of her husband, who was the first president and leader founder of the organization. Before he made Washington his home he resided in Cambridge, Mass., and was a graduate of Dartmouth College.

The National Geographic Society of this city has been the leading society for years, having had more than 2,800 members' names on its roll. This new building constructed of brick and stone cost about $80,000, and is intended to be the headquarters of the society. Its executive offices are on the first floor and the general hall is on the second floor. The building is two stories high and finished inside with white marble. The hall is lighted by electric lights from the top or ceiling, giving the room a soft subdued light very agreeable to the eyes which reminds one of the light in the senate chamber. The arrangement to represent the emblem of the society was very original: A map of North and South America under colored glass, brilliantly lighted by electric lights. Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, so well known as connected with the Telephone company, became the president after the death of Mr. Hubbard, but owing to his large business interests has resigned lately and Prof. W. J. McGee has become the new president. Mrs. Hubbard was assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. Bell and other members of the Bell family and also by Prof. McGee and G. R. Gilbert, a vice-president. Many members of the Geographic Society and also prominent Washingtonians were present. conspicuous amongst them was Dr. E. E. Hale of Mass. He is a marked historic figure in any assembly and has been the recipient of much attention from all classes in Washington society. His wife and daughter were also there and Miss Hale said very decidedly that her father must not continue to address literary clubs and societies almost every night in the week. It is very entertaining to have him give reminiscences of Lowell, Whittier, Longfellow, and many of our well-known authors.

It is now said that Commander Robert E. Peary will not start for the Arctic Ocean the latter part of May as planned, for several reasons. He wishes for a more modern boat and then he has been made the president of the Congress of Geographers, which is to be held in this city September 8.

It is well known that charges have been made by various factions of the Red Cross society and criticisms on its business management. Some members have been expelled and an appeal made to higher powers, claiming that in the distribution of the funds, too high salaries have been paid to officials. There has been considerable jealousy of Miss Clara Barton by persons in outside organizations. Miss Barton has an international fame and is always highly honored and esteemed by the members of the G. A. R., for her noble usefulness service. She is a native of Worcester, Mass., and belongs to a fine old New England family. We sometimes hear the remark by some of the southern sisters, "She has had her day; let her step aside, and let someone else have a chance." She is modest and unassuming in her manners. She resides at Glen Echo, just outside the city limits, and entertained the Woman Suffragists, 300 in number, when here at their annual meeting. She has many and numerous decorations. A committee has been appointed to devise some plan to harmonize and bring about a union amongst the members. This committee consists of Senator Proctor, Representative William Alden Smith and General F. C. Ainsworth. Miss Barton and her party are known as "the respondents" and the suspended members are called "the claimants." Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee, wife of Prof. W. J. McGee, and daughter of Prof. Simon Newcomb, the astronomer, started some little time since with her party of trained nurses for San Francisco, on their way to Japan. They were delayed several days on their journey by storms in the mountains. Dr. McGee was an active worker in the D. A. R. society and took charge of the nurses sent out during the Spanish war. Her services in the Philippines by the Japanese in this war with Russia. She is a lady of resolute will, good judgment, and excellent natural ability and ambitious to take a part in the Japanese war.

The American Tract society held its annual meeting in the Church of the Covenant (Presbyterian). After the opening exercises by Dr. Lewis S. Hamlin, Justice Brewer took charge of the meeting. There was a most striking contrast between the two gentlemen who were to address the meeting, Dr. Judson Swift, the secretary of the society and Governor Taft, the new secretary of war. Dr. Swift is short and slight and full of enthusiasm, in a room of great good accomplished by the society. Amongst the well-known men converted by reading tracts and books of the society, he named Gen. O. O. Howard. While Gov. Taft has a great composure weighing perhaps 250 to 300 pounds, he has a pleasant face and bright blue eyes, but when he rose to speak you felt he could readily command the Philippines by his look and manner. He stated he had been in many lands and seen many kinds of people, but the last place he ever expected to find himself was in a Presbyterian church, and booked to make an address before a tract society. But he thinks there is great opportunity for work for all denominations in the Philippines. He is an Episcopalian. He made a very good address.

Thursday evening a large company assembled in the chapel of this church to hear an address by Dr. Huse, the American missionary, who is so active in arranging with the brigands for the release of Miss Stone of Chelsea, Mass., a foreign missionary in Bulgaria. Miss Stone had been associated with them in their work for perhaps 25 years, more or less. He insisted that she was only one of many engaged in this work and an humble laborer, yet in his narration you were impressed with his wonderful tact, resolution and heroism in accomplishing the difficult task. He had to wrap his matter a close secret for weeks having only one native helper to aid him in getting in communication with the brigands, so many and cautious were they, fearing they might get caught or entrapped by officials. He was successful in carrying on his work amongst the natives, waiting for a personal interview; finally one night four of them came to his room fully armed and one covered him with a revolver during the conversation, ready to kill him at a moment's notice if they were not satisfied with their terms were very exacting and difficult. He had to send to Constantinople and have all the little Turkish gold pieces counted out so carefully, over 14,000, with no mark of identification on any one of them, so they would not be lost out if one was marked and they tried to pass it. Each sack was weighed and sealed before brought to them, with an armed force. Then the sacks were left with his agent and he had to go over them, and by degrees take them over to his room in his boarding house and hide them until he had obtained the whole amount. Then he must remove the gold from the sack and put in something else which would weigh exactly the same as gold and he could not use earth or sand. Then three London correspondents, who had followed the bags of gold from Constantinople to this place, came to him to know what he had done with the gold and how he could reach the natives. This would be dare to pay it to them before Miss Stone was delivered, and many other questions. He dared not tell them anything. He had already given the money to the brigands and trusted their honor and promises to bring the sack back somewhere. He had to wait, pray and trust they would keep their word, and after weary weeks of waiting she was returned. The story was more thrilling than many novels, for it was a story of real life and facts.

There is a good deal of discussion over the Newland bill and amendments suggested. Serious objections are being made to erecting public buildings on the mall. Quite a company of prominent architects of the country have been in consultation before the district committee of congress to decide the best arrangement to be made, and endeavor to carry out the original plans in laying out the city and also to decide where the new statues, which are to be presented, shall be located.

Foreign diplomats expect to remain here during the war abroad. The committee for building good roads are working very diligently to secure a national appropriation for that purpose. The committee who were sent out last year reported Massachusetts took the lead in that respect.

We had a fine address by Senator Dillingham a short time since at the Algonquin hall. It is a self-evident fact that both of the Vermont senators take high rank in the senate and they are called upon to serve upon some of the most important committees. The committee on emigration is one of interest to all American citizens. A representative from the state of Pennsylvania (Adams, I believe), has introduced a bill to limit emigration from Southern Europe to a certain number. We hear people remark it is a pity such a bill was not passed years ago. Vermont congressmen have never taken a back seat in congress, but are ready to take their part when opportunity occurs. After Senator Dewey made one of his eloquent addresses on the naval bill, Senator Gorman followed, citing many statistics to show the heavy expense in recent years. Since Mr. Kinley came in we have spent on our navy and fortification bills $1,804,000,000, an immense sum which does not include the $350,000,000 in other ways, in Spanish war operations and that is more than all of the previous history of the government. He stated it cost $500,000 a year to run each ship, which may last, perhaps, 20 years or only 10 years and the repairs are very expensive. Senator Corman of Tennessee, reminded Senator Dewey that some years ago he viewed this matter differently. Mr. Dewey replied that the remarks quoted were those of a private individual, of a certain Chauncey Dewey but not of Senator Dewey. "He is dead now," observed Senator Corman, "and he is a republican and he naturally looked at a subject from a different standpoint than I do." It has been suggested that Senator Hoar has written home such accounts of the late Mormon trial that was the cause of the quarrels within the New England. The cold wave predicted from the West has not arrived. People are wondering how deep the snow is yet in Vermont and whether the maple sugar will be ready in April. We received a letter from a party from Caledonia county who informed us that once last winter the thermometer was 53 degrees below zero. We were surprised that they were alive to tell the story. A. M. C. Washington, D. C., Mar. 23, 1904.

Presidential Gossip.

Mr. Roosevelt's Election Threatened.
It is not Mr. Roosevelt's nomination but his election that may be threatened by the factional quarrels within the republican party in the states of New York and Ohio. As for Mr. Roosevelt's wish to maintain neutrality toward the struggle between Mr. Odell and Mr. Platt for the leadership of the New York republicans it is a creditable record. It is a senator rather than the governor who has caused to complain that the President has leaned more to one side than another.—[Harper's Weekly.]

The Earliest Bird.
Those who were planning to get up early in the morning to congratulate the Grand Army vote now find with dismay that the administration was up all night on the same business.—[Providence Journal.]

Mr. Hearst's Campaign Fund.
Hearst, if nominated, will furnish $1,500,000 to the democratic national committee, while if Parker, Cleveland, Olney, Gorman, Francis or any conservative is nominated, the democrats will be forced to go to the trusts for their campaign funds. William J. Bryan is soon to come out boldly for Hearst in the Commonwealth.—[Vermont Tribune.]

Can't Give Cleveland Up.
The people know Mr. Cleveland and they trust him. They know that the honor of the country would be safe in his hands, that republican institutions would suffer nothing from his administration, and that he would exhaust all his authority for the purpose of preserving the peace of the world. He is the only democrat who can be elected, and for that reason, if for no other, he ought to be nominated.—[Charleston News and Courier.]

Watch William E. Hearst.
Some of our esteemed democratic contemporaries are beginning to discuss William Randolph Hearst's presidential availability. The danger of Hearstism was pointed out to the democratic conservatives some time ago, but most of them in effect said, "It is to laugh." It is wrong to say that one "Vermont" who laughs last.—[Burlington Free Press.]

The Hearst Triumph in Rhode Island.
After all, the Hearst triumph in Rhode Island has its compensation. According to Congressman Van Duzer of Nevada it has enabled the people of his state to appreciate the fact that there's something in Rhode Island besides Newport with its aristocrats, automobiles and monkeys. It is tolerably apparent that there's to be no lack of ginger and bricks in the campaign now opening.—[Boston Herald.]

News of the Week.

The Northern Securities Case.
The United States Supreme Court have rendered their decision in the famous Northern Securities case by the close vote of 5 to 4, declaring that company to be illegal under the Sherman anti-trust act, and ordering a dissolution of the corporation. Following are the condensed vital points of this decision:

1. The stockholders of Great Northern and Northern Pacific, having competing and parallel lines, combined in a holding company.
2. Northern Securities became holder of more than a majority of each stock.
3. Necessarily the holding company dominates the situation in the interests of those who were stockholders of the constituent companies just as much as it would in the case of a railroad corporation.
4. The constituent companies, necessarily, ceased to be competitive, and became practically one company.

A VETERAN'S STORY

ESCAPED WAR'S PERILS AND FELL A VICTIM TO THE GRIP.

The Influenza Left His Blood so Thin That Anemia Resulted—Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

In the employ of the American Bridge Company, at Pittsburg, is a man whose life story is a thrilling one. For three years during the great Civil war he served his country as a member of Company E, Sixty-third Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and then completed his war service in the Seventh Connecticut. The man is Mr. James A. Clowes, of No. 319 Forty-fourth street, Pittsburg, Pa., and he tells in his own way how he escaped a greater danger than he faced on the field of battle. He says:

"An attack of the grip in 1898 left me in a low state of health and in a short time I found that I was a victim of anemia. Any exertion tired me and made me short of breath. My heart would stop beating at times. I was nervous and weak, had no desire to eat and there was constant pain in the small of my back. My kidneys, liver and stomach became affected and I was about as miserable as a man can be.

"One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People mentioned in the paper and concluded to see what they would do for me. The first box helped me and seven boxes cured me entirely, making me strong and energetic again, and in as good health as before my sickness. My son and his wife and many of my other relatives have also used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with the best results and we all recommend them on every possible occasion."

Hundreds of Civil war veterans, both Union and Confederate, whose health was broken by hardships in the army, as well as hundreds of others run down by overwork, worry or excesses of some sort owe their lives and happiness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Acting directly on the blood and nerves these pills have cured many stubborn cases of nervousness, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, rheumatism, sciatica and all forms of weakness whether in male or female. Sold by all dealers in medicines, or sent postpaid at fifty cents per box, six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

5. The earnings make a common fund in the hands of Northern Securities.

6. The existence of the combination and the power in the hands of one company constitute a menace to freedom of commerce.

7. If not destroyed * * * the advantages, to the public, of competition will be lost and the commerce of that country will be in the hands of one corporation, organized in a far distant state.

8. It is not necessary to show that such a combination results or will result in a total suppression of trade or in a monopoly.

9. The Sherman law does not interfere with state rights, or regulate the internal commerce of the states.

A Warning to the Japanese.

In spite of their early successes the Japanese may read and ponder with much pride the remarks of one Napoleon on his naparte on the subject of making war with Russia:

"It was making war upon Russia that ruined me. Russia is the nation that is most likely to march to universal dominion."

I would not have declared war upon Russia but that I was persuaded she was about to declare war upon me.

In the end Russia will become mistress of the world.

But for my marriage with Marie Louise I would not have declared war upon Russia. (He expected assistance from Austria.)

I am reproached for not getting myself killed at Waterloo. I think I ought rather to have died in Russia.

Russia is in a favorable position to conquer the world.

Perhaps I did wrong to commence the Waterloo campaign. I did not think that the Russian would take a hand.

If I had had 200,000 more men in Russia there would have been that many more lost.

After I had reached Moscow I should have died there.

These are the afterthoughts of a master of war who had conquered western Europe and whose downfall dated from his ill-starred campaign against the Russians.

The Japanese are not as yet attempting such an invasion as that undertaken by Bonaparte, but they are arrayed against the same stolid foe, the same innumerable hosts and the same enemy isolated in snow and ice during the great part of the year.

So long as Japan confines its energies to the sea and to defensive operations on land it will not encounter the fury of the power which almost without pitched battles was able to destroy the grand army of France and to cause the throne of its military dictator to crumble. Its real perils will date from the moment that it begins offensive movements on land.—[Chicago Chronicle.]

Butchers, Merchants and Hide Buyers

Should write to Carroll S. Page, Hyde Park, Vt., who wishes to purchase their Hides, Catskins, Sheep Pelts, Tallow and Bones. He pays spot cash. He pays the freights. He pays full market value. Libel For Divorce.
ANGUS MCLAN (Caledonia County Court, June Term, 1904.)

MARY ANN MCLAN vs. 1904. Whereas, Angus McLean of Peacham, in the County of Caledonia, has filed in the office of the clerk of Caledonia County Court his libel for divorce, setting forth in substance that he was legally married to Mary Ann McLean, now in parts unknown to petitioner; that the petitioner has faithfully kept the marriage covenants; that the said Mary Ann McLean has treated petitioner with intolerable severity; that she has become an habitual drunkard; that she has committed the crime of adultery; and praying that for the causes aforesaid said marriage may be dissolved and a bill of divorce granted unto him.

And it being made to appear that the said Mary Ann McLean is without this State, so that a citation cannot be served upon her; Therefore, it is ordered that notice of the pendency of said libel be given her by publication of the substance thereof, together with this order, in the St. Johnsbury Caledonian, a newspaper published at St. Johnsbury in the County of Caledonia, three weeks successively, the last of which publication to be at least six weeks prior to the first day of the next term of Caledonia County Court, to be held at St. Johnsbury, in the County of Caledonia, on the first Tuesday of June, A. D. 1904, at which time the said Mary Ann McLean is ordered to appear, and show cause, if any she have why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Given under my hand at St. Johnsbury, in the County of Caledonia, the 14th day of March, A. D. 1904.
