The present mail schedule is a snap for the postmaster and the mail carrier, but it doesn't please any one else.

To M. C. Spangh, the popular mount man at Farmington, we are indebted for a very handsome onyx paper weight, presented during the holiday season.

B. S. Gregory of Fredericktown was in Ironton last week. Bert says that the panic certainly hit Fredericktown a side swipe and that place is dead as a door nail these days.

Ironton Lodge, No. 214, K. P., meets January 10th. Installation of officers. Smoker and lunch afterwards. You will have something good. Fraternally start the New Year with Friendship. M.

The Moler Barber College, St. Louis, Mo. certainly offers splendid chance for men to learn that trade quickly. There is little expense and positions are numerous. Their illustrated catalogue explains fully. Write them.

Frank Reichert gave a dance last Saturday night, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Reichert, near Arcadia, in honor of his cousins, Jake and Miss Clara Reichert, of Napoleon, Ohio. About thirty couples were present and all report a delightful time.

Ticket sales at the Ironton station for the month of December, just passed, were $42 in excess of what they were in December, 1906, despite the panic and the two cent law. If every station on the road makes as good showing we doubt the ability of the railroads to set the two cent law aside.

Pink McCarver, so many years a resident of Ironton, last week removed, lock stock and barrel, to Pilot Knob. Some time ago he bought the Maschmeyer store house and residence up there, and figures that by the move he saves rent, anyway. The I. O. F. store room is now without a tenant.

Mr. Jake Reichert and sister, Miss Clara, after spending three weeks with their cousins, Louis Reichert and family, near Arcadia, left this week for their home in Napoleon, Ohio. They report an enjoyable visit and are very much pleased with the country. Frank Reichert returned home with them.

H. B. Jones has disposed of his mercantile business in Arkansas, and, with his family, will soon return to the valley, to make this their permanent home. He expects to build a residence here this summer. Harry has not been in good health for some time and he hopes residence here will benefit him.

Peter Gerstenmeyer and wife of Pilot Knob celebrate their golden wedding to-day, January 8th. Three daughters, living in different sections of the country, are at the old home for the occasion. The editor has known Mr. Gerstenmeyer all these fifty years and ventures the hope that he and his good wife may live to see their diamond jubilee.

Henry Polk was in town Tuesday and told us that the stove factory of the Pioneer Coöperage Company on Marble Creek had been closed since the last week in December and would probably remain closed until the money situation improves. The company has seventeen factories in a half dozen states and they have all been compelled to shut down.

Mr. Strobach, representative of the Lemp brewery, St. Louis, was in the valley last week on business relative to the Arcadia creamery, which was recently purchased at trustee's sale by the Lemp Co. Mr. Strobach tells us that Louis Miller informed him he proposed buying the creamery from the brewery people. He plans enlarging the ice-making capacity and installing an electric light plant for Ironton and Arcadia.

Miss Lora Bishop, daughter of our postmaster, has secured a position as teacher in the public school at Bismarck for the remainder of the present school year. Miss Bishop is a most gracious young lady and an excellent teacher. We have no doubt she will discharge her duties most acceptably to the people of Bismarck.

Under the present arrangement not a mail train stops at Ironton. If you want to send a package by mail that is too bulky for the little letter pouches that hang on the crane, it will have to be dumped into the baggage car of one of the local trains and take a chance on reaching its destination some way, some how. Outrageous! How long will the people stand for it?

A young man who came to Ironton from the lead mines in St. Francois county one day last week said: "Well, I'm a single man; no one dependent on me, and I can get out and hustle for myself. But where I came from many a poor man with a family has nothing to eat, nor does he know where to get it. I truly believe that there are people in the lead country to-day who are hungry."

County Clerk Reburn Tuesday received a telegram announcing the death of his brother-in-law, Fred W. Green, in Fort Worth, Texas, that morning. Mr. Reburn had not been informed that Mr. Green was sick and the supposition is that the call was an unexpected one. The deceased leaves a wife and one child. To them and other sorrowing relatives we extend condolence.

Newt. Warren of Bellevue was in to see us Monday. Mr. Warren has just returned from Loyalton, California, where he visited his son. He says that California is unquestionably a great country, but he saw nothing there to lure a Missourian. Mr. Warren lately sold out his blacksmithing business in Bellevue, after thirty-eight years' continuous working at the trade—thirty-three of which have been spent in Bellevue. He is taking a well-earned rest.

The REGISTER is in receipt of a card from Mr. and Mrs. Clemens Zumbroeg, of St. Louis, announcing the marriage of their daughter, Kathryn Cecilia, and George Winston Whitworth, Tuesday, January 7th, 1908. The bridegroom is an Ironton boy, the youngest son of Mr. P. W. Whitworth. For a number of years he has had a position as train auditor on the M., K. & T. Railway, and has made his home in St. Louis. Many valley friends will join in wishing him and his life of very great happiness. George and his bride will visit Ironton next week. After February first, they will be at home 2901a Madison street, St. Louis.

There came near being a conflagration on the premises of Circuit Clerk Hawkins last Thursday. The day before Mrs. Hawkins had carried out some ashes in a bucket and placed them next to the stable. After smoldering for a day some coals in the ashes ignited the bucket, which in turn set fire to the stable. Station agent Downey, who lives next door, saw the fire and called Mr. Hawkins. Together they succeeded in extinguishing the flames before any great damage resulted. However, had the discovery been delayed a few minutes the barn would certainly have been doomed and probably some adjacent buildings, too.

Jas. O'Donnell, formerly of Pilot Knob, but now living in Washington county, was seriously injured while working in a mine near Potosi one day last week. It seems that Jim and some men with whom he was working had fired a hole and left the shaft for the explosion to occur. After waiting some time and hearing no discharge, O'Donnell went down the shaft to see what the trouble was. He saw at once that the fuse was still ignited and dashed a bucket of water on it. An explosion immediately followed. Mr. O'Donnell's injuries were such that his left leg had to be amputated below the knee in addition to many other bruises and cuts.

A new time card went into effect Sunday. Train No. 1 has been discontinued and in lieu thereof is a train, leaving Union Station at three o'clock P. M., reaching Ironton at 6:30, and Poplar Bluff at 9:30. It is a local train and makes all the stops. In many ways, so far as Ironton is concerned, the new train, No. 25, affords better service than No. 1 did. One big item is that it stops regularly. But a disagreeable feature is that there is a wait of twenty minutes for supper at Bismarck. The train only runs as far south as Poplar Bluff. One of the reasons given for discontinuing No. 1 is that it did no business in Arkansas. On the new card No. 25 is due here at 9:04 A. M., instead of 7:37 as formerly. No other changes.

Manager Fraser of the Wheaton, Minn., opera house, says: "Played Frank Mahara's Minstrels on the 10th to a comfortably filled house, several days continuous rains making the roads almost impassable prevented my country patrons from attending. The performance was of the Frank Mahara kind which means that it was first class and gave satisfaction. Speaking of bands leads me to remark that Frank Mahara's is just a little the best that has tooted in this neck of the woods for these many moons. Their street concerts are certainly a feature of the show that make good from beginning to finish, and it is also a barrel full of pleasure to do business with a man like Frank Mahara. He's got a large warm heart located in the right spot." At the Academy of Music, Ironton, Saturday, January 11th.

Circuit court was in adjourned session for a few hours Monday. The session was called for the purpose of trying Thos. Pearsons for rape, but owing to the absence of Judge Killian, of Perryville, who was to try the case, another postponement was granted. When court convened and Judge Killian was not present, Judge Williams, who was in attendance, evidently wanted to rescind his former order when he permitted the defendant to swear him off the bench. The matter considered at the December adjourned term was again brought up and the court insisted that Mr. Raney, attorney for the defendant, had agreed (at the regular term in October) to go to trial at the December adjourned term. To obtain all the information possible on the subject, the court ordered the circuit clerk and stenographer to go to Pilot Knob and get the deposition of Mr. A. Huff, who was sick and unable to attend court. (Mr. Huff was acting circuit clerk when the order of continuance in the Pearsons' case was made at the regular term in October, and the court wanted to know what he could recall as to the action then taken.) Mr. Huff only recalled that the court ordered the case set for December 18th. He could not testify as to what was agreed between the attorneys. On this report being made in court Judge Williams announced that the Pearsons case would be continued until February 24th, when he would endeavor to have some circuit judge present to try it.

On Tuesday afternoon about five o'clock the people of Hillsboro were startled by the intelligence that Paul Patton had been seriously stabbed by W. J. Brownfield. Patton and Brownfield had been in a difficulty in the morning, but no further trouble was anticipated. In the afternoon Patton, who had been guarding the prisoners at work on the rock pile, went into Morris & Williams' saloon to have a drink, when Brownfield, according to reports, came up behind him and struck at him several times inflicting two stab wounds in the back that are considered serious. The knife used was a long-bladed, spring-back affair, and if it penetrated the full length of the blade the wound may prove fatal. Deputy Sheriff Edwin Forrest was in the saloon at the time, and as soon as he could grabbed Brownfield and wrested the knife from him, and took him to the county jail to await the filing of such charges as the circumstances in the case may require. Brownfield at the time of the stabbing was under the influence of liquor. Dr. G. M. Mockbee was called in to look after the wounded man, but did not probe the wounds, and hence nothing can be told as to their gravity until such time has elapsed that the presence or absence of internal hemorrhage is revealed by the condition of the wounded man.—Hillsboro News Era.

Fifty years ago, not long after the writer arrived at Pilot Knob and before the railroad had been extended to that point, we had just one mail a day. And that's about all we have to-day. Under the new time card, which went into effect Sunday, we have a mail south at five o'clock in the morning, another mail south about noon, and a mail north at 4:47 in the afternoon. Not one of these trains stops at Ironton, only snatching a small pouch of letter mail from the crane as they speed onward. Under this arrangement, all of our papers, for points north and south are dumped in a baggage car of the north-bound local train (which hauls no mail car) at 2:11 o'clock in the afternoon, carried to Bismarck and there unloaded to await the pleasure or convenience of some porter or baggage man to reload on north and south bound mail trains that carry mail to local points. As the first train south that carries mail to local point does not come along for fifteen hours, you can see the delay resulting, be the porter or baggage man ever so prompt and attentive. That is, under the present most magnificent arrangement, subscribers to the REGISTER at the Arcadia post-office, scarcely a mile away, will get their paper, possibly, eighteen hours after it is put on the train here. Certainly, not any sooner. Glorious, this mail service of Uncle Sam's, isn't it?

W. J. Brownfield stabbed Paul Patton three times Tuesday afternoon in Morris & Williams' saloon, twice in the back near each shoulder and once through his right arm near the wrist. The assault was a dastardly one and came without giving any warning that was noticed by Patton and those to whom he was talking. They had had some two or three quarrels during the day and Monday night, the last at noon in the same saloon. But when Patton went into the saloon on the invitation of H. B. Irwin and others, he paid no attention to Brownfield, who was in there talking to others, and appeared to have no apprehension of impending danger. Ed Forrest was present and as soon as he could he caught Brownfield and then others came to his assistance and helped secure him and then take his knife away from him. He then took him to jail. Patton was carried to the residence of his cousin, Mrs. J. D. Harston, and Dr. Mockbee was called to attend his wounds. The knife is a large pocket knife with a dirklike blade nearly three and a half inches long. Brownfield came to town Monday and remained here till the time the cutting was done. He came here with a team and wagon, for which his wife came yesterday and got. Dr. W. C. Patton arrived here yesterday from Cape Girardeau to see his brother, and is to stay until to-day. Brownfield will be given a preliminary trial Saturday.—Hillsboro Democrat.

Well, we dislike to be kicking and complaining all of the time, but the treatment accorded its patrons in the valley by the Iron Mountain railroad company would tax the patience of a saint—not that the writer makes any claims to wings, however. Last Thursday night or early Friday morning there was a big wreck on the road and, in consequence, all north-bound trains were late. When the agent arrived at the station at 7 o'clock in the morning the train dispatcher informed him that No. 26, due here at 7:36, would not be here until ten o'clock; then, later, one o'clock was named as the hour of its arrival. In the meantime, between nine o'clock and noon, some three or four belated trains hurried through here northward—but they couldn't stop and pick up passengers at valley stations. No! No! About noon the announcement was made that No. 26 would be here at three o'clock. A couple of hours later came another announcement that the train would be here at 3:45, but would not stop, and passengers would have to wait for the train due at 2:11, which would be about an hour behind No. 26. (This, notwithstanding there hadn't been a north-bound train stop in the valley since 2:11 Thursday afternoon.) Finally, at 4:30 the 2:11 train came lumbering along, and passengers who first went to the station at seven o'clock that morning to board a train, were at last able to get away. Such indifference and utter disregard of the rights of the public, on the part of the railroad management, is simply outrageous, and does more to hasten government ownership than the eloquence of all the Socialist orators in Christendom. The company should be compelled to give the public definite information as to the time of the arrival of late trains. Now at seven o'clock that morning the train dispatcher was in a position to know at what time (within an hour, anyway) that No. 26 would arrive at Ironton. Instead of giving this information to the public, however, he makes some three or four different announcements, altering them to suit his whim or fancy, notwithstanding this indifferent action on his part keeps a number of passengers at the station all day long, because of the uncertainty as to the time the train will arrive. And this practice is general on the part of the dispatchers. There ought to be relief somewhere. Nothing here stated is intended as a reflection on Mr. Downey, our agent, who is as clever and accommodating a young man as can be found anywhere, and cheerfully gives the public all the information at his command.

Business is gradually getting back to its old channel. There are more cross ties (hewn) coming to town than I ever knew. Thirty to forty loads every day.

Mr. Graves' new conveyor for carrying the wood and saw dust out of the handle factory is quite a success. It takes the wood some 300 yards, and dumps it on a pile fifty feet high. In addition to this it makes melodious music that can be heard three miles away. If the foreman, Mr. Powers, would use a little more oil it might help the cause.

The hub business is quiet at present. As soon as all the old stock is shipped they will buy again.
