INQUIRY INTO OCCUPATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF HAITI AND SANTO DOMINGO

Hearings Before a Select Committee on Haiti and Santo Domingo, U. S. Congress. Part 3

(Printed for the use of the select committee on Haiti and Santo Domingo. Washington Government Printing Office, 1922. May be obtained free on application to, Elisha Hanson, Clerk, Select Committee on Haiti and Santo Domingo.)

Much has been written on Haiti and Santo Domingo, but this government document is the most human work that I have yet seen. We have in it a testimony taken in Haiti for five days and testimony and reports of the United States occupation in Santo Domingo. The Haitian material is the more readable. It was secured at Port au Prince, Hinche, and the plantation of Adalaye. Then, to the intense disappointment of the Haitians, the Commission went on to San Domingo, leaving a large part of the island quiet unvisited. But they heard stories that should have started America had they been reported. Here are a few of them.

M. Jose Derebier at Hinche: "Two brothers of mine, one 15, the other 25, were killed. The one 25 was a cripple. He was sitting on a bed of rice when a white man with a revolver killed him. He took the other boy by the arm, and said, 'Come out of here, garcon,' and with the same revolver shot him twice."

Madame Maxine: "I have to tell the Commission of how my mother and brother were killed. My brother came and called me after my mother was shot. There were three white men going along the road. They were passing and they came in. My mother was shot through the side and in both breasts. My brother was taken prisoner by the white men and maltreated and sent to Cape Haitien and died in prison."

M. Mezier Belloni, Plantation of Adalays: "I lost my father and mother. They were killed by marines under the command of Becker. I was sleeping in another house. They took my father and tied him to a tree, my mother was standing inside, and then set fire to the house. When my mother cried out they called her inside the house. There was another boy in the house and when they shot my mother, the boy saw that they had tied up my father and ran out, and when he came out they started shooting at him until he had time to reach a ravine; and when he fell into the ravine they left him and came back and killed my father, breaking his head."

Mme. Celicourt Rozier: "I am going to show you where I received the bullets in the fingers and above the left knee. All my children have died. Becker, or a man, with a name like that, did it. There were eight children; they were shot first and then fire was set to the house and they were all burned."

One feels that the volume ought to have another name: "Lynchings by Americans. Volume two, Haiti." These stories tally only too well with the atrocities committed against the Negroes in the United States. Here is the same carelessness as to human life, the same burning, the same torturing. There is further testimony of reputable citizens who were thrown out of their homes that the marines might occupy them; imprisoned without trial, tortured. One man was burned with an iron over his body and legs. Another was handcuffed and then hung up to an iron bar by a chain attached to his wrists, because he would not lend his horse to a marine. Throughout all the testimony, one reads of a tragic, brutal treatment of a foreign people, whose country we have no more right to rule than they would have to rule ours.

Of Santo Domingo the report is concerned largely with statistics showing the growth of trade, the building of roads, the establishment of schools since the American occupation. It is an interesting setting forth of the imperial policy into which we have entered. But somehow the Santo Dominicans don't like it. It is something as though Andrew Carnegie, when he saw that our country needed more libraries, instead of offering to help finance a library if the town would raise a part of the needed sum, had raised a regiment, gone into the town, fired shots, imprisoned those, the most prominent citizens, who dared to defy him and had then taxed the people for the library, that he believed they ought to have. His money would not have gone for books, but for soldiers and bullets. We should have had the libraries, but I doubt if we should have enjoyed them. Certainly the Santo Domingo people have something to say against the way in which American civilization has been thrust upon them. They even complain at times that the funds have not been honestly administered by the Americans. They tell us politely to get out and to let them mind their own affairs. If they did have a revolution occasionally, the Americans were not molested, and they would like to know what business it is of the United States whether they are having internal troubles or not.

Testimony like this makes one puzzle over one's history. We were taught at school, that the most horrible character in American history was Benedict Arnold, the traitor who

HON. JAMES A. SCOTT
Able and Popular Assistant State's Attorney of Cook County and Republican Candidate for County Commissioner.

The people of our Race should show their appreciation for the Hon. James A. Scott, at present an Assistant State's Attorney under Judge Crowe, and a candidate for County Commissioner on the Regular Republican ticket. When the Race was in need of friends—during the race riot in 1919, Mr. Scott very unselfishly volunteered his services as a lawyer and went to the defense of our boys in jail, and for months he battled in the Municipal Courts of Chicago and the Criminal Courts of Cook County, succeeding in having a large number exonerated. His remarkable defense of John Washington in the Criminal Court—Judge Robert E. Crowe presiding—can never be forgotten, and now that Mr. Scott is a candidate for County Commissioner his friends should rally to his united support, he certainly deserves the honor. Mr. Scott's long years of residence in Chicago has endeared the people of his Race to him, because he has always been true, upright and honest, willing at all times to do all in his power for the advancement of that Race which has been so sorely oppressed. His so-called defeat, two years ago, for Municipal Court Judge, at the Republican primary, has been shrouded in mystery ever since. It is very difficult to understand how, the "Chicago Tribune" and "Daily News" could have been so badly mistaken when each announced Mr. Scott's nomination for that judgeship after the primary.

Do not fail to go to the polls on Primary Day—the 11th day of April—and place a cross in the square opposite the name of James A. Scott, candidate for County Commissioner. He is worthy of your support, and if nominated and elected to that office, will reflect credit and honor upon the whole Race.

Mr. Scott ranks with the best and ablest lawyers in this section of the county, he ably served as Assistant State's Attorney under the late John E. W. Wayman; he was one of the very first appointments made by Hon. Robert E. Crowe, and he was placed in complete charge of the Habeas Corpus and Extradition department and from that time to the present no one has ever questioned his legal ability or any of his actions in connection with it. In fact, State's Attorney Crowe has never visited his department to ascertain why he had failed to do thus or so.

Mr. Scott possesses much literary ability for he is the author of a very valuable text or law book on Habeas Corpus and extradition, which is used by all the leading lawyers throughout the United States.

All Republicans can vote for him for County Commissioner Tuesday, April 11.—Adv.

MR. J. EDWARD HARTLEY

Republican candidate for the nomination for member of the Legislature from the Fifth Senatorial District of Illinois. The Big Cheap Boss Democrat of the Twelfth Ward.

Mr. J. Edward Hartley, who ranks high with the Knights of Pythias, being Past Chancellor Commander of Roosevelt Lodge, No. 647, K. P., seems to be making a telling race for the nomination for the Legislature, in the Fifth Senatorial District.

There are many Colored voters residing in that district, who will vote for him on primary day, for he is a true blue Republican.

Any qualified voter can vote for him three times by putting an X in front of his name and not voting for any other candidate.
