Agreeably to the call of the chairman, several members of the County Executive Committee met in Dr. Farrar's office last Saturday, but a quorum not being present, no business was transacted. A new call was issued, and the members of the committee were notified to meet at the Court-house next Saturday, the 10th inst. We trust there will be a full attendance, for work of importance is to be transacted.

The installation of the Rev. A. W. Wright as pastor of the Ironton Presbyterian Church will occur on the evening of the 13th inst., beginning at 7 1/2 o'clock. Rev. Drs. Brookes and Marquess, of St. Louis, and Rev. E. P. Keach, of Mine La Motte, will participate in the services. Dr. Brookes will deliver the sermon; Dr. Marquess, the charge to the pastor, and Rev. Mr. Keach, the charge to the people. The services will be of an interesting character throughout, and it will be a rare treat to hear the divines who will officiate.

The case of Town Board vs. J. H. Killalee came up in Pilot Knob last Friday, and was tried before P. H. Jaquith, Chairman of the Board. Mr. K., through his counsel, W. R. Edgar, applied for a change of venue, on the ground that Mr. Jaquith was a party to the suit, and therefore not without prejudices in the case. This was overruled by Mr. J., and the defendant was fined $50 and costs. An appeal of course was taken, and so the matter rests for the present. Mr. Killalee says it is his determination to fight to the bitter end, before he will pay taxes to what he considers an illegal government. B. Zwart is attorney for the Board.

Mr. J. H. Killalee, of Pilot Knob, had a little unpleasantness with his fellow-townsmen, Mr. Mike Keenan, the other day, during which the former delivered a very forcible knock-down argument. Mr. Killalee alleges that, while he was absent, Keenan went into his saloon, which at the time was in charge of his wife, and grossly insulted her; and to add still further to the insult, as Killalee avers, Keenan circulated the report that Killalee was about to give a negro ball. This was entirely too outrageous a charge for a true Irishman to pass unresented. So Killalee, when he was informed of Keenan's alleged sayings and doings, went in search of the latter, found him, and, after a few hot words, wound up the discussion by laying out Keenan somewhat roughly by means of his fist. Keenan then swore out a warrant against Killalee for assault and battery, and Judge Dinger, as he was in duty bound, fined him $1 and costs. Afterward another warrant was sworn out against Killalee, to compel him to give bond to keep the peace toward Keenan, and the trial was set for next Friday. "Let us have peace."

Brutal Assault at Pilot Knob.

On Sunday night last, while Benedetto Calcaterra, an Italian miner, was walking along the public road between Ironton and Pilot Knob, quietly smoking his pipe, he was set upon by four other miners, named respectively Joseph Bellum, Frank Bellum, Joseph Baker and Jacob Schaeffer, and beaten in the most shocking manner. Calcaterra's pipe was knocked down his throat, the stem making an ugly wound in the roof of his mouth; his skull was fractured by the vicious blows that were showered upon his unoffending head, and his nose was literally flattened to a level with his face.

At 1 o'clock on Monday morning warrants were sworn out before Judge Dinger against Calcaterra's assailants, and at 2 o'clock Constable Patton arrested and placed in jail Joe Bellum, the only one of the parties who could be found, the others having "made themselves scarce."

For some time an ill feeling has existed among a few turbulent characters at the Knob against the Italians working in the mines there, and it is supposed that the dastardly assault upon Calcaterra was, indirectly, at least, the outgrowth of that feeling. These Italians are industrious, quiet, temperate, and thrifty, and the possession of these qualifications of good citizenship, together with their nationality, has excited the enmity of the dozen or so of hoodlums among the miners at the Knob, whose lawless actions cast a shadow upon the good name to which the great body of the miners there are justly entitled. We are informed that Mr. G. W. Craine, the local superintendent of the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company, intends to discharge all quarrelsome and disreputable men in his employ; if he does so, he will deserve and receive the thanks of the community.

Louis P. Saup, Dayton, Ohio, registered himself at the Ironton House on the 17th of April. He was about eighteen years old, and evidently on his first trip from home. A day or two after, he went to work in the mines on Pilot Knob, first depositing with his landlady, Mrs. Schmitz, a fine gold watch and considerable costly jewelry. So many valuables in the possession of a young man seeking work at day's labor aroused the suspicions of the hotel people, and Constable Patton was notified of the circumstance. He searched the young man's room, and found plenty of evidence to confirm the suspicions already aroused—a check for $500 and articles of value not pertaining to the possessor's pretended walk of life. Mr. Patton wrote to the St. Louis Chief of Police, who telegraphed to Dayton, and received instructions to catch the young man and "hold him." Patton was notified and he at once made the arrest. A few days afterward an officer from Dayton came and took Saup away. It appears that Saup's father is a banker, and also owns a jewelry store in Dayton, and that all the fine things in the young man's possession came from there. Young Saup had a comrade, who came here with him, but he took flight just in time to avoid arrest.

On Sunday evening, Gus Tollman, who, it is presumed from his actions, was under the influence of "tangle-brain," planted himself in one of the streets of Pilot Knob, and, brandishing a revolver, called in stentorian tones for Mike Keenan, whom he declared it his intention to perforate on sight. Just then Mr. Keenan rode into the street on horseback, and, instantly taking in the situation, hatched his horse as quickly as he could, and, drawing his pistol, he prepared to defend himself from the attacks of his would-be assailant. But, before any shots could be fired or blood wasted, friends came between the belligerents, and, Tollman's weapon being wrested from him, all danger of a sanguinary contest was averted. The origin of the trouble is unknown to us, but it probably was caused by bad liquor going the wrong way.

The above melo-drama was preceded, as a sort of prelude, by a rough-and-tumble fight, in which Tollman played the principal part. The piece, however, was interrupted by the appearance of Wm. Steffens and Larry Keenan, who separated the actors and rang down the curtain on the scene. The third and last act was performed before Judge Dinger and a jury, and a large number of spectators, on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The title of this act was the State vs. Gus Tollman, disturbing the peace. As Mr. Keenan declined to assume a part in this act, P. H. Jaquith, Esq., took his place—that is, filed the information. After a protracted scene, in which Mr. Zwart eloquently pleaded for the hero, Mr. Tollman, but without avail, the jury thought the performance worth $10 and costs, and so expressed themselves.

All persons wishing to test the merits of a great remedy—one that will positively cure Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, or any affection of the Throat and Lungs—are requested to call at the Pilot Knob Drug Store and get a Trial Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption free of cost, which will show you what a regular dollar-size bottle will do.

Did you ever before experience such weather as this in June? "The oldest inhabitant" muses his memory in vain for a parallel.

A Vexed Clergyman.

Even the patience of Job would become exhausted were he a preacher and endeavoring to interest his audience while they were keeping up an incessant coughing, making it impossible for him to be heard. Yet how very easy can all this be avoided by simply using Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Trial Bottles given away at the Pilot Knob Drug Store. 2

The Legal-Running Domestic is acknowledged to be the best Sewing Machine in the world. Buy one for your family for a present, and you will never regret it. The machine is beautiful, ornamental and durable. The attachments are all nicely finished and heavy plated. H. DAVIS, Agent.
