

The Tiger, for once, has lain down within the lamb, whose appetite I hope may be followed by good digestion.

Mr. R. F. CHEW is writing a series of articles on Southeast Missouri, for the Republic. They make interesting and instructive reading.

The elections last week indicated no refluxing of the tide against the party of Privileged Interests. On the contrary, the popular voice in favor of the administration at Washington was clear and emphatic.

McMANGAL, the "snitching" dynamite murderer, has been let out of the penitentiary, and is now a free man. "The wages of sin is death;" of the "snitch," immunity. The way of Justice is tortuous and intricate. No wonder the blind goddess goes occasionally astray.

SAYS an up-State paper: "When a woman attempts to flirt with a citizen in his home town, it makes him indignant." Um! Well, I'm from Missouri but it has not been shown to me. When a woman anywhere "attempts to flirt" with a man it makes him proud as a peacock, and there's left no space in his mentality for indignation. The world holds few Josephs.

For fifty years—ever since Boss Tweed's days—Tammany has been an incubus upon the Democratic party. Its sins were laid upon us—wrongfully, of course—and we were made to bear them. I hope the Tiger, wounded, sore and clawless, has been driven to his den for all time. His whine is soothing to the ears of honest men, gratefully replacing his arrogant roar that did erst disturb their souls.

SAYS the Scott County Kicker: E. L. Purcell, for 15 years publisher of the Fredericktown Democrat News, has sold to O. J. Ferguson. It is announced that the paper will continue to be "straight Democratic," whatever that means. My observation leads me to believe that it means an eye on the pie-counter.

Well, what then, Bro. Hafner? Did you never have your "eye on the pie-counter?" Isn't it squinting in that direction now? And if you were to get to "the pie-counter," would you turn face-about and get away from it? If so, Scott county is not the place for you—heaven is your home, where "pie" is unknown and uneeded and undesired; where the golden crown surmounts the intellectual front and the tuncful harp tinkles sweetly to the expurgated soul.

In his brief for the State in the case of the State of Missouri vs. St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company, the Attorney-General cites numerous decisions holding that the courts may interpret the statute, but cannot assume the role of legislators; that if a law be unjust or oppressive, it is for the legislature to amend it; that no Judge has the right or power to change such law. The defendants in the above suit claimed that the statute requiring them to establish and maintain a station and agent at Pilot Knob was unjust and oppressive and unreasonable, and on that ground the Supreme Court should hold it void and of no effect. In other words, "the rule of reason" ought to govern, regardless of the evident intent of the lawmakers. They have one very notable decision given by the U. S. Supreme Court in their favor. Will the Missouri Court follow it?

A WEAK accusation is being made against the new St. Louis postmaster, Colin M. Selph, charging that a score or more of ball tickets enclosed in letters sent through the mail to local addresses have disappeared. The letters got there all right, it seems, but the tickets enclosed were non est. This reminds me of what an old employe of that office told some years ago. "You would be surprised," said he, "at some of the things we have to contend with, and the complaints we are called upon to meet. For instance, a few days ago an indignant lady called at the office and wanted to know why the invitations to her daughter's wedding had not been delivered to the parties addressed; that she had sent invitations to eight or ten friends, and when they did not appear at the wedding she inquired the cause. 'They told me they had received no invitation,' she declared, 'and I know I sent them. The truth is they were never delivered!' She wouldn't listen to our solemn assurance to the contrary, and went away vowing vengeance. Now, the fact is, those invitations had been duly delivered to their several addressees; but an appearance at the ceremony included the bringing of a wedding present—a thing not always desirable or convenient to do. So the easiest way out of their dilemma was to declare they had not received the invitations, and to attest to their assertion by 'cussin' the postoffice." So, perhaps, for similar financial reason, some of the recipients of the ball tickets preferred to assert they had never received them. As stated above, the accusation against Mr. Selph is patently weak, very weak, but the big "spread" the Republic gives it is weaker still.

Not Lost, but Gone Before!

Near the silent hour of midnight, Tuesday, November 4th, 1913, the death angel called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Merritt and claimed their beloved daughter, Ethel, aged 21 years, ten months and fourteen days. She leaves a father, mother, five sisters, two brothers and friends to mourn her loss. We can truly say: A blessed one from us is gone, Her voice by death is stilled, A place is vacant in our home That never can be filled!

Yet, thanks to our Blessed Father in heaven, we weep not as those who have no hope, since we are witnesses of the fact that "she remembered her Creator in the days of her youth."

Five years ago she confessed a hope in Jesus and obeyed the Gospel of Christ. Since then she has lived a consistent Christian. She was a member of the Christian church at this place.

During her illness of forty-two days she bore her suffering with much patience and near the end of her sweet life she said: "I'm willing to go, or I'm willing to stay—just what my Savior wants me to do;" "I'm going to Jesus," and "I'm going home." She often repeated, "In heaven, alone, no sin is found, and there's no weeping there."

She was laid to rest in the Goodwater cemetery, November 6th, where a large concourse assembled to pay their last respects to the dear one who had been called away. We ask all God's children who may read this to remember us in your prayers and pray that we may be able to look heavenward and say: "Our Father, Thy will, not ours, be done!" If any outside of the Kingdom of Christ chance to read this, will you stop and think one moment of Death and Eternity? Read the Bible, obey God's Holy Will, and be prepared, when the summons shall come, to say (as she did), "I'm going home!" Mrs. W. S. MAYBERRY. Goodwater, Mo., Nov. 8th, 1913.

Obituary.

On September 9, 1913, the Death Angel re-entered the home of Mrs. Joseph Dubacher, claimed as its own the soul of her beloved and youngest daughter, Louise, born March 27th, 1887.

She was converted during a revival meeting held at Graniteville, May, 1904, and united with the M. E. Church of that place, living a faithful Christian life until God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to remove her from this world of pain and sorrow to the Heavenly Mansion prepared for those who love and serve Him.

Her mission on earth was of love and kindness, especially to her home folks, always mindful of their welfare and happiness. As the golden sun sank behind the western hills bringing the close to that day, with sorrowing hearts the friends and neighbors gathered around her dying bed, and when all was done that human hands could do she gently leaned on the unseen hand of Him who said, "So I am with you always, even unto the end," and reclining, like John the beloved, on Jesus' bosom, she gently fell asleep. How sad that one in the noon day of life should be called away! Yet in the midst of life we are also in death. His ways are indeed mysterious and past finding out. Therefore we humbly submit to the will of Him who taught us to pray, "Thy will be done." It is sad indeed to give up our loved ones, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope, and count our loss as Heaven's gain. How consoling to our sorrow stricken hearts are the words of our blessed Saviour when he said, "Look unto me, all ends of the earth, and be ye saved."

The funeral services were conducted at the family residence by Rev. J. R. A. Vaughan, pastor of the Arcadia M. E. Church, and her remains laid to rest in the Middlebrook cemetery. But is she dead? No, no—she lives! Her happy spirit flies To Heaven above, and there receives Her long expected prize.

A FRIEND.
