At the evening service the organ voluntary will be "Offertoire in D Minor," and the postlude, "Allegro from Sonata." The Sunday school will give a concert, consisting of music and speaking. The Village Grocer. Sparkling with breezy brightness, and artistic smoothness, the unique and original melodrama "The Village Grocer," with Kathryn Brayham, the queen of comedy, in her now popular character of Daisy Hopkins, the saucy Green Mountain girl, comes to the Armory Saturday night. The author, William W. Lapoint, author of "When Women Love," acknowledged the master of Yankee dialect writing, has given Miss Brayham, the best part of her successful career. The part fits her, and for two hundred nights this versatile young lady has been presenting Daisy Hopkins to audiences which taxed the capacity of nearly every playhouse in which she has appeared. Miss Brayham has made thousands laugh at her sharp wit, and weep over her pathos. Specialties of the first water introduced between acts.
