No Steel Pens in Tropics.
The ordinary steel pens used in temperate climates, particularly those used in the United States, are not adaptable to the tropics on account of rusting. This is especially true during the rainy season and at seaports. Bronze or brass pens, or those coated with bronze, do not seem to be thus affected. Ink deteriorates very quickly in tropical climates and often has the consistency of gum. On the ordinary steel pens this aids the rust and is hard to wipe off if left for a short time. With the bronze or brass pen or with a pen coated with bronze the coated ink is easily wiped or burnt off.

Drinking Water With Food.
It is a trifle disconcerting to be told that when the thrifty housewife expends from 20 to 28 cents per pound for the best cuts of beef about 60 per cent of the sum is being paid for water. Yet such is the case, about 60 per cent of the bulk of uncooked beef or mutton being water. . . . The flesh of pigeons is about 70 per cent water, that of fowls and ducks 65 per cent, while a really fat goose may have as little as 35 per cent of water in its composition. The flesh of fish varies considerably in the quantity of water contained, the figures ranging, according to the kinds of fish, from 40 to 80 per cent.—Popular Mechanics.

Washington Correspondence.

BY C. H. TAVENNER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—If our protective system is not the "substantial" explanation of the abnormal increase in the cost of living in the United States, how does it come that British prices, under free trade, increased but 7.7 per cent in 10 years, while American prices, under protection, increased 34.3 per cent?

There is a table which tells its own story and ought to be considered "Exhibit A" in any congressional or other investigation into the increased cost of living.

These figures are calculated from official statistics of the British Board of Trade in the Eleventh Abstract of Labor Statistics and from figures in the Seventy-first Bulletin of the United States Bureau of Labor.

The year 1896, which was the year preceding the enforcement of the highly protective Dingley tariff, is taken as the standard year, the cost of food in each country being taken as 100. The meaning of the table is that food which cost $1 in Great Britain in 1896 could not be duplicated for less than $1.077 in 1906, and that food for which the American consumer paid $1 in 1896 cost $1.343 in 1906.

A STRIKING COMPARISON.
Coming nearer home, the difference in the cost of living in Detroit and just across the river in Windsor, Canada, supplies us with a striking definition of the real meaning of excessive tariff rates. Prices of food-stuffs, wearing apparel, and rents average from 20 to 25 per cent more in Detroit than in Windsor. And between the two cities there are but 2,561 feet of water—and the Aldrich-Payne tariff bill!

The Detroit man is "protected" and the Windsor man is not. By not being "protected," the Windsor man pays $15 for a suit of clothes that the Detroit man will find it difficult to duplicate in quality for $25. What the Windsor man is escaping in this instance is the Aldrich-Payne tax of 44 cents a pound on good all-wool clothes, and the additional tax of 60 per cent of the value of goods.

WOOL TARIFF ROBS WOMEN.
When a woman purchases $10 worth of woolen dress goods, $4.87 of that $10 represents the actual value of the goods and the remaining $5.13 of the $10 the amount of the tariff. In other words, should the same purchase be made in England, where there is no tariff on woollens, the woman would receive the same amount and quality of dress goods for $4.87 that she pays $10 for in this country.

GERMANS ADMIT TARIFF INCREASES PRICES.
When the German Government introduced its tariff law of 1902, it published with it, as is the custom in Germany, a printed explanation of the reasons for its introduction. This official document, which squarely declares that import duties raise the cost of living, reads, in part as follows:

"Inland prices are raised, so far as a consideration of the circumstances of the last 10 years will allow us to judge, in proportion to the duties."

In precisely this way the tariff increases the cost of the necessities of life in the United States.

TARIFF TAX ALWAYS ADDED TO COST OF ARTICLES.

In France, Italy and some other European countries a part of the municipal revenue is raised by duties on goods entering the towns. At the gates of such towns there is an official who collects this tax, and it is found that the difference in prices of articles purchased outside of the towns and within the towns is in nearly every instance exactly the amount of the duty. The same happens in trade between nations.

SOME TESTIMONY FROM ABROAD.

In Holland there are no import duties on food or raw materials, the sole protective element being a tax of 5 per cent on imported manufactured goods. In Germany there is a high duty on food and an excessive tariff on all the necessities of life. A household of six persons can buy for $5.04 in Gelderland (one of the eastern provinces of Holland) the necessities of life which in Germany, just across the frontier, would cost $6.78. As a result a village of 4,000 inhabitants has grown up at Glanerburg, near the German frontier. There German manufacturers have built houses for a colony of their workmen, because they can live more cheaply and better across the frontier in the foreign country, where there are practically no import duties.
