True and False Democracy.

SABULA, MO., Feb. 23, 1906.

Yes, Democrats should get together and fight for Democracy. But real Democrats should insist on being furnished with evidence, amounting to proof, that the battle is being waged for the true principles before becoming so enthusiastic as to lose their mental balance. I understand that the State Central Committee is sending out requests to its subworkers throughout the State that they, as part of the campaign work, solicit subscriptions, at reduced rates, for the St. Louis Republic. If that paper is to be the organ of the party management; if its teachings are to be presented and inculcated as the doctrines of Democracy, how can any man who cherishes the true faith give his assent, active or passive, without self-stultification? What fact in the political history of Missouri is more certain than that there does not exist a more unscrupulous enemy of true Democracy than the St. Louis Republic?

I am not well posted in the details of political movements in the State during the last year; but to a general observer the evidence is so strong as to remove doubt that the present campaign is now in the hands of the same element that so successfully—from their viewpoint—managed that of 1904. It would seem that the people, who in that campaign permitted themselves to be worked up to such a pitch of enthusiasm as to abandon reason and judgment in support of a pretended Moses, who was to lead them out of bondage and darkness into liberty and light, should now be willing to endorse a demand that Mr. Folk furnish a bill of particulars of the grounds on which he bases any claim to their present or future confidence. Will he, or some one for him, tell us, not in glittering generalities, but in plain, detailed statement, what he, as chief executive of the State, either directly or indirectly, has done for the betterment of public conditions? He promised, without reservation or condition, that if elected Governor, he would put a stop to boodling. Does any one believe that boodling has been stopped? He promised to restore home rule to the large cities. Has that pledge been kept?

But why point out what he has not done; let reasoning men insist on knowing what he has accomplished in fulfillment of his numerous and glittering promises. But the movement that placed Mr. Folk in the gubernatorial chair should have fooled nobody. It was so obviously inaugurated and promoted by the same element that fought the Democracy in 1890 and 1900; that element was so unanimous in its support, that it should have been perceptible to the least thoughtful that it was a movement in the guise of Democracy to place the party machinery and management in the hands of the plutocracy. Mr. Folk was made the figure-head of the movement simply because he was available and willing. His support of the Democratic ticket in 1896, the vociferous laudations of his conduct, by himself, the sensational press and the More-Holy-Than-Thou element, in prosecuting a few bribe-takers, and alleged bribe-takers, while shielding the "respectable" givers and beneficiaries of bribes, constituted his availability; while his vaulting ambition procured his assent. That the movement was successful in perverting the Democracy is only too apparent.

The former leaders of the State Democracy were guilty of acts which I considered did not conform to the true principles of the party. I believe all real Democrats would have been glad to have seen some of them replaced by more reliable men. But the chief sin of those leaders, in the eyes of the promoters of the Folk boom, was that they were too responsive to the public will. They were not sufficiently "respectable" to be entirely subservient to the "business interests." They depended for their political existence, not on the "preservers of State and National honor," but on the general public. Whatever might have been their shortcomings with reference to true Democracy, they had no real sympathy with the beneficiaries of public graft.

Now, it being apparent to sincere and thoughtful Democrats that the party management is in the hands of men who, at best, are willing to adopt the principles of the Republic, or any other advocate of plutocracy, as a means of success, what are these Democrats to do should the party platform be framed and the candidates selected under the dictation of these men? Must we walk up, like shackled slaves, and give their action the endorsement of the ballot? Shall we, like marionettes, bow our solemn approval? Is the approach toward the inauguration of the reign of true Democracy to be facilitated by aiding in the building up of a powerful machine by its covert enemies?

Can some sage produce a light that will guide the steps of the believer in true Democracy—the Democracy that will give to every son and daughter of the Creator the rights and opportunities that He intended that they should enjoy—so that he may do something for the cause and yet disarm his conscience of the weapons of reproach?

Two in One Winter.

C. E. Emerson, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., had two attacks of pneumonia in one winter. He writes that two physicians said he could not recover from the last attack. After they had given up hope he began taking Foley's Honey and Tar, which brought him out all right. He writes that he surely thinks Foley's Honey and Tar is the grandest remedy for throat and lung troubles. Arcadia Valley Drug Co.

that all such things belong of right to those whose labor has produced them. But it has so happened, in all ages of the world, that some have labored and others have, without labor, enjoyed a large portion of the fruits. This is wrong, and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any government. It seems strange that any man should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing bread from the sweat of other men's faces. This country, with its institutions, belong to the people who inhabit it."

HOWARD LINDSAY.

No Case on Record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Arcadia Valley Drug Co.

We are having spring weather. Farmers are repairing fences and getting ready to make crops.

E. W. Graves and wife have returned from Mexico. They were not very much impressed with the Mexican people and their mode of living. Although they enjoyed the warm climate there, they would rather be back in Missouri.

Bolen, Reno & Co. have sold their saw mill to some parties on the Hollanday railroad.

Milt. Ruble & Bro. will remove their mill from Sinking Creek to the Hackworth hollow on Black River.

Walter Strother and family are here from Peniel, Texas. He began a meeting here last Friday night. He is certainly a changed man, and we hope he may do some good in our community, as we need a good revival at this place. He held a meeting on the street last Saturday afternoon. Rev. McBride will arrive this week and they will continue the meeting for two weeks.

Mrs. J. S. O'Neal and son, Howard, from Mill Spring, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. W. E. McKee.

H. J. Wray, wife and son, Frank, from Bismarck, came down Sunday to attend the wedding of Mr. Ellis' daughter at Camp Creek.

Miss Alice McCallister of Piedmont visited her cousin, Miss Ethel Lovelace, Sunday.

Mrs. Jamison went to Piedmont last week.

Jas. Lovelace spent Sunday with his wife and baby here.

Alvin Wallis is now working on the I. M. R'y as brakeman, running from Piedmont to Hoxie.

Mrs. B. G. Burks has returned to Elvins, where she is making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Gibson.

Ed. Maddock was initiated into the Woodmen Lodge here Saturday night. The Woodmen now take railroad men; so all brakemen can carry an insurance.

Jas. Smith, who lives on Camp Creek, brought the remains of his wife here last week and took the train for St. Louis. Mrs. Smith died last week of stomach trouble. She had been in poor health for some time. Mr. Smith and wife moved down here from St. Louis about a year ago and lived in Des Arc while their house was being completed on the farm. They were good people and made many friends during their short stay in Des Arc, who all sympathize with Mr. Smith in his sad hour of affliction.

Mr. J. C. Curran was down from St. Louis last week in the interest of the Missouri Industrial Association. ISAAC.

One would think the Laxative idea in a cough syrup should have been advanced long before it was. It seems the only rational remedy for Coughs and Colds would be to move the bowels and clean the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs at the same time. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar does this. It is the Original Laxative Cough Syrup, the best known remedy for Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. Tastes good and harmless. Sold by Arcadia Valley Drug Co.

Extract From Lincoln's Message.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 17, 1906.

Ed. Register:—In the February 8th issue of your paper, which I have never failed to receive since leaving Ironton seven years ago, the reference to Socialism on the editorial page was noted with interest: your statement that you are not a Socialist, (neither was I seven years ago), but that in case you saw the light that you hoped to have the courage of your convictions. So I herewith send an extract, which I hope will give a few rays of light, from the message of Abraham Lincoln to the Congress of 1865, pages 498-500 of H. J. Raymond's "The Life, Public Services and State Papers of Abraham Lincoln," published by Derby & Miller, New York, 1865, which our present day Republican papers really do not care to publish:

"I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me, and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of war corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people until all the wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic is destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of our country than ever before, even in the midst of war. God grant that my foreboding may be groundless. Monarchy itself is sometimes hinted at as a refuge from the power of the people. In my present position I could scarcely be justified were I to omit to raise a warning voice against the approach of returning despotism. It is not needed nor fitting here that a general argument should be made in favor of popular institutions; but there is one point with its connections, not so hackneyed as most others, to which I ask brief attention. It is assumed that labor is available only in connection with capital; that nobody labors unless somebody else owns capital, somehow by the use of it, induces him to labor. Labor is prior to and independent of capital. Capital is only the fruit of labor and could not have existed if labor had not first existed. Labor is the superior of capital, and deserves much the higher consideration. I bid the laboring people beware of surrendering the power which they possess, and which if surrendered, will surely be used to shut the door of advancement for such as they, and fix new disabilities and burdens upon them until all of liberty shall be lost.

"In the early days of our race the Almighty said to the first man and woman 'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread,' and since then, if we except the light and air of heaven, no good thing has been or can be enjoyed by us without having first cost labor. And inasmuch as most good things have been produced by labor, it follows that all such things belong of right to those whose labor has produced them. But it has so happened, in all ages of the world, that some have labored and others have, without labor, enjoyed a large portion of the fruits. This is wrong, and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any government. It seems strange that any man should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing bread from the sweat of other men's faces. This country, with its institutions, belong to the people who inhabit it."
