New Years Address.

We notify our city readers that the Gazette carrier boy, JOSEPH HEMEL, will be on hand early New Years morning to greet them with a first rate poetical Address; and we trust his reception will be such as to make his pocket heavy and his heart light. A number of our business men will make this Address the medium for presenting their advertisements in an attractive way to the public. It is a good one—and as the proceeds will go to the carrier, we hope others will do themselves and him the favor of patronizing him in this way. Advertisements for this purpose should be handed in early next week.

What kind of Oil was it?

Various reports are in circulation as to the kind of oil contained in the lamp by the explosion of which Mrs. Coffman lost her life. It is denied by some that it was coal oil, which our paragraph of last week did not intimate that it was, further than by the use of the expression, "coal oil lamp." We will unhesitatingly publish the facts on this point whenever they are positively ascertained and furnished for that purpose.

Raid on a Poultry Roost.

On Friday night last, about midnight, a gang of ill begotten scoundrels made a predatory incursion into the chicken and turkey department on the farm of Mrs. Joshua Clarke, near the city, now tenanted by a respectable and industrious colored man, Mr. Qualls Tibbs. At the time named, Tibbs was awakened by a commotion among the feathered stock; whereupon he jumped out of bed, donned a portion of his apparel, seized his rifle and sallied forth to the scene of disturbances. Here he espied half a dozen or more male feathered bipeds, already loaded down with their squalling spoil, and in the act of taking about the last of the birds from their perches, before taking their line of march for some raffling den. The turkeys cried "quit," the hens squawked in chorus, and Qually yelled—"What de debil yo doin, dah?" Instantly the party broke like quarter horses but still hung to their spoils—while Qually's dog, and Qually in his bare feet, gave chase over the "cold, cold ground." Presently he let fly with his gun, and brought down more game, probably, than was ever "drapped" in one shot before. The dummers, to accelerate their speed, let go their impedimenta, or a large part thereof, and made a Bull Run flight of it. Qually, seeing further pursuit useless, now began to pick up his poultry, with which the line of retreat was strewn—here a gobbler; there a rooster; further on three turkeys tied together with a handkerchief; and hens in profusion running in every direction. With all he could carry, Qually returned home; deposited them safely; put on his boots and retraced his steps on the route taken by the retreating thieves, and was enabled to trace them to the foot of Broad street in this city, more than a mile from his residence, by the specimens of the gallinaceous tribe scattered along the road. He gathered up what he could of them; and during the night and next morning succeeded in regaining fourteen out of twenty-three of the turkeys and an indefinite number of other fowls which had been so ruthlessly snatched from their peaceful resting places.

Qually is still minus a few turkeys and chickens; but we don't believe the mean thieves who robbed him have much to brag of in the net result of their enterprise—and if his weapon had been a double-barreled shot-gun and he had lodged a charge or two of shot in some of their carcasses, a posteriori, we hardly think the sympathies of the white portion of our community would have led them to mob Qually for the outrage.

FATAL EXPLOSION.—On Tuesday last week, at Marquette, Michigan, Mr. ELMORE ALFRED, a young man recently of this vicinity, and whose parents reside about a mile south of Lancaster, met his death in a shocking manner. A steam fire engine was engaged in pumping water into the skating rink at that place, and a crowd had collected to witness the operation. Mr. Alfred being among the people assembled. The boiler of the engine exploded, scattering death and wounds on every hand. Mr. Alfred received injuries resulting in his death in two hours, and five other persons were killed by the same explosion. The afflicting intelligence was first obtained from a Cincinnati paper, and afterwards confirmed by a letter to the parents of the unfortunate young man. He was about 18 years of age.

Our former fellow citizen, THOMAS LOCKHART, has returned to his old home from Marysville, California, where he has for several years been a resident. We learn that he proposes to make this place his residence for the future. His numerous friends are rejoiced to have him once more among them.

Postponement.

The lecture announced in our last for Tuesday evening next, to be delivered by Rev. B. N. STARN, before the Young Men's Christian Association, is, owing to the occurrence of religious meetings, festivals, &c., about the same time, postponed till the succeeding Tuesday evening, Jan. 5th. The subject of the lecture will be announced in our next issue.

Laudable Turnpike Project.

We cheerfully give place to communication in the interest of a proposed turnpike from Lancaster to the Licking county line by the way of Pleasantville and New Salem, principally in the line of the old Newark road. The views of the writer are so practical and reasonable, and presented in a manner so sensible and convincing, that in our limited space we can add nothing that will increase the force of the considerations he urges in favor of the enterprise referred to. We therefore invite the particular attention of those interested (who comprise all who are interested in the general prosperity of our county and city) to the communication in another column, under the head of "Turnpikes."

SMOKING TOBACCO.

To all lovers of the pipe, we would say that PARRAN & MARTIN are selling an article of Smoking Tobacco, which, having tried it, we have no hesitation in pronouncing A No. 1.—They have been retailing the same at $1.25 per pound, but being desirous of closing out the lot, they are now selling it at 60 cents.—Neatly done up in boxes of one pound each. Try it.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.

A meeting for the election of thirteen Directors of the Hocking Valley Railroad, is to be held at the office of the Company, in Columbus, Jan'y 26, 1869. Advertisement in another column.

SOME WEEKS SINCE THE PAPER

contained a statement of the murder of the Sheriff of the Sandwich Islands. For seventeen years John C. Conroy, son of Mrs. C. Conroy, of our city, has been Sheriff, and the news filled her and her friends with extreme sorrow. Several letters were addressed to Dr. Swett, Charge, from the Islands, and the following received in answer. We heartily rejoice that the widow's heart has been comforted:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 12, 1868.

My dear Madam:—Mr. Billinghurst's letter with reference to your son Mr. Conroy, of Hilo, Hawaii, has just met me at this city, and I seize a minute from my arduous engagements to relieve the fear which you are suffering from the item of the newspaper.

The person killed was not Sheriff Conroy, but deputy Sheriff Neville. The affair happened at Kona, a hundred miles from the residence of your son.

I am well acquainted with Mr. Conroy, and esteem him very much as a friend and gentleman. At the date of our leaving Honolulu, both he and his family were quite well. I remain yours truly,

J. MATT SWETT.

From the time when children enter school, until they leave, their minds are more, perhaps, under the guidance of their teachers than their parents; and hence the transcendental importance that our educational institutions should be congenial to the growth and maturity of the moral and religious sentiments, as well as the mere intellect. And the supreme importance of this want is the more apparent, when it is remembered, that in too many families the conditions do not exist at home for the efficient culture of the higher and nobler attributes of our common nature. Let us enter then upon the consideration of this department of our subject with the understanding, that the work of common schools is to be directed to a higher duty than merely teaching the young idea how to shoot. And in this light we are not to forget that it is mainly between the sixth and twentieth years, that character for life is formed; character that, though it will be in after years more or less modified by surrounding circumstances, yet will carry along to the end the foundations laid during these plastic years of life, and which will, in spite of ourselves, hold a controlling influence on all future conduct.

Man wants to be brought out—to be made the most of that his innate abilities admit of; and to that end he has a birth-right to the best aids and facilities that society is capable of conceiving and executing; and it shall be the purpose of these papers to show that common schools are to be our chief means in the formation of character. It is lamentable, I think, that in modern years much more (than long ago) the public mind has come to regard schools simply as places and means where children are to get an "education"; that is, where they are to be taught letters, and some of the outlines of science; and to be reminded en passant, that there are such things as morals, and religion, and humanity to be attended to after a while, when they get time to do it. I say reminded en passant, for I will not allege that teachers, and superintendents, and boards, do not bring these precepts before their pupils. But we have all long since learned that the mere preaching of good precepts is as the whistling wind, if not enforced by daily, unremitted, unflinching, living example. A homely phrase will express the fact, so far as children and youth are concerned; and we therefore, that talking to children and youth about matters they do not fully comprehend, especially if they see the conduct of their teachers, the converse of what they speak, simply passes the words in at one ear, to be passed out at the other, with no note at all taken of them. Even very small children see us read us far more shrewdly than we imagine. They take their key, and license too, from what we do more than what we say. How many of us know this, and govern ourselves accordingly?

And now, if this is understood, and we all agree about it, it becomes to us a very serious matter, to give our most earnest attention to see if our schools are fulfilling, or approximating the demand here alluded to. No parent, or guardian, or citizen, may shrink from their share of the responsibility by enrolling themselves that they have paid, or are paying their money for school purposes; and that there is a school system, and teachers, and school houses, and boards of education, and let them take the matter in hand because they are paid for it; and thus get all further trouble about it off their hands. The subject is of too much importance, and is too much an individual care to be so lightly turned to one side and made a thing to itself. We want a broad, and deep, and universal manhood, and a boundless charity, taught in our common schools, by competent teachers; in every required sense. I have deemed this much proper to say before saying more specifically what I would have taught in school, and by what kind of persons, which will form the basis of the succeeding paper.

King Pork. Hogs in Cincinnati have gone up to $9 55 gross, and have touched $12, for net weight.

The Commercial of the 22d says—Prices now current are on a Gold basis actually $1 83 in gold higher than they were when they sold at $1 62 net in 1864!

After a while we shall hear that a few pork dealers have "gone up."

The Steubenville Herald says there is a disease attacking the turkeys in that county and neighborhood, which is decreasing the number of birds to an alarming extent. The bird says an eye witness, appears to be in its usual health, with a good appetite, when it is seized with a pain in the neck, which paralyzes its whole body, and death soon ensues.

The above is cut from the Cincinnati Chronicle, which, with many other papers, publishes it in seeming good faith as a news item. The disease spoken of is very prevalent hereabouts also. We have a globular that's going to die with it to day.

There is no mistake about it. PLANTATION BITTERS will ward off Fever and Ague and all kindred diseases, if used in time. No family need suffer from this distressing complaint if they will keep Plantation Bitters in the house, and use it according to directions. The most important ingredient of this medicine is Calisaya or Peruvian Bark, which is known to be the finest and purest tonic in the vegetable kingdom.

The extract of this Bark is the active principle of all the good Fever and Ague Medicines prescribed by intelligent doctors. Calisaya Bark is used extensively in the manufacture of Plantation Bitters, as well as quinine, and we dare say they owe their popularity mostly to that fact. We can recommend them.

LOCAL NOTICES.

XENIA COLLEGE. This Boarding School for young ladies has closed a more than usually pleasant and prosperous session. For years the managers have employed able, experienced teachers, and have liberally provided for the table. They have done more than the usual time and attention to the English branches and those pertaining to "teach. They have aimed to leave nothing undone which would advance the interests of their pupils; nor they are copying the result in a large number of testimonials from the Boarding House. Next session will commence Jan. 5th. Any desired information may be received by addressing WILLIAM SMITH, Xenia College, Xenia, O.

"CHRISTMAS GIFT"

Referring to the wishes of my esteemed friends, the ladies of Lancaster, and in accordance with my own convictions of right, I have resolved to make a change in my business, and to devote myself to the sale of the most reliable and useful articles of my own manufacture. I have been found guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, and am contented with my place, near, I hope, to be reinstated. Honors by my resignation, and in my business, without fear and without reproach, to enjoy such exceptional refreshments as will always be provided on call.

I intend to keep an EVENING HOUSE, in the strict meaning of the term. The delicacies and the substantial of all seasons and all accessible lands will be served in their proper season.

And, as an additional feature, I shall keep a variety of Toys, Novelties and Fancy Articles suitable for Christmas and New Year's Presents and presents at any other time. I wish my friends to come and see me, and patronize my enterprise according to its merits.

Captain WILSON, agent! We open the level—We open the square.

CHARLES MILLER.

POSTSCRIPT! I take pleasure in announcing a business connection with Mr. THOMAS C. BORG, and that the business will be conducted as you indicated under the style of MILLER & BORG. We endeavor to lay to the public, and sell at liberal patronage. MILLER & BORG.

You may say what you will—but the place of all others, To buy gifts for Christmas is surely Creed Brothers.

ALL THE GIRLS AND BOYS. Have you tried those Excelsior Oysters at Bauman's? If not, there is yet enjoyment in store for you. Half can, 45 cents. Dish 25 cents.

Governor Gary has issued a proclamation announcing that the State debt of Pennsylvania has been reduced $2,400,014 during the past year.

Sights at Creeds. Creed Bros. have some of the most unique and remarkable things in the toy line you ever saw. Candies by the pound, or by the hat full. Jerk somebody out and squeeze in after your share.

We saw, the other day, a poor little ragged girl looking into the show window of J. C. Smith, oh, so wistfully! We felt—in our pocket, and the little one went in with a much brightened countenance.
