

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

The Weekly Discourse of the Great Brooklyn Preacher.

Subject: "The Sunrise." Text: "The day is at hand."—Romans xii, 12.

Back from the mountains and the sea-side, and the springs, and the farmhouses, your cheek bronzed and your spirits lightened...

In all our Christian work you and I want more of the element of gladness. That man has no right to say that he is never glad...

Moreover, the outlook of the world ought to stir us to gladness. Astronomers recently disturbed many people by telling that there is danger of stellar collisions...

The first ray of the dawn I see in the gradual substitution of diplomatic skill for human butchery. Within the last twenty-five years there have been international differences which would have brought a shock of arms in any other day...

So, the quarrel eight or nine years ago about the Canadian fisheries in any other age would have caused war between the United States and England. How was it settled?

France will never again, I think, through peccadillo of ambassador, bring on a battle with other nations. She sees that God, in punishment of Sedan, blows out the French Empire, and the only heir of that throne who had any right of expectation dies in a war that has not even the dignity of being respectable.

Why did we not let William H. Stevens, of New York, and Alexander H. Stevens, of Georgia, go out and spend a few days under the trees on the banks of the Potomac and talk the matter over, and settle it, as settle they could, rather than the North pay the cost of war, four billion seven hundred million dollars, and the South pay four billion seven hundred and fifty million dollars...

There is a class of phenomena which makes me think that the spiritual and the heavenly world may, after a while, make a demonstration in this world which will bring all moral and spiritual things to a climax. Now, I am no spiritualist, but every intelligent man has...

There are two things which are the basis of our civilization. One is the power of the sword, and the other is the power of the pen. The power of the sword is the power of the strong, and the power of the pen is the power of the wise...

White serge has been used very extensively this season for yachting costumes. The Empress Frederick of Germany now enjoys an income of $350,000 a year. The more I know of men the more I admire dogs.

The Quinine-bearing Tree. This tree is a native of the mountainous parts of South America, and is named by botanists Cinchona, from the Countess of Cinchona, the wife of an early Spanish Viceroy of Peru...

Black silk gloves, fashioned like kid, and with a dull kid finish, are more popular than the undressed kid for mourning this season. The only woman barber in Boston is Jennie L. Dodge. She is a New Hampshire girl and has followed her trade with success since 1883.

Diagrams have blazed in English society this season as never before. They have even appeared in profusion in morning entertainments. Mrs. Leyton, a bright young married woman of New York city, has opened a carpenter shop. She is a skillful artisan and finds business good.

Silk gowns that have become old and shabby present a very respectable appearance under gauze and net draperies as tea gowns and ball dresses. Miss Morosini and Miss Wilson, guests at the United States Hotel, at Saratoga, N. Y., have introduced there the fashion of wearing wreaths about their heads.

Before her engagement to Lord Fife the Princess Louise of Wales had no jewels. Now she has more than her mother, who has a very plentiful supply. A Japanese woman, Miss Cassie Tel Sono, has come to America to study the condition of women here, and to prepare herself for reform work in her native land.

Parasols with porcelain handles are new while natural wood sticks are decorated with bunches of cherries, plums, or whatever tree the handles are cut from. A new feature of a dinner table by high authority: "A joint bouquet," placed between each lady and gentleman to be divided and appropriated after dinner.

French women are anxious to call another international congress of women to Paris during the Exposition, which will be similar to the one held in Washington last year. Bathers at fashionable resorts during the season were seen wearing bouquets trimmed with lace and flowers, a freak of fashion that was both incongruous and ridiculous.

The hotel men of New York city formed their association in 1887, largely to protect themselves from sneak thieves and "dead beat guests." President W. D. Garrison, of the association, says that in one year before it was formed the proprietors of the Astor House had to pay for fourteen gold watches stolen from guests.

White hats are in favor. Red reigns for country costumes. Fashion at last accords with common sense. The Empress of Austria is studying Greek. The simplest draperies are now the most stylish.

White waitecosts are particularly popular with all sorts of gowns. Miss Maria Mitchell, the astronomer, has left $1000 to Yassar College. Rosa Bonheur still vigorously wields the brush, at nearly seventy years.

English belles are adopting the small black patches of various shapes, like those of a century ago. A young lady in Wheeling, W. Va., claims to have refused forty offers of marriage during the past year.

Ornaments of dull oxidized silver, and flower brooches in white or pale purple enamel, are worn with half-mourning toilets. There are girls who buy their books to match their gowns. It doesn't matter about the contents if the binding is satisfactory.

Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, wife of the New York millionaire, is said to have adopted a rule always to retire at ten o'clock. Black silk gloves, fashioned like kid, and with a dull kid finish, are more popular than the undressed kid for mourning this season.
