AYER'S Ague Cure,

FOR THE SPEEDY CURE OF Intermitting Fever, or Fever and Ague, Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, and Bilious Fevers, indeed for the whole class of diseases originating in biliary derangement, caused by the Malaria of miasmatic countries.

No one remedy is louder called for by the necessities of the American people than a sure and safe cure for Fever and Ague. Such we are now enabled to offer, with a perfect certainty that it will eradicate the disease, and with assurance, founded on proof, that no harm can arise from its use in any quantity.

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails. Prevention is better than cure, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of the miasmatic poison. This "Cure" expels the miasmatic poison from the system and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its precursive symptoms. It is not only the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of every body; and in laboring districts, where Fevers and Agues prevail, every body should have it and use it freely both for cure and protection. It is hoped this price will place it within the reach of all—the poor as well as the rich. A great superiority of this remedy over any other ever discovered for the speedy and certain cure of Intermitting Fevers, and certain cure of Remittent Fevers, is that it contains no Quinine or mineral, consequently it produces no quinine or other injurious effects whatever upon the constitution. Those cured by it are left as healthy as if they had never had the disease.

Fever and Ague is not alone the consequence of the miasmatic poison. A great variety of diseases arise from its irritation, among which are Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Headache, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affection of the Spine, Hysterics, Pain in the Bowels, Colic, Paralysis, and Derangement of the Stomach, all of which, when originating in this cause, put on the intermitting type, or become periodical. This "Cure" expels the poison from the blood, and consequently cures them all alike. It is an invaluable protection to immigrants and persons travelling or temporarily residing in the malarious districts. If taken occasionally or daily while exposed to the infection, that will be exerted from the system, and cannot accumulate in sufficient quantity to ripen into disease. Hence it is even more valuable for protection than cure, and few will ever suffer from Intermitting Fevers, if they avail themselves of the protection this remedy affords.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

FOR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A FAMILY PHYSIC, are so composed that disease within the scope of their action can rarely withstand or evade them. Their penetrating properties search, and cleanse, and invigorate every portion of the human system, correcting its diseased action, and restoring its healthy vitality. As a consequence of these properties, the invalid who is lowered down with pain or physical debility is enabled to find his health or energy restored by a remedy at once so simple and inviting.

Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also many formidable and dangerous diseases. The agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis to American Almanacs, containing certificates of their cures and directions for their use in the following complaints: Constipation, Headache, Nervousness, Indigestion, Flatulence, Stomachic Distention, Biliousness, Liver Troubles, Dropsy, Jaundice, and other kindred complaints, arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions. They are an excellent alternative for the restoration of the blood and the restoration of tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are the cases of its cures, that almost every section of country abounds in persons publicly known, who have been cured of alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs by its use. When once tried, its superiority over every other medicine of its kind is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs that are incident to our climate. While many inferior remedies thrust upon the community have failed and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted that can never be forgotten, and produced cures too numerous and too remarkable to be forgotten.

PREPARED BY DR. J. C. AYER & CO. LOWELL, MASS.

Sold by Huber & Friedman, Jasper; Dr. W. Schummann, Ferdinand; Wm. Mahin, Ireland; Winger & Milburn, Harroville; and by all dealers in medicines every where. Wholesale by R. A. Robinson & Co., Louisville; Allen & Co., Cincinnati. May 1, '61.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has been appointed administrator de bonis non of the estate of Joseph Heim, late of Dubois county, deceased. Said estate is supposed to be solvent. oct 16 FRANCIS G. GEHLHAUSEN.

Not a Story.

Mr. Jones was married. He had been married a long time, since he could remember a most. The first Mrs. Jones was a pretty school boy love, and died early. Mr. Jones was inconsolable for more than six months, and then, finding the burden of his grief too heavy to be borne alone, decided to share his regrets with a sympathizing feminine friend. This connection was a happy one for many years; but, alas for the mutability of earthly pleasures! Mr. Jones was again a widower at the age of forty, and being extremely lonesome, and having the habit of marrying, he offered his broken life and bereaved affections to Miss Patience Norcross, a mature young lady of thirty.

We have said that Mr. Jones had a habit of being married, and it had so grown upon him that, had Providence opened the way, he would in all probability have followed up a series of bereavements with a succession of consolations. But in selecting Miss Patience, he had no regard to compatibility of temper. He had never thought anything about it. His other marriages had been happy accidents, and, so far as he knew or reflected, that was the order of nature. But Miss Patience had a habit, too, and it was in accordance with her name, for it was the habit of endurance. It was a failing that leaned to virtue's side, and beyond it. She lived in the remote and future. The present with her was never anything but a make-shift—a mere temporary expedient till better times. Distance not only lent enchantment to her objects of pursuit, but was absolutely the only charm to which she was sensitive. She really liked Mr. Jones up to the hour of his proposals; she sneekily tolerated him ever after.

They were boarding for a time, and the wife said submissively to all her friends:

"Oh, yes, it is very comfortable for the present, until we feel able to keep house."

Mr. Jones, after the remark had been reiterated for the fiftieth time; asserted that he was able to keep house.

To provide this, he engaged and furnished a tasteful tenement, and another year saw Mistress Patience the patient mistress of her own fire-side.

"What a pleasant situation," said Dame Grundy, as she called on a tour of inspection.

"Why yes," said Mrs. Jones. "It is all we can expect in a house we hire. If we were to build, we should plan very differently, of course. And then you know, one could have the heart to make improvements in shrubbery and fruit trees. O, Mrs. Grundy, I hope to live long enough to have a house of my own."

Mr. Jones was well-to-do and good-natured. Moreover, he was a little obtuse, as we have seen, and he did not perceive that something to put up with, is with most of us a practical necessity. So he said very generously:

"Mrs. Jones, in another year you shall have a house of your own."

"I am afraid you cannot afford to build such a house as I would like."

"I can and I will. You shall modify the plan yourself, or draw a new one if you prefer."

Mrs. Jones sighed. "It will take so long in building," and from that hour every rational enjoyment was deferred until they should get into their new dwelling. There were the usual delays and disappointments, and Mrs. Jones' love of endurance was fully gratified; she was regaled with a "lingering sweetness long drawn out." At length the house was built and furnished, the grounds laid out and planted, and the wheels of the new establishment fairly in motion. Moreover, by rare good luck, there was very little to alter and undo; most of the arrangements were desirable and the experiments successful.

"Hope my dear," said Mr. Jones, benevolently, "that we are in a condition to take comfort."

"If we ever get settled," assented Mrs. Jones with a sigh.

Well, years rolled on, and they were settled. The flowers bloomed, and the fruits ripened. The turf thickened into velvet, and the trees grew tall and cast a welcome shade. Strangers paused to admire the premises as they passed, and neighbors paid their various tributes of envy and admiration. Mr. Jones grew to look portly and contented. Not so with Mrs. Jones. To all the encomiums lavished upon her residence, she replied submissively: "Yes it's a pretty place, but we don't know who we built for. We have no children to come after us, and we are just putting up improvements for strangers to pull down."

Was ever woman so favored of an indulgent fortune? Within a year after the utterance of this remark, Mrs. Jones was the happy—no, the patient mother of a real, genuine, glorious baby. Mr. Jones, who had with difficulty refrained from happiness before, was uncontrollably jubilant now. The boy was healthy, handsome, and bright. There was no mistake about him; he was a fixed fact, a star of the first magnitude. He had wants, it is true, for which the fond father was intensely thankful, for to gratify and prevent them was his supreme delight.

And the mother? Alas, here was all a mother's cares, anxieties and forebodings. Until he was weaned, she scarcely left the house, or indulged in the simplest luxuries of diet. Then there was the long period of teeth-cutting, during which her maternal apprehensions were never appeased. Then she lived in fear of the measles, whooping cough, and scarlet fever, until the young hero met and conquered them all. He grew round and rosy, and she thin and anxious, but still unalterably patient. At school she feared he might study too much, or too little, and as her fears were pretty equally divided between the two perils, it is presumed that he avoided both. Then she had a general misgiving lest he should be spoiled, and from too much petting at home, become an indolent and useless member of society. But though the reader may share her fears in this regard, Master Jones falsified them all. Indulgence and opportunity seemed to agree with him. He was ambitious and self-reliant, and not objectionably willful. When at last he decided to study for a profession, the mother fitted out his wardrobe with reluctant care, and his first letter from college was moistened with rather more than a full proportion of maternal tears.

"I am glad he is doing well," she said, in reply to a remark from her husband, "but I miss him more than I can tell you. Since we have only one, we could wish he would have stayed with us. The seven years of his student life are long to wait."

"To wait for what?" inquired Mr. Jones.

"For the good time coming," replied his wife.

"Why, woman, the good time has come, long ago. Can't you see it? We've been having it all along."

"It may be so with you, Mr. Jones, but I have never been free from anxiety for one minute in my life."

"And never will be, my dear," returned the husband. "It is positively your strong point, and I have quite an admiration for your skill in it. You will find more to submit to in any given circumstances than any woman I have ever known."

Mrs. Jones raised her eyes to her husband in meek surprise. She forgave him, and was silent.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR SOLDIERS.—The patriotic, whole-souled ladies of Dubois county, are responding nobly to the call of the U. S. Quartermaster General for their aid in providing our gallant volunteers with the necessary articles to protect them from the piercing cold of the approaching winter.—This is a matter which the Government should have had foresight enough to attend to in time, so as not to be compelled to call for contributions from its citizens, but because it did not have, is no reason why those who have gone out to fight our battles should be allowed to suffer and die, while we at home could easily spare sufficient to keep them comfortable. Every dictate of christianity, humanity and patriotism would shudder at such a suggestion. This is, as it should be, the feeling in this community, and in accordance with it, to give a practical effect to their sympathies, a meeting of ladies assembled on Monday night at Rev. A. J. Strain's; a committee of ten ladies was appointed to solicit contributions to be delivered by the 15th of November, and we learn that so far contributions have been very liberal. Messrs. John Mann, E. G. Connelly, and C. Doane were appointed a committee to attend to the forwarding of the articles, and contributions left at the houses of either of these persons will be properly forwarded to the Quartermaster General, who, as soon as a sufficient number is received for any particular regiment, will dispatch a special messenger to the regiment, so that the articles are sure of reaching their destination. The articles most needed are blankets, socks, mittens, undershirts, drawers, &c. The Quartermaster has provided that any person donating articles can have them sent to whom they wish in the army, by distinctly marking on every article the name of the person they intend the articles for, together with the regiment and company to which he belongs, before forwarding them, thus:

Donated to the United States for the use of Mr. _____ Company _____, Capt _____, _____ Regiment, Indiana Volunteers. Care of Quartermaster General of Indiana. From _____

We hope the ladies of this county will secure enough contributions to render each volunteer in the service of his country from this county, comfortable.

Articles received without any preference marked on them are distributed according to the discretion of the Quartermaster.

The Ireland folks gave to the recruits mustered by Lieut. Alexander for Captain Banta's company of volunteers a magnificent supper on last Thursday evening. R. Smith, Esq., and Rev. A. J. Strain made the speeches on the occasion. Next morning the recruits, twenty-seven in number, were taken to Princeton in wagons. This merry fills Capt. Banta's company. We understand this company has elected D. J. Banta, Captain; A. H. Alexander, 1st Lieutenant; Gleason, 2d Lieutenant; John Norman Orderly Sergeant. We hope the Orderly will furnish us a copy of the Company roll, for publication.

A portion of the company raised by Capt. Bohart and others is now in Camp at Celestine. This company is now nearly full and expects to leave for Camp J. Holt (between New Albany and Jeffersonville) next Monday. This company is principally made up in Holt township.
