C. A. White, who recently severed his connection with the Clark & Gay hub factory at Ellington, was in Ironton last week. Mr. White informed us that he would probably engage in the manufacture of hubs in the near future. He has several propositions before him, but has not yet decided which one he will accept.

During the storm Monday afternoon lightning struck a tree in front of one of the houses belonging to the Ironton Manufacturing Company, on the road leading to the railroad bridge. The peal accompanying the lightning was a terrific one, but Mrs. Sutton, who was standing on the porch not over ten feet from the tree, was not hurt at all.

While the county court was in session last week the matter of paying the reward offered by the court for the capture of the Spaughs was considered. The section of law under which the reward was offered, provides that the reward shall be paid on the arrest and conviction of the fugitives, so the court determined the money should not be paid until after conviction.

The deceased was a brother of Addison Reese, twenty-eight years of age and unmarried. The remains were brought to Annapolis and interred Saturday. The relatives of the deceased have the sympathy of many friends in their sorrow.

An exchange tells of the three stingiest men on record. The first will not drink water unless it comes from a neighbor's well; the second forbids to write any but a small hand, as it wastes ink to make large letters; and the third stops the clock at night to save the wear and tear on the machinery. All of them refuse to take a newspaper on the grounds that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read.

Bismarck entertained the commissioners who select the site for the new State Sanitarium for the treatment of incipient tuberculosis, last Thursday evening. A brass band met the commission at the depot and a general good time was had. About the 1st of September the commissioners go east on a junketing trip, and on their return to St. Louis will locate the institution. Where it will go is a matter of conjecture.

The excursion from St. Louis Sunday was the largest in years. There were twelve coaches, well filled. Had it not been for the rain which came up in the evening, just before the train was due to start home, the day would have been an ideal one in every respect. Probably fifty or more people were in a hard rain for fifteen minutes or more waiting for the train at Pilot Knob. And there was no shelter of any kind at hand.

It is reported that one of the fastidious newly married ladies of this town kneads bread with her gloves on. This incident may be somewhat peculiar, but there are others: The editor of this paper needs bread with his pants on, and unless some of the delinquent subscribers of this "Old Rag of Freedom" pony up before long he will need bread without a d— thing on, and North Dakota is no Garden of Eden in the winter time.—Flickertail (N. D.) Flicker.

Capt. Lester W. Cornish, who has been the commanding officer at the range this summer, has been detailed to take charge of the recruiting station at Jefferson Barracks, where he will be assigned for the ensuing two years, commencing November 1st. The new factory will be bought and operated with home capital, and will have for its manager Mr. C. A. White, who is an experienced hub manufacturer. It is stated that the machinery will be bought this or next week and that the factory will be in operation inside of a month. They will occupy the buildings vacated by the Clark & Gay people.—Reynolds County Outlook.

MARRIED—On August 9, 1905, by Rev. A. P. Saffold, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Judge Gentry Meyer, at Bellevue, Mo., Mr. B. F. Burnham to Miss Leatha Meyer. The accompanying party was Mr. John Edmons and Miss Elsie Holloman. Mr. Burnham and wife were reared in Iron county, where they have a host of friends. And no young people are more worthy than Mr. Burnham, who is an educated gentleman, and his bride an accomplished and amiable lady. They will soon make their home at Graniteville and be in charge of the public schools there.

A FRIEND.

The following special was sent from Jefferson City to the Globe-Democrat Tuesday: "An echo of the alleged murder of Sheriff Polk by the Spaughs boys in Iron county, and who were later made the victims of a mob while confined in jail, being now prisoners in St. Louis for safe keeping, has found its way to the attorney general's office in the form of an inquiry as to whether the reward offered for the apprehension and conviction of the Spaughs can now be collected, the captors having made the demand for its payment. To Prosecuting Attorney Damron, who seeks the information, Attorney General Hadley gave this opinion: 'In reply to your telephone communication, I will say that, in my opinion, a reward offered by either the county court or the governor for the 'arrest and conviction' of a fugitive could not lawfully be paid until a conviction had been secured. The fact that the governor, under the statutes, has the power to offer rewards for arrests only, and, in his offer, makes the payment thereof conditional upon a conviction, would not entitle one to recover such reward for the arrest alone. The governor, it seems, has the right to attach any reasonable condition to the arrest.' There is another case of this sort which is likely to be taken to the supreme court, and it is the case in which the question on the point here involved was first raised. The difference is that, in this case, which comes from Linn county, and in which the chief of police of Brookfield is demanding the reward offered, the accused was placed on trial and acquitted. In the case of the Spaughs boys they have not yet had their trial. The Linn county man stands upon the statutes, which does not make conviction a condition of the payment of the reward, and which simply permits the governor to offer a reward for the apprehension of a fugitive."

The ovations given Senator Farris in Jefferson City and St. Louis, and the many telegrams of hearty congratulations that have come to him from all over the State, gives great evidence of the rejoicing among his large circle of friends over the outcome of his trial at Jefferson City, but with all these, they are nothing to compare to the ovation tendered him at his home in this city Tuesday evening last, when hundreds of his friends, irrespective of political affiliations, marched to his home in a body and there in terms that were strong and convincing, gave evidence of their approval of the verdict rendered in a court of justice which so completely vindicated him of the charge that was lodged against him. Not only did this visit of friends and neighbors stamp its approval upon the verdict acquitting him of this infamous charge, but it means more. It means that their confidence in him has not been shaken, and that they still hold him in high esteem and have nothing but good wishes for his future success and that of his family. Speeches were made by Hon. B. F. Russell, Revs. P. D. Cooper, W. J. Todd and W. M. Nesbitt, and Atty. A. L. Reeves, and before they had finished many a tear-dimmed eye could be seen in the audience. Senator Farris made his reply immediately upon the conclusion of Mr. Russell's speech, but his heart was too full to permit of words to express his feelings of great joy that was undoubtedly at that moment permeating every recess of his body. It was enough to cause great joy and happiness for this vast assembly had collected at his home without his having any knowledge of the surprise that was in store for him. They collected at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bass and at about 8:30 took up the march for the Senator's home.—Crawford County Democrat.

John Clemonds was shot and killed at Graniteville last Saturday evening, and Amalek Brooks and John Brooks, brothers, are in the Iron county jail charged with being his murderers. The facts and circumstances leading up to the killing, as well as they can be ascertained, are as follows: Just about dusk Saturday evening Gus Meade, who had been out in the woods with his shotgun, sat down on the railroad track, just a few steps north of Kerwin's saloon, and he and some companions were canning beer. As one of the party stepped into the saloon Amalek Brooks appeared, and seeing Meade, said, "Now, G—d—n you, I've got you where I want you!" and grabbed hold of him. Meade picked up the gun, which was lying in front of him, and arose to his feet. They struggled for possession of the gun. At this time John Brooks came to his brother's assistance and the two of them succeeded in taking the gun from Meade. Amalek Brooks then jumped on Meade, got him down, and proceeded to give him a terrible beating. A number of other parties were there and two or three of them attempted to interfere but John Brooks stood them off with the gun. When Amalek Brooks had beaten Meade to his satisfaction, he released him, and on getting to his feet said, "Where is that d—n— of a Johnnie Hall?" (Clemonds' grandmother's name is Hall, and he frequently was called by that name.) Just about this time Brooks saw Clemonds standing probably twenty-five feet away, and he said to his brother John, "shoot him." John raised the gun and fired and Clemonds fell to the ground with a large charge of shot in the left side of his back, just above the hip. Almost simultaneously with the firing of the shotgun Amalek Brooks fell, with a pistol shot through his left side. It is a singular fact that, although, as stated, there were a number of people present, none of the witnesses at the coroner's inquest, could state who fired the pistol, and several of them said they heard no report other than that made by firing the shotgun. Afterwards a revolver of thirty-eight calibre, with one cartridge fired, was found in Clemonds' pocket. Immediately after the shooting Clemonds was carried into the saloon, but it was seen that he was dying and he was taken outside again, and in five minutes was dead. Messengers were at once dispatched to Sheriff Marshall here, and he and Constable Hill, P. W. Whitworth, W. T. O'Neal and Dr. Marshall at once repaired to the scene of the murder. The Brooks were located at the home of their mother, Mrs. Jack Brennan, and were taken into custody. Amalek Brooks seemed to be suffering considerably and complained very much of his wound. Dr. Marshall made an examination and found that the pistol ball had entered the left nipple, passed through the lung and lodged somewhere in the shoulder. The prisoners were brought to Ironton that night and lodged in jail. Just as the party were leaving Graniteville, Amalek Brooks called to his mother, "If they don't treat me right at Ironton, you write to Gov. Folk about it." Coroner Clarkson was summoned from Annapolis Sunday morning and that day held an inquest on the body of Clemonds. The jury was as follows: Henry Adolph, Ed. Meade, Geo. Stevens, John Meade, Wm. Blue, Mose Thomas. The evidence of the witnesses was in accord with the foregoing story of the tragedy, and the jury declared Amalek and John Brooks responsible for the murder of John Clemonds. Amalek Brooks' record is not good. Although but twenty-five years of age, he has served a three-year sentence in the penitentiary for the killing of David Gray in Graniteville, almost six years ago, and he has been in trouble a number of times. It was in evidence at the coroner's inquest that Amalek Brooks had for some time past had a strong feeling against Clemonds, and had frequently threatened his life. John Clemonds bore the reputation of a peaceable, well-behaved man. He was twenty-nine years of age, and lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Hall, at Graniteville. He has a brother, Arch Clemonds, at Graniteville, and was a nephew of Arch Hall, of Arcadia, and Will Hall, of Graniteville. The funeral occurred at Graniteville Monday, and was largely attended. Amalek Brooks has suffered considerably from his wound since his incarceration in jail and his condition is serious. The ball has not yet been located.
