What Ralph wrote to Bill

BILL is a good substantial citizen who, like many of us, had, up to a short time ago, never saved his money systematically.

He never really thought seriously of investing in bonds until he was married a few years ago. Being inexperienced in financial matters, he wrote several letters to Ralph, an attorney friend of his, who answered all his questions in a very simple and clear manner.

We have just published a booklet called "An Investor's Letters" which contains all of Ralph's and Bill's correspondence. You will find it very interesting and it may clear up some of the questions you have in your own mind about investment matters.

We shall be glad to send "An Investor's Letters" free of charge or obligation in answer to requests for it.

HELD SECRET OF HAPPINESS

John Wesley's Nearly Ninety Years Passed With Remarkably Few Periods of Depression.

There was John Wesley. His "Journal," with its record of indefatigable labor, is one of the cheeriest books in the language. What a rare good time he had! When he was eighty-seven he could say, "I do not remember to have felt lowness of spirits for a quarter of an hour since I was born." For more than sixty years this indefatigable pleasure-seeker had been doing as he pleased. Up every day in time to preach at five o'clock in the morning; then over the hills or through the pleasant lanes to preach again at the time lazy citizens were ready for breakfast; off again, on horseback, or by chaise or in a lumbering stage coach, for more preaching. . . . Now and then facing a mob, or being wet through in a thunder storm, or stopping to get information in regard to some old ruin. Between sermons he refreshed his mind with all sorts and conditions of books. On the pleasant road to Chatham he reads Tasso's "Jerusalem Delivered." On the road to Aberdeen he loses himself delightedly in the misty subtleties of Ossian. "Orlando Furioso" is good Saturday reading. The eager octogenarian confesses that "Astolpho's shield and horn and voyage to the moon, the lance that unhorses everyone, the all-penetrating sword, and I know not how many impenetrable helmets and shields" are rather too much for his sober English imagination. Still, they afford an agreeable interlude in his missionary journeys. — Samuel M. Chord Crothers, in "Among Friends."

YOUTH NOT GOLDEN SEASON

Modern Writer Takes Issue With Others Who Have Dubbed It the Best Period of Life.

Following is from "The Way of All Flesh," by Samuel Butler—not the Seventeenth century poet, but the Nineteenth century novelist:

"To me it seems that youth is like spring, an overpraised season—delightful if it happen to be a favored one, but in practice very rarely favored and more remarkable, as a general rule, for biting east winds than genial breezes. Autumn is the mellow season, and what we lose in flowers we more than gain in fruits. Fontelle, at the age of ninety, being asked what was the happiest time of his life, said he did not know, that he had ever been much happier than he then was, but that perhaps his best years had been those when he was between fifty-five and seventy-five, and Dr. Johnson placed the pleasures of old age far higher than those of youth. True, in old age we live under the shadow of death, which, like a sword of Damocles, may descend at any moment, but we have so long found life to be an affair of being rather frightened than hurt, that we have become like the people who live under Vesuvius, and chance it without much misgiving."

Birds Guard Our Trees.

We can spray orchards and shade trees with poisonous insecticides, but we would stand against at the impossible task of spraying all the trees in all the woods, says the American Forestry Magazine. We must perforce depend on the natural enemies of insects to protect our forests. Fortunately, birds and other foes of insects, wherever their numbers are sufficient, act as effective forest guardians.

Mountain of Sulphur.

By looking on a map of the South seas, one can find the New Hebrides, about 900 miles east of Queensland, Australia, and southwest of the Solomon Islands. At the north end of the group is an island called Vanua Lavu. This island is a mountain, a big one, 1,600 feet high and covering an area of 100 square miles. But the remarkable thing about it is that it is composed wholly of sulphur. Nothing like it is to be found anywhere in the world.

Hint to Precarious.

Take a piece of heavy copper wire 11 inches long and bend it in the shape of a hairpin. Lock the door, leaving the key in the lock, then place the curved angle of the wire over the shank or spindle back of the knob and put the two ends of the wire through the head of the key. The key cannot be pushed out nor turned. This is a light device which one can carry in a handbag if so desired and use in hotel rooms when traveling.

Solitaire.

Solitaire is a game played on a board invented with 33 or 37 hemispherical hollows, with the same number of balls or marbles. An unoccupied hollow is left by removing one ball, and the balls, or pieces, are then captured as in checkers. No moves are allowed in diagonal directions or over more than one space at a time. The trick is to leave a solitary ball in the center hole.

Get Author's Point of View.

Much confusion in thought and much bitterness in criticism would be avoided if more readers tried to get the author's point of view. At any rate, proper and improper methods of reading deserve more consideration than they have received. For reading is an art that lends itself to efficiency tests and improvement.—Exchange.
