

The extra session, to convene August 7th, will determine more than the fortunes of a few Northeastern bankers.

The Congress which convenes in August 7th will have plenty of hard work to do. The West is going to have her say, too, and Wall street may just as well understand now that the people are going to have something to say about what legislation shall be enacted.

The American Eagle at Fredericktown is no more. Its successor is the Madison County Democrat, Geo. B. Prosgrove, editor and proprietor. The first issue is the best paper we have seen from Madison county for many a day, and if Bro. Prosgrove maintains the present standard he will be pretty likely to succeed.

The Globe-Democrat, while admitting that the majority of the present Congress when elected were instructed to vote for the free coinage of silver, asserts that were the elections to be held now, no such issue could win. Thus the monied classes and their advocates becloud themselves in a dust of their own kicking-up, and then assume there is no world beyond their circumscribed vision. There is more determined and general demand for free coinage than ever before.

The "Twice-a-Week" St. Louis Republic is, beyond comparison, far superior to any weekly paper published in America. It is issued each Tuesday and Friday, fourteen to sixteen pages every week, and gives the news of the day at least half a week earlier and much more fully than any weekly. At the same time, its Literary, Agricultural and other departments are unsurpassed. It fills the wants of every member of the family and should be read in every household. It is a great semi-weekly paper furnished to subscribers for ONE DOLLAR A YEAR, the same price as the weeklies. An extra copy will be sent free, for one year, to the sender of each Club of four new subscribers, with four dollars. Write for free sample copies, and raise a Club. SINCE 1867 there has been a tariff on wool almost prohibitive in its nature. Notwithstanding this high protection the number of sheep in Ohio, which was at the time of the passage of the tariff law the largest wool-growing state in the union, has been reduced to about one-half. Three years ago the McKinley bill was passed, increasing protection to wool, and the price of wool began going down until its market selling price is more than 30 per cent less than it was immediately preceding the passage of the bill. And still in face of the facts McKinley and his followers continue to preach high protection to the farmers who are being crushed beneath its burdens. McKinley and McKinleyism must go and go for good this time. No farmer can vote for him without voting against his own interests.—Jefferson City Tribune.

The following is an extract from a speech delivered in Congress by Hon. John G. Carlisle, February, 1878. His position then is our position now, and it has the Democratic National Platform of 1892 to back it:

"I know that the world's stock of precious metals is none too large, and I see no reason to apprehend that it will ever become so. Mankind will be fortunate, indeed, if the annual production of gold and silver coin shall keep pace with the annual increase of population, commerce and industry. According to my views of the subject, the conspiracy which seems to have been formed here and in Europe to destroy by legislation and otherwise from three-sevenths to one-half of the metallic money of the world is the most gigantic crime of this or any other age. The consumption of such a scheme would ultimately entail more misery upon the human race than all the wars, pestilence and famine that ever occurred in the history of the world. The absolute and instantaneous destruction of half the entire movable property of the world, including houses, ships, railroads and all other appliances for carrying on commerce, while it would be felt more sensibly at the moment, would not produce anything like the prolonged distress and disorganization of society that must inevitably result from the permanent annihilation of one-half of the metallic money in the world."—Atlanta Constitution.

MR. EDWARD ATKINSON is one of the most spectacular mathematical sharps that the plutocracy have ever had the good fortune to possess. His abilities as a figure manipulator, are now in almost constant demand to the effect that the plutocracy's pet scheme, the demonization of silver, may not miscarry. He, in the first place, assumes that the labor cost of producing silver is about thirty millions of dollars, taking into the account only the paying mines of the country. He may or may not be right as to this, and it is not germane to the issue, in any event. Mr. Atkinson, with his usual unfairness, does not take into the account the amount of unprofitable work done by the prospector. The four or five holes in the state of Colorado, that cost our State Treasurer, Lon. V.

Stephens, something like ten thousand dollars, have no place in his table of statistics, but it seems to us that the thousands annually wasted in the fruitless search for silver ought to be counted in the cost of production. But fairness is not to be expected from a prestidigitator, whose daily bread depends upon his getting answers to suit his masters. Suppose his figures should be applied to gold—how would they then look? Would the labor cost, according to his formula, be greater or less? If only the productive mines should be taken into consideration, it would undoubtedly be very much less. Yet if the unprofitable efforts of the unsuccessful prospector should be taken into the account, the cost of the production of gold would be greater than that of silver. Mr. Atkinson utters what we know to be a falsehood when he says any one would be taxed under a system of free coinage for the benefit of the silver mine owner, or for the benefit of any person connected directly or indirectly with the production of silver. If we would be taxed for the benefit of the producer of silver under a system of free coinage of that metal, are we not now taxed for the benefit of the goldmine owner under our present system of the free coinage of that metal? We are a great nation of over sixty-five millions of people, whose energies are so entirely taken up with keeping the wolf from the door, that no time is given for the consideration of questions like the silver question, until they are face to face with them in a political campaign. The plutocracy understand this, and they hope, by the artificial stringency they have created, to stampede Congress into the complete demonization of silver and a new bond issue. They may succeed, but the reaction will be greater than that of 1873, and more enduring. It is not a little funny to hear the paid acolytes of the tory barons of the Northeast, whose whole political life has been one long plea for protected class interests, yelling against protection to the mining interests of the West. The West asks no protection. It demands and will have fair play.

Goodwater News.

Ed. Register—Crops of all kinds are quite promising just now. The wheat harvest will begin here in a few days. Judging from present appearances, the yield of wheat will by far exceed what the expectations of the most sanguine were two months ago.

The fine rains which fell on this section of country on the 19th inst., and during the night and the day succeeding, and particularly that which fell here during the night of the 21st, have done much toward the unusually thrifty appearance that corn, oats and meadows now present.

Fruit of all kinds, promise a scant yield. It is said that for some reason, peaches are more abundant on low situations this year, than on high. The late frosts and frosts would have led one to expect the reverse to be true.

Townsend's saw-mill is still running, but it is expected to be shut down next week. Mr. T. says he expects to run it again, next fall.

Wm. Carl and Jas. H. Alcorn went to the vicinity of Kaolin on business, last week. It is said that they are about to purchase a twelve horse power Birdsall traction engine, intending to use it with the separator they bought last summer.

Mr. Murphy, a sheep-buyer from Farmington, was in this neighborhood, recently.

A peddler of bed-springs was in this vicinity recently.

Jasper Anderson has gone to Potosi, after a new Deering combined mower and reaper that he recently ordered.

Jas. Alcorn thinks he was lucky for once. He bought some "Dead-head" chewing tobacco and while using some of it, found a $2 gold piece embedded in the tobacco.

Miss Maggie Lucas has returned from Cape Girardeau, where she has been attending the S. E. Mo. Normal.

F. W. Anderson, Jr., was in this neighborhood to-day on business.

It is said that James H. Alcorn has bought a "Deering" combined mower and reaper.

Sylvester McLain and family, of Cub creek visited relatives on this creek last week.

Geo. Martin, who, with Jas. A. Payne and others went fishing last week, caught a fish that, it is said, would have weighed 8 lbs., about three miles below here.

Some time ago, during a freshet, the dam of the Lucas fish-pond broke, and some believe that the above-mentioned fish is one of those that escaped from the pond at that time.

Crocker's mill is grinding very slowly now-a-days, although the supply of water is abundant. The mill-race and the wheel are badly out of repair. It is said that R. C. Crocker, the present owner of the mill, intends to have a new wheel constructed and put in place ere long.

Master Lee Erbschloe and his sister, May, intend going to the vicinity of Belgrade to-morrow, on a visit to relatives.

The following, clipped from the Burlington Junction, (Mo.) Post, contains information of no little value to persons troubled with indigestion:

For years the Editor of the Post has been subject to cramps, colic or fits of indigestion, that prostrated him for several hours and unfitted him for business for two or three days afterward. About a year ago we called on S. J. Butcher, druggist, and asked for something to ward off an attack that was already making life hideous. Mr. Butcher handed us a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We took the medicine according to directions, and not only found relief on that occasion, but have several times since tried its virtues and found relief in every instance. We take this method of acknowledging the benefits derived and recommending the cure to all others subject to indigestion. For sale by P. R. Crisp.
