School Notes.

Cheer up, 'tis better to have boined and flunked than never to have boined.

According to Elmer Hiltz, writing paragraphs for a newspaper is a dead cinch; second only to growing hair on a mud-turtle.

Colleges celebrate a day of prayer. Would it not be well to inaugurate such a day in the high school to be observed just before exams?

Ladies before gentlemen is one of the fundamental laws of etiquette. Such is "Cliff" Stevens' excuse for putting the girls on the front end of the toboggans.

The reports of the recent atrocities in Mexico will look very meagre and insignificant when compared with the list of killings to be published herein next week by our faculty.

School will re-convene April 10. The vacation might be used to advantage by some of us in preparing for the make-up examinations which come April 21.

Miss Ames will spend her vacation in Portland, Me.; Miss Fullington in Amherst, Mass., whereas the rest of the faculty will remain in Island Pond.

The Miniheca and Owaska councils of the Campfire Girls entertained the boys of the high school, Thursday evening. A variety of games afforded all present a very pleasant social hour.

Plans for the Tri-School League between Canaan, Island Pond and North Stratford are now well under way, all parties having signified their intention of becoming members. The adoption of rules, choosing of a prize cup, and arrangement of schedules are problems of the future.

Friday night witnessed the exodus of a very sociable party of young people, members of the high school. They travelled by slow freight to East Charleston, where they were fortunate enough to chance upon a Christian Endeavor social in the church, which fairly radiated hospitality and good cheer. After a brief sojourn the party said their goodbyes sorrowfully and sadly, hitched Dobbin to the shay and recommenced the tedious trip between ports. Nothing save a few trivial accidents and an endless round of chorus singing transpired to arrest the monotony of the home coming and awake our locals from the lethargy of sleep.

I. O. F. Entertainment

The meeting announced in the interests of the I. O. F., and held last Friday evening, proved to be very interesting, instructive, and beneficial.

The entertainment by the children was most enjoyable, and they are deserving of much credit.

Mr. Tromblay of Littleton, N. H., also favored the audience with several vocal selections, which if judged by the encores, were highly appreciated.

The speakers, E. L. Wilkinson of Toronto and E. J. Cummings of Littleton, N. H., explained in a clear and concise manner, the advantages and benefits of the Independent Order of Forestry, in all its branches.

This meeting has proved helpful all along the lines of the Order, and much benefit is being derived from it. Mr. Wilkinson is to be here for a few days and will have a special meeting for the members of the Order before leaving.
