

Increasing Egg Laying

Old Hens Mainly the Cause of Poor Production
—Proper Mating of Poultry Essential to Success

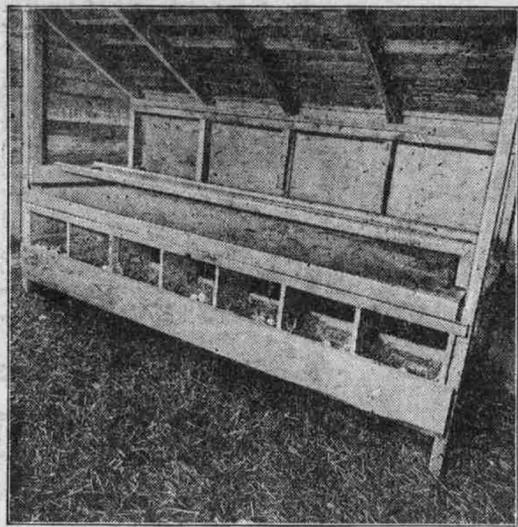

By H. L. Kemper, Professor of Poultry Husbandry, College of Agriculture, U. of M.

The 200-egg hen is not an exception. A White Leghorn hen at the university poultry department has that record for her pullet year. Two hundred eggs averaging two ounces will weigh 400 ounces, or 25 pounds—nearly six times her own weight. During the year she consumed about 100 pounds of feed. Truly the hen is an economical producer of a finished product. It cost approximately $1.20 to feed her for the year. At 20 cents a dozen for her eggs, she produced $3.36, or a profit of $2.16. Hens of this type would increase the valuation of the egg production in Missouri to incredible figures.

In the first place, she comes from a laying breed. The Leghorns are noted for their high egg production. On an average they will produce two dozen the importance of a balanced ration, or one which has the correct amount of ash, protein, and fat forming material in the proper proportions.

No one grain or no combination of grains can be fed to secure this desired proportion. The feed used consisted of a scratch food which was fed morning and night. This scratch food was made up of equal parts cracked corn and wheat. At noon a dry mash consisting of bran middlings, corn meal and beef scrap (equal parts by weight) was fed in a trough. Approximately twice as much food was fed as mash. In the morning a light feed of scratch food was fed by being buried in a heavy straw litter. By keeping the birds busy, exercise was encouraged. In this way there is not so great a tendency for eggs more than the Rocks, Wyandottes and breeds of similar nature. In the second place, she was an exceptional individual. Other birds of the same flock did not produce one-third as many eggs, showing as much difference between individuals as between breeds. A good egg-laying strain is necessary for successful production.

The ancestors of the bird were noted for their high egg production. In mating great care was exercised to select a few of the best individuals, and to them was mated the most vigorous and best male that could be obtained. The farmer cannot expect high egg production until he begins mating from only the best in his flock. The bird was hatched in April and kept growing all through the summer upon a cornfield, pasture-rot range. She was not forced, but allowed to mature gradually. In October she was placed in the laying house and began laying in November.

One of the great criticisms to be made of the farmer's flock is that some of his hens have outlived their usefulness. From the standpoint of egg production, pullets which begin to lay before winter sets in are the best egg producers. Two-year-old hens are the best for breeders, but are not so productive of eggs. Old stock is quite largely the cause of the low average egg production found in Missouri.

The bird was also fed a proper ration. If only wheat had been fed she would have secured enough protein to produce only 146 eggs during the year. She would also have obtained fat enough to produce three eggs a day, which shows that the hen is not economical in her production if fed wheat alone. In addition she would have secured enough ash to place the shell upon only 30 eggs. Lack of shell-forming material in the ration causes an enormous loss in the production of eggs. This, then, shows

Comfort is also necessary for satisfactory production, and the birds were comfortably housed in a muslin-glass front house, the muslin being raised during the day. When conditions were favorable the birds were permitted to range in yards in which green food, such as wheat, oats and buckwheat had been sown. Often wheat was sown in the yards, and the birds were permitted to scratch it up. This also encouraged considerable exercise.

ROD THAT LOCATES SPRINGS

Member of Congress of "Spring Seekers" in Paris Has Sanitized Instrument to Find Wells.

Paris, France.—There was recently demonstrated during the congress of "Spring Seekers" in Paris, what ordinarily would be considered magic of the highest order.

With the aid of a sensitized rod, M. Peleprat, a member of the congress, was able to discover a hidden spring that up to that time had been unheard of. The photograph shows M. Peleprat surrounded by members of the press and the congress on the spot on the Bois de Vincennes, where he actually located a spring of pure fresh water.

In America, we have often heard of the magical rod that possesses the power of discovering hidden oil or minerals. These rods, invented by an ingenious "get-rich-quick" genius, were nothing more nor less than a means of separating gullible folks from their ready cash. It is because of this that many Americans, reading of this wonderful divining rod, may be skeptical, yet the truth remains that M. Peleprat discovered not only one spring whose very existence had been unheard of, but a number of them.

The secret is one with which he does not care to part. The rod is of metal; nothing out of the ordinary excepting that it is sensitized. It is suspended from a loop attached to any part of the garment of the wearer, who holds both ends firmly in his hands. When the searcher arrives at a place where a spring is to be found the rod undergoes a series of violent vibrations, similar to those recorded by a seismograph when an earthquake thousands of miles away takes place.

MINISTER BESTS THE BENCH

Witness Spars With Judge in Dublin Court and Carries Off the Honors.

London.—A little sparring match between the church and the law recently amused Dublin. The case concerned a certain cinematograph film of a Biblical subject which is to be shown in Dublin.

Threatened with an injunction, the cinematograph syndicate produced several clergymen as witnesses to the edifying effect of the film. One of them was a distinguished Irish Jesuit, who has been dubbed "the Father Bernard Vaughan of Ireland."

"Do you approve of actions simulating such scenes in cold blood for the purpose of making money out of it?" he was asked.

"I cannot answer yes or no," was the cautious reply. "The question is a very plain one," said the judge, a well known lion of the bar a few years back. "It is not a plain question to me," replied the Jesuit. "If a person asked me did I think it right that a judge on the bench should distribute justice, which is one of the highest virtues, and do it for the sake of his salary?"

"What on earth has that to do with it?" hastily interposed the judge. "Persons may have several motives," replied the Jesuit. "We cannot live in this world as ethereal beings, and if a person's motives are to do good and en passant he also makes his living by it I see no objection."

Honors rested with the church.

Negro Ends Life by Gluttony.

Washington.—Told by physicians he had only a short time to live, Roscoe Boyd, a negro, aged thirty years, declared he would spend those remaining days in plenty and comfort, and retired to his little shack after spending all his savings for foodstuffs. A few days ago he was found dead. The table was loaded with food, and an attending physician said death was due to acute indigestion, the negro having literally eaten himself to death.

Police Chief Hides in Coffin.

Lawrenceville, Ga.—Concealed in a coffin, Chief of Police Parker watched a blind tigerkeeper dispense his wares to the thirsty, and, after a sufficient amount of evidence had been secured left his groomsman hiding place and arrested A. FACE ALMOST COVERED WITH PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

Atchison, Kan.—"For a number of years I suffered very greatly from skin eruption. My face was very red and irritated, being almost covered with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were scattered over my face. They were a few large pimples on my forehead and chin. My face burned and looked red as if exposed to either heat or cold. It was not only ugly but very uncomfortable. I tried several remedies but couldn't get any relief. I was recommended to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. "I applied the Cuticura Ointment in the evening, leaving it for about five minutes, then washing it off with Cuticura Soap and hot water. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and hot water also several times during the day. After about four months of this application, my face was cleared of the pimples. I still use the Cuticura Soap." "THE GRANARY OF NORTH AMERICA."

GOVERNOR SULZER SAYS THAT OF WESTERN CANADA.

The close ties of friendship existing between the United States and Canada were dwelt upon in addresses by Premier Robert L. Borden, of Canada, and Governor Sulzer, at the annual dinner of the University Club of Albany.

"Canada and the United States," said Premier Borden, "have a common heritage in the language, the literature, the laws, the institutions and the traditions which have come down to them from the men of bygone days."

"Perhaps no more instructive object lesson ever has been given to the world than the four thousand miles of undefended boundary line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which bears silent but eloquent testimony to the mutual confidence and respect of the two nations. Time will shortly place upon the brow of each nation the laurel of one hundred years of peace. It matters not so much as to the form of the outward celebration, but let us hope that its full significance may sink deep into the hearts of both nations, and that, whether north or south of the boundary, we may stand with bowed and reverent heads, offering grateful thanks for the Divine blessing of peace, and earnest prayers that in the century to come, mutual confidence, good-will and respect may truly animate the ideals and aspirations of both nations."

Referring to the natural resources possessed by the United States and Canada, particularly along the St. Lawrence River, the premier urged that they be "preserved and developed for the people."

Governor Sulzer predicted that the "Great Canadian Northwest is destined to become, before long, the granary of North America."

"Many of our best citizens, I regret to say," said the governor, "are leaving the States of the west and going into the Canadian northwest, because of the fertility of its soil, the liberality of the Canadian government and the ability of those people to better their conditions here."

"We should extend to them a helping hand in their onward march of progress. Instead of closing our doors by tariff barriers against these countries and their products, in my opinion, we should open them wider and do everything in our power to facilitate closer commercial relations. We want their products and they want our products, and all restrictions to prevent a fairer and freer exchange of goods, wares and merchandise should, in so far as possible, be eliminated."—Advertisement.

Short Hatpin Law. We have observed a disposition in the newspapers outside of Massachusetts to belittle the law against long hatpins that will become effective early in April. There is one exception, however. The New York Sun, which used to boast that it "shines for all," takes a sane view of the matter. "The protection of life and limb," declares the Sun, "cannot be deemed sumptuary legislation. Is it not reasonable to approve the Massachusetts statute just passed providing that the deadly end of hatpins worn in public shall be sheathed. The rapier is not less beautiful with a foil. The hatpin scabbard can be made esthetic; the fears of man can be allayed, his miserable life spared. Sovereign woman can still slay with her eyes; she needn't put out the other fellow's."

No, she need not, and it is within her power to make the penalties of the new law harmless by setting the fashion of wearing a protector. Let her heed the advice of the Sun and make the scabbard of the hatpin esthetic. As already suggested, let the federated clubs address themselves to this troublesome problem and the affair can be settled to everybody's satisfaction within a very short time.—From the Lynn Item.

"Then you wouldn't lay the blame on 'em what belongs to your neighbors."

A week later the lady of No. 17 again addressed her next-door neighbor.

"Thanks for your 'int about treatin' our cat better," she said.

"Pleased you found it pay," returned No. 19.

"We should never a-found out what a wonderful cat it is if it 'adn't been for you," smiled No. 17. "Since you spoke about it I made it up a couple of straw beds in the tool 'ouse and sprinkled a little barley about, and blast if that cat ain't laid two nice eggs every mornin' since."

And next day there was a wire fence round the hen house at No. 19 that an elephant couldn't break through.

CHANGED POINT OF REFORM

Uncle Rastus at Least Was Honest in His Acknowledgment of Previous Lapses From Grace.

The colonel had remonstrated vigorously with Uncle Rastus about the old darkey's persistent excursions into the state of inebriation.

Uncle Rastus, though he promised faithfully to refrain from frequent dips into the flowing bowl, failed to live up to the colonel's expectations.

On numerous occasions the colonel saw Rastus under the influence of liquor, but the darkey when taken to task stoutly denied the accusation, affirming emphatically that he did not drink. One evening the colonel met Uncle Rastus in a condition which made it plainly evident that the darkey was "caught with the goods on."

"Rastus," began the colonel, seriously, "I thought you told me that you had given up drinkin'?"

"Ah sho did, Massa Ke'no! ah sho did," replied Rastus. "But lately ah duu took up drinkin' an' gib up lyin'."
