A Thousand Dollars Thrown Away.

Mr. W. W. Baker, of Plalaview, Neb., writes: "My wife had lung trouble for over fifteen years. We tried a number of docters and spent over a thousand dollars without any relief. She was very low and I lost all hope, when a friend suggested trying Foley's Honey and Tar, which I did; and thanks be to this great remedy it saved her life. She is stronger and enjoys better health than she has ever known in ten years. We shall never be without Foley's Honey and Tar and would ask those afflicted to try it." Col. Organ's Say.

In the Crawford County Democrat of recent date appeared a column and a half editorial, supposed to have been written or dictated by Frank Farris, from which we clip the following:

We have noticed in the recent issues of the Salem Monitor that Col. Organ, the editor of that paper, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Senator, has again, as he did three years ago, opened up its columns of that paper to fill it with his articles of abuse and vilification of Senator Frank H. Farris; who is a candidate for re-nomination in opposition to Col. Organ.

The Monitor is not abusing Farris. It has not published a line or a word of vilification of Senator Farris. It has printed only a small part of his official record. His record is against him. He was the pliant tool of the corporation lobby at Jefferson City.

He voted and worked against House bill 224, which provided for a reduction of freight rates on all railroads in this State about 35 per cent. He made the motion in the Senate which indefinitely postponed consideration of that bill in the Senate at the last session. The motion made by Senator Farris, and the names of the 16 lobby Senators who voted for that motion, can be found on page 703 of the Senate Journal of 1901. Of the 16 lobby Senators who voted for the Farris motion to kill that bill 8 were Democrats and 8 were Republicans. The 14 Senators who voted against that motion and in favor of the bill were all Democrats.

Senator Farris also opposed and helped to defeat a constitutional amendment providing for the Initiative and Referendum, or Direct Legislation by the people. Direct Legislation was endorsed by the National Democratic Convention at Kansas City, July 4th, 1900, and was made a part of the Democratic platform then and there adopted. If that amendment had been submitted to, and adopted by, the people it would have enabled the people to force freight reduction legislation in spite of a lobby controlled senate.

Is Senator Farris afraid to trust the people to vote on that, or any other question in their own interest? It seems so.

Why doesn't Senator Farris explain his record? He may possibly be able to convince his constituents that he voted in their interest on all questions coming before the Senate. His friends cannot cover his sins of omission and commission by calling them "mistakes." He knew at all times and on all questions what he was doing. The esteemed Crawford County Democrat should ask him to explain.—Salem Monitor.

Some Republican Financiering.

A subscriber asks the Commoner to explain the "City National Bank deal" so often mentioned of late in connection with Secretary Gage's retirement from the cabinet. The story is a short one, but extremely interesting, and serves to show the hold that the great financial institutions have upon the Republican party. A few years ago the government sold the New York customs house property to the City National Bank of that city for $2,265,000. Secretary Gage, by virtue of his position, having charge of the transaction. No money changed hands. The bank merely handed the representatives of the treasury department a certificate of deposit for $2,215,000. The bank retained the money and loaned it out at the usual rate of interest. The certificate of deposit being made out for $50,000 less than the purchase price, the government retained the title to the property. But the bank took possession. As to government held the title the bank escaped city, county and state taxes. And the government not being ready to vacate the premises, rented them from the bank, paying a rental of $130,000 a year. Now note the facts carefully: The bank, by not holding the title, escapes paying $46,000 a year in taxes. By giving a certificate of deposit that bears no interest it is enabled to loan the purchase price of the property at the usual rate of interest, and by buying the property before the government was ready to vacate it draws $130,000 a year rent. As an example of financiering (on the part of the bank) this, undoubtedly, ranks at the head.—The Commoner.

The Great Moral Issue.

The treaty transferring the Danish West Indies to the United States for $4,000,000 has been signed and requires only confirmation by the Senate and the consent of the Danish Parliament to complete the transaction.

There are three islands, St. Thomas, St. John and St. Croix, all containing less than 50,000 people. St. Thomas has a fine harbor which will serve admirably as a coaling station for the navy. Except as naval stations these islands are of little value.

But the acquisition of these islands is one more step on the expansion pathway. We have taken another people by purchase and without their consent.

How shall we take care of our responsibilities to these new peoples who have come under our flag? That is the great issue—the great moral issue—before the American people.

Shall we give them the full benefits of the rights and liberties enjoyed by the American people, holding out to them the hand of fellowship and the hope of citizenship or of independence? Shall we treat them as subjects to be preyed upon and appraised at will? Shall justice and enlightenment, or greed and despotism rule our conduct?

The practical answer to this question is in the government of the possessions and in the legislation concerning them; it involves their future welfare and more; it involves the welfare of the American people.

We must hold to the principles of liberty and justice for all, or all lose them.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Old Home Paper.

Letters from home are very welcome, but one doesn't get as much news in a hundred letters as he does in one issue of the home paper. And letters are so uncertain. You sometimes have to wait six months for a reply to your last one. But if you are a subscriber to the old home paper it comes to you regularly every week, rain or shine. You may be a little in arrears, but the editor sends the paper along with the hope that some day you will settle up matters. To the man who can not visit home every year or two, the perusal of his home paper is always as good as a trip to boyhood scenes. He reads where the freckle-faced girl, who sat behind him at school, was married to a city chap who holds a lucrative position with a street car company, probably a motorman; he is informed that the boy who was known as the bully of the school was arrested for wife desertion and is incarcerated in the county jail; he learns from his county paper that the girl he gave all his apples to at school is the mother of a fine bouncing baby boy, and tears come to his eyes when he reads the death of good old mother Brown, a friend and adviser in those days of long ago. Yes, the home paper does more for him than some friends.—Ez.
