Our Washington Correspondence.

Prominent Republican and Democratic Senators and Representatives and well-informed students of financial subjects agree that the prospects of important and beneficial financial legislation at the next session of Congress, viewed from the present outlook, is extremely doubtful. It is freely predicted that the Republican Senators cannot be made as unanimous for the Aldrich bill again as they were at the close of the last session of Congress, when the bill was defeated merely because there was not sufficient time to allow a few of the opposition Senators to give their views. Not only is there less unanimity of Republican sentiment for what was known as the Aldrich ideas, but the Democrats promise to oppose these ideas, although declaring that they will welcome financial legislation that will be of real benefit to the country.

The Democrats will not oppose any legislation of a financial nature for which there is united demand by the business interests of the country, but they realize that there is a wide difference of opinion as to the Aldrich bill and they will attack that measure or its principles embodied in any other measure.

A principal feature of the Aldrich bill was the provision that State, municipal and railroad bonds of approved classes might be accepted by the Secretary of the Treasury as security for the deposit of public moneys. The Democrats are attacking this feature on several grounds. Their first objection to it is that it encourages the continuation of a surplus in the Treasury, when the tariff laws ought to be amended so as to prevent such a surplus; second, that if the people were relieved of tariff burdens to the extent of $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 a year that amount would not have to be placed in the hands of national banks for their benefit; third, that in making such deposits the banks are being allowed to use the government money without interest.

The leading feature of the Democratic position, however, is that the government is every day accumulating money that it cannot use, and that to prevent a financial crash by reason of the accumulation of this sum outside of trade channels, the Treasury Department is compelled to do something with it; that one of the ways of putting the money back into circulation is to deposit it in national banks.

Another contention is that the placing of this money in banks encourages over-speculation and the putting out of endless stocks of all kinds. It will be claimed by the Democrats that if the banks are not burdened with money they will not make loans on anything except legitimate business, but if they have a plethora of funds, including those of the government, they will lend on stocks that are not gilt-edged, and thereby encourage over-speculation and dangers that might menace the business of the country.

To sum it up briefly, the Democrats will say that to get rid of this state of affairs, instead of providing for easier methods of putting out government money, the reformation of the tariff and the reduction of the government income would be the best and safest plan, the position being that there is plenty of money in the country.

The Republicans are all tangled up on this money business, and the Democrats will take advantage of their demoralized condition. It gives the Democracy the best possible opportunity of giving the country an object lesson on the blessings of tariff reduction as a means of keeping all this surplus in the pockets of the people, instead of fighting over plans for getting it back to the people after taking it away from them for the behoof of the trusts and monopolies of the country.

There is some rather severe criticism of the President here in political circles in the National capital on account of the recent naval review. That review ordered by

Barriers to Competition.

In a speech delivered at Creston, Iowa, August 10th, Congressman Hepburn said: "What are protective duties other than barriers to free competition? When we agree to a tariff schedule imposing duties upon our foreign competitor, we say to him, we do not rely on your competition to secure diminishing cost for our necessities of life, but we propose to give our own people our entire market and then rely upon their competition, one with another, to secure the just and fair price."

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night. Like marvelous cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Grip prove its matchless merit for all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Arcadia Valley Drug Co."

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at Arcadia Drug Co.

Barriers to Competition.

The Post-Office Department investigation seems to have petered out completely. If anything is doing at the big pile on Pennsylvania avenue no man can find it out. Since the statute of limitations let out so many who ought to be wearing stripes, it seems to have paralyzed the energies of the investigators. Although the Grand Jury in Brooklyn indicted George W. Beavers for complicity in the frauds and peculations in the Post-Office Department, no attempt has ever been made to apprehend him and bring him to the bar of justice. It is believed here that the reason for this apathy on the part of the government officials is that Beavers is another one of those "Temple pullers," and the powers that be are not hunting for that kind of game. It is safe to wager that the last has been heard of sensational developments in the post-office investigation. It looks as though the Interior Department would now become the center of activity in the sealawag hunting line, but nothing will ever be done there until there is a change of administration and a change of the brand of politics.

she soon had so many orders that she could not fill them she began to employ and teach a few girls to help her. After that she undertook the manufacture of fly hooks as a regular business. She rents a long, low one-story building, originally put up for a bowling alley. There she employs from sixty to seventy girls, who, working all the year around, turn out 3,000 and 4,000 flies every day. Miss Frost herself manages the whole business, sees to the ordering of supplies, teaches the girls how to do the work, fills her own orders, keeps the books, and, when she wants an extra good one, makes it herself.
