

County Court.

The case of State vs. Eddio Barr for keeping with intent to sell was given to the jury Thursday afternoon and a verdict of guilty was returned. Sentence has not been announced. The jury were then excused and paid off with the understanding that they were to return Tuesday morning unless otherwise ordered. At the time they were excused a civil case remained for trial, but this was settled. The influx of business from Hardwick, however, made their return imperative.

Walter Salham of Cabot, charged with rape on Agnes Craig of East Cabot, was brought into court Thursday. Counsel was assigned and bail fixed at $1000. Bail was furnished Saturday.

Friday was taken up with court cases and several divorces granted. The following have been granted during the term: Selma Marshall vs. William Marshall of Burke, granted for wilful desertion. Howe and Hovey for petitioner; Claude A. Norris vs. Sadie A. Norris, granted for adultery. Howe & Hovey for petitioner; Nettie E. Spencer vs. Everett T. Spencer, of Lyndon, granted for intolerable severity. Howe & Hovey for petitioner; Jessie J. Ross vs. Malcolm Ross of Hardwick, granted for wilful desertion. M. G. Morse for petitioner; Lizzie M. Opie vs. Benjamin Opie of Hardwick, granted for adultery. W. A. Dutton for petitioner; Jennie E. Page vs. Arch S. Page of Hardwick, granted for intolerable severity. M. G. Morse for petitioner; Emma S. Pettis vs. Frechon Pettis, granted for wilful desertion. Howe & Hovey for petitioner; Mary L. Wheeler vs. Demot I. Wheeler, granted for wilful desertion. F. D. Thompson for petitioner.

Monday the case of H. E. Metcalf vs. Averill Granite Company was taken up. This is an action in general assumpsit to recover about $150 for work done for defendant during the last part of 1906 and the first part of 1907. H. E. Metcalf resides in South Ryegate and the defendant formerly did business in Barre. L. P. Slack appeared for plaintiff and M. M. Gordon of Barre for defendant.

The first of the Hardwick liquor cases was taken up Tuesday. It was the case of State vs. Melia Cordella for selling and furnishing. The defendant is represented by Richard A. Hoar and M. M. Gordon of Barre. After some extremely interesting examining and cross-examining the case was given to the jury at 11 o'clock this forenoon.

Court cases were taken up during the absence of jury and a divorce granted in case of Inez A. Griswold vs. Henry D. Griswold, with permission to petitioner to resume maiden name.

Kate Smith of Peacham, who pleaded guilty June 17 to a charge of breach of peace, was sentenced to serve not more than 30 days nor less than 20 days in the county jail.

The jury, except those impaneled in the Cordella case were excused from further attendance upon this term and were paid off. It is expected that the business of the term can be cleaned up and final adjournment reached this week.

having been born at Barnet in 1835. He was the son of Drover John Galbraith. Among those present from St. Johnsbury were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Galbraith, Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Stiles, Misses Edith J. and A. Elizabeth Galbraith, George T. Galbraith, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dunnett. Mr. and Mrs. James Craigie of Ryegate were present, making a total party of about 30 people. During the day music, sports, and a fine dinner were enjoyed, and in the evening fireworks.

Important business is to be discussed and it is hoped that all the board will be present. Anyone wishing to join the club may give her name to any member to be voted on at this meeting of the executive board.

A Quiet Fourth.

The Fourth was quite sanely celebrated here, but there was no indication that Young America had forgotten to celebrate the day with some noise. It is to be hoped, however, that on July 4, 1910, some celebration may be arranged that will cause a proper observance of the day and at the same time prevent the undue amount of noise which has been the only celebration in some past years. Between nine and 10 o'clock on Monday evening an alarm was rung from box 41, which proved a false one, and supposedly rung by children. The ringing of the fire alarm always means quite an expense to the village and when it is rung unnecessarily it is a matter that should be ferreted out and the error made prominent enough to ensure the public against its repetition.

Savard-Baril Wedding.

Wednesday morning, June 30, at half past seven, Joseph Emile Savard and Miss Marie Delena Baril were married at Notre Dame church, by Father Marceau. Dorris Savard, brother of the groom, acted as best man, while Diana Baril, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The bride's dress was of white silk, with white bridal veil, and she carried a beautiful cluster of white roses. A wedding breakfast was served about 9.30 a. m. at the home of Zotique Baril, the bride's father, who resides at 11 Maple street. Mr. and Mrs. Savard took the 11 o'clock train east, for their wedding trip. They will live at North Conway, N. H.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

It is always with pleasure that the members and friends of the W. C. T. U. look forward to the June meeting of the Union. This was held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. N. Turner, last week Tuesday. It was flower mission day. A large number were in attendance and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The scripture was read by Mrs. Turner and prayer was offered by Rev. J. M. Frost. Two generous sums of money were contributed at this time by members of the union. The program consisted of a violin solo by Miss Elizabeth Randall, and a reading by Miss Madeline Mack. Both were well rendered and much enjoyed. Miss Maude E. Follensby gave a solo, accompanied by Miss Isabel F. Follensby. Rev. J. M. Frost spoke of the work of John B. Goff, Frances Willard, and other prominent temperance workers, reviewing briefly the work carried on by them and the great good accomplished. His address was most interesting and instructive. A vocal solo by Miss Edwina Blodgett and a piano solo by Miss Elsie Sargent added a great deal of pleasure to the afternoon's program. Mr. Turner spoke impressively of the work accomplished by the union and encouraged them to continue in the good work. This closed an interesting and most delightful program. Delicious refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour followed. Beautiful carnations and roses decorated the rooms. These were sent to the hospitals and sick ones in town.

WEST DANVILLE.

[From an occasional correspondent.] Clifford-Young Wedding.

The home of Mrs. Mary Clifford was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday afternoon, the contracting parties being her oldest son, Emory Clifford, and Mrs. Carrie A. Young of Derby Line, who has been a popular teacher in our village school. The ceremony was performed at two o'clock by Rev. F. E. Currier of Cabot in the presence of a small company of relatives. The house was decorated with ferns and daisies and made a pretty setting for the wedding. The bride was beautifully gowned in gray landsown, braided and trimmed with lace. After the ceremony ice cream and wedding cake were served. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford are away on a short wedding trip and on their return will reside with the groom's mother. Their many friends extend congratulations.

"The Quippy Ink Thief." "Women prisoners is quippy," said the jailer. "One had a gulp toward writin' and she was always swipin' ink out of the schoolroom."

"She swiped ink in her thimble. She'd fill the thimble up to the brim and then stand it carefully in her hair. Mighty good balancin' was required on the way back to her cell. Still, what if she did spill a drop or two on her scalp? A female convict ain't on view like a society woman, is she?"

"Of course as soon as we got on to the thimble game we put a stop to it. That didn't put a stop to the ink stealin', though. I says to her one day on the way back from the schoolroom: 'Well, Russell, no more poetry writin' with ink what don't belong to ye, hey?'"

"She just smiled and mumbled something."

"Speak up," says I. "Do ye miss yer ink—yes or no?"

"'Bub-up-uh,'" says she, tryin' to brush past me. But I grabbed her arm. I noticed a thin black thread of sump'n tricklin' from her lips. Yes, sir! Would ye believe it? She was stealin' the new Orleans ink now in her mouth!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"One summer in the country," said a well known amateur billiardist, "another man and I were overtaken by a storm and had to go into a tavern for shelter. The rain fell steadily. We had three or four long hours before us. Time began to hang heavily on our hands."

"Landlord," said I, "do you happen to have a billiard table?"

"Sure," said the landlord. "Sure. Just step this way, gents."

"He proudly threw open the door of a dark, stuffy room. We saw an antiquated table with a patched cloth, and in the corner was a rack of crooked cues."

"Any balls?" said I.

"Sure," said the landlord, and he unlocked a closet and laid on the table three white balls, all alike—there was no spot, you know."

"But, see here! I remonstrated. 'how do you tell these balls apart?'"

"Oh, that's all right," said he. "You soon get to know 'em by their shape.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Long Winded Preachers.

Dean Lefroy, who expressed the opinion that ten minutes is long enough for a sermon, would have met with scant sympathy from some divines of past centuries, says the Westminster Gazette.

Thomas Hooker considered three hours a fair average allowance for a sermon, though, on one occasion, when he was ill, he let his congregation off more lightly. Pausing at the end of fifteen minutes, he rested awhile and then continued his homily for two hours longer. Cranmer's sermons were each a small book when set up in type, and Baxter, Knox, Bunyan and Calvin rarely reached "Lastly, my brethren," under two hours.

George Herbert once said: "The parson exceeds not an hour in preaching, because all ages have thought that a competency," but a certain rector of Bilbury, Gloucestershire, was of another opinion, for he never sat down under two hours. The squire, we learn, usually withdrew after the text was announced, smoked his pipe outside and returned for the blessing.

Appropriate. A clergyman went to have his teeth fixed by a dentist. When the work was done the dentist declined to accept more than a nominal fee. The parson, in return for this favor, insisted later on the dentist accepting a volume of the reverend gentleman's own writing. It was a disquisition on the Psalms, and on the fly leaf he had inscribed this appropriate quotation: "And my mouth shall show forth thy praise."—Harper's Weekly.

"Cut rates, eh?" said the customer as he looked at his lacerated chin in the glass.—Judge.

Dreams.

"A remarkable and lucky thing happened to me once when I was dead broke," imparted the aspiring poet. "It was near to the Christmas holidays, and I, needing money badly, sent a poem to a certain magazine. On the third night after I dreamed that my poem had been accepted for $50. Of course when I woke up I was much disappointed. But the very next day, lo, there came the fifty dollar check for verses!"

"Ah, you were in luck."

"Wait. Two days subsequent back came my poem, accompanied by an explanatory epistle from the editor. In this he said that owing to a dream his treasurer had dreamed the third night previous (same night as mine) the treasurer, under the impression that his dream was a reality, forwarded my check on his own hook."

"Remarkable indeed! Did you return the check?"

"Oh, no! I sent back the poem, together with a note stating that under no circumstances could I dream of returning the fifty."—Lippincott's.

Sea Fleas.

The deep sea naturalist when preparing the skeletons of small birds and fishes for mounting calls the sea fleas to his aid. These active little crustaceans swarm on the bottom of the sea in both tropical and temperate waters and are possessed of voracious appetites. So the naturalist, after removing the skin and loose flesh from the specimen, ties it in a coarse net and lowers it into the sea until it hangs just clear of the bottom. It is immediately discovered by the sea fleas, and countless myriads of the little creatures come swarming to the work of denuding the bones. In a short time the skeleton is clean and ready to be packed or mounted. Care must be taken to haul it up at just the right moment, as if left too long to the sea fleas they will attack and devour the small bones as soon as they have finished the soft parts. A little watchfulness on the part of the naturalist will prevent this, however, and the tiny scavengers of the deep will save him a lot of unpleasant work.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Early Trotting Races.

The earliest trotting or pacing race of which any record has been found was started from a New York road house called the De Lancey Arms. This wayside tavern stood in the Bowery lane, near what is now the corner of Fourth avenue and Eighteenth street. It seems to have been an all around sporting resort in colonial days, for in 1703 it was the scene of a bull baiting, and in the previous year it was the meeting place for four horses that raced up the road about half a mile to Watt's gate, near the present corner of Fourth avenue and Twenty-ninth street. The Jamaica turnpike was the first famous speeding ground in the vicinity of New York. Until the New York Trotting club's track came into existence, in 1826, it was the accepted course for the decision of match races, and as early as 1818 it was the scene of the first match against time of which there is any record.—Exchange.

"Jump Short Pie."

In a catalogue of out of the way dishes a feast of the Rev. R. H. Barham may be included. The author of "Ingoldsby Legends," his son relates, on visiting one of his prisoners was asked to dine and have some "jump short pie." He did so and made a hearty meal. "It's very nice—tastes like lamb. Why the odd name?" he asked. "Well, sir," said his host, "it is lamb. You see, the young lambs in the mesh try to get over the drains. A good many of 'em jump short, tumble in and get drowned. Then we hooks 'em out and puts 'em into a pie. Have another help, sir?" Barham declined.—London Tatler.

April Snow.

A snow flurry in April is still looked upon as a blessing in some parts of New England, where plates, cups and all sorts of dishes are placed to catch the flakes. Every drop of the melted snow is carefully collected and bottled and labeled "April snow," for use as an eyewater. It was once considered an infallible cure for granulated eyelids and sties.—New York Tribune.

Seamanship. "I see that new ocean liner came steam her 28 knots an hour," said Smithers from his paper.

His wife looked up from her knitting with a bright smile. "I suppose they steam the knots so that the poor sailors can untie them more easily," she observed tranquilly.—St. Louis Republic.

Not That Kind.

Wearly Walker—Lady, could yer help a poor feller a little? I've got a backin' cough an' a headache. Mrs. Knudling—Well, I've got a little wood outside you could hack, and it might cure your headache. Wearly Walker—Much obliged, mum; but, yer see, my headache ain't of the splittin' kind.—London Scraps.
