The license of the last saloon in Ironton expires to-day (Wednesday) and for the first time in twenty years Ironton will be dry. About twenty years ago the saloons of Ironton voluntarily closed for three months. With that one exception there have been saloons here ever since the town was founded. How long we will be without saloons this time is hard to conjecture.

The county court Monday granted dramshop license to Jno. A. Kerwin at Graniteville. There was an effort made to prevent the court issuing a license to Kerwin but it failed. Mr. Kerwin will now have a monopoly of the business at Graniteville as Wm. Steffens has removed to East St. Louis where he will engage in the saloon business. There are now two licensed saloons in the county. One at Graniteville, and Pilot Knob.

It has been frequently suggested, and the suggestion is a good one, for every farmer to place his name and the name of his farm on his road gate. Not only would persons driving to a place more easily find it, but it would add more pleasure and interest to people driving from place to place. This last result would have special effect with regard to well kept and pretty houses. An observing person would seldom pass a beautiful farm without desiring to know who is its enterprising owner.—Malden Merit.

The stringency in the money market reached Ironton last Thursday and both banks announced that morning that until further notice they would pay out no cash. In lieu of cash, cashier's certificates, payable to bearer, have been issued by both banks. The checks are of $1, $2, $5, $1 and $20 denomination. The people seem inclined to make the best of a bad situation and up to the present the depositors are taking the matter philosophically. No one seems to have any idea as to how long the present unsatisfactory conditions will continue.

J. N. Long, erstwhile manager of the Cross & Anchor Home in Arcadia, last week paid fine and costs to the amount of $89.85 for mistreating one of the orphan girls committed to his care. It will be remembered that proceedings were instituted against Long several months ago in the justice's court. A jury found him guilty and assessed his fine at $50 and costs. Long appealed to the circuit court, he and his satellites declaring that he was the victim of the "ring's" malice. When the matter came up in circuit court Long failed to appear but he and his sureties arranged to pay the fine and costs.

H. Hines, of Springfield, has closed a deal with the Willard Ginseng Co., of Houston whereby he transferred his entire ginseng farm in Houston to the Willard Ginseng Company. The consideration was $12,000, this being one of the largest ginseng deals ever made in the state. Mr. Hines has been connected with the ginseng enterprise in Houston for four years, and also has over an acre of ginseng under cover east of Springfield. He will still keep his farm east of there, and in all probability will plant an additional tract of land in ginseng. This is an enterprise which Mr. Hines believes is one of the best paying propositions that can be engaged in and he is also of the opinion that within a few years a great deal of ginseng will be raised in Southwest Missouri.—Howell County Gazette.

The Internal Revenue Department is now enforcing the law in regard to moisture in butter and inspecting all lots received by dealers. Butter containing 16 per cent or more of water is classed as adulterated butter. A wholesale dealer is required to have a license which cost $480 per year. A manufacturer's license is $600 per year. A merchant buying butter from farmers and packing the different lots he buys in tubs, barrels or pails, is classed as a wholesale dealer in adulterated butter, if the lot contains 16 per cent or more moisture, and subject to wholesale dealer's license of $480 per year.

The dealer who ladles or adds salt or moisture to butter in packing is classed as a manufacturer and subject to a manufacturer's license of $600 per year and a tax of 10c a pound if butter contains 16 per cent or more moisture.—Potosi Journal.

Circuit Court is still in session. The proceedings the past week were: State vs. John Novalk, disturbing the peace; trial by jury and fine of $1; State vs. Chas. Cox; plea of guilty to common assault and sentence of sixty days in jail; Mike Hughes was found guilty of larceny from a dwelling and sentenced to three months in jail, acquitted of one charge of burglary and larceny; State vs. Wm. Borders, arson, continued; State vs. Wm. Brewer, Buck Stump, Fred Kemper, Walter Colyott, Chas. Colyott and Fred Slusher, gambling, plea of guilty and each fined $25 and costs; State vs. R. W. Gay, selling liquor without license, plea of guilty and fine of $100 and costs; State vs. Henry and Wm. Schleuter, passed until November 7th; State vs. Dave Worley, continued. Tuesday the trial of Preschia Blanks, colored, for the murder of Robert McGill was commenced. The case will probably be given to the jury this (Wednesday) afternoon.

When the county court was considering the petition of J. A. Kerwin for saloon license at Graniteville Monday afternoon, presiding Judge Buford, made the statement that he very much doubted the wisdom and righteousness of the action of the court at the adjourned term in October when it ruled that in future all saloon petitions must have the signatures of two-thirds of the tax-payers of the township or town wherein the saloon was to be located. The judge further remarked that all his life he had believed in and advocated that the majority should rule, and he hardly felt justified in departing from this fair and time-honored custom now. The REGISTER looks at the matter very much as Judge Buford does, and we think that the court's action, more especially at that particular time, was ill-advised and unfair. A majority of the voters of the county had just expressed themselves as in favor of license and the court cannot justify itself in thwarting the will of the majority.

Mr. J. W. Dean, superintendent of the Iron Mountain railroad with headquarters at De Soto, was in this city this week calling on our people and getting acquainted with the country. He made this office a pleasant call. Mr. Dean seems to be the man that the Iron Mountain railroad has long needed, some one who will meet the people half way. He assured the Democrat-News that any complaint by shippers that was made to him would receive attention. Mr. Dean is a most excellent railroad man and his genial personality will do more towards healing the breach that now exists between the people along the line of the Iron Mountain railroad and the management of the road, than anything else that the company could possibly have done. There is nothing of the I-own-the-world air about Mr. Dean, he is simply a plain, straightforward business man. Mr. Dean will always find a welcome when he calls on the people of Fredericktown, something no other employe of the Angel Maker has received, outside the local agent, for many months.—Fredericktown News.

Last Saturday evening a jury in the circuit court returned a verdict finding Anderson Rust not guilty of the murder of Douglas Newman. The hearing of evidence in the trial commenced Monday afternoon at one o'clock and was completed the following day at noon. The story of the tragedy is fresh in the minds of our readers. On the morning of August 21st last Rust and Newman drove west of town on a squirrel hunting expedition. Nothing more was heard of them until Friday evening when the horse they had driven was found on the road a couple of miles west of Ironton. Then it was learned that Rust had returned to town about noon Wednesday, bidden his family good-bye and said he was going south. A search was started for Newman and his decomposed body was found in an abandoned road, three miles west of town Saturday morning. An examination revealed that a bullet entering his back and passing out the chest had caused death. Rust went on the stand in his own behalf. His story was: he and Newman after hunting for some time had gotten in the buggy and started home. A flock of wild turkeys crossed the road just in front of them. They hurriedly hit the horse and started into the woods, going in opposite directions. After going a short distance Rust saw probably fifty feet away what he took to be a turkey. He fired his rifle. Immediately, at a distance of about ten feet beyond where he thought the turkey was, he saw a hand go up in the air and a voice said, "I'm shot." Rust stood paralyzed for a minute, then grabbed his gun and ran away as fast as he could. He went to his home, told his family good-bye and started south. The first night he spent on Marble Creek; next morning he met young Janke on the road near Polk's. He kept off the railroad until he reached Gads' Hill from where he walked the track to Piedmont, spending Thursday night there. The next day he walked to Williamsville, where he boarded a passenger train and went to El Paso, Texas. Stayed there three or four days and then went to Oklahoma, whence he was brought back to Ironton. On cross examination Rust said that the reason he ran away he feared a mob, having heard several people say after the result of the Brooks and Spangh trials, that hereafter when a good man was killed in Ironton they would take the law in their hands. The defense also introduced a few character witnesses. The instructions of the court were for murder in the first or second degree. Mr. Damron and Mr. Edgar represented the state and Mr. Raney defended. Mr. Raney dwelt at length on the good name his client had always born and pleaded for acquittal on the absence of any testimony whatever to show a motive for the killing. The case went to the jury about six o'clock Saturday evening. In about two hours a verdict of not guilty was returned.

The late Fall was a blessing to the farmers throughout this section, for it assured the maturity of the corn crops, which, owing to the unfavorable weather that prevailed last Spring, were very late in germinating.

No killing frosts appeared here until the 12th inst. The frost at that time did much damage to sorghum crops; entirely ruining several crops in this neighborhood. In some instances the cane was stripped and cut and ready for the mill, yet it was so thoroughly frozen as to render it unfit for syrup.
