

HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES IF YOUR BACK ACHES

Do you feel tired and "worn-out"? Do you feel nervous and irritable? Don't sleep well at night? Have a "dragged out" uninvited feeling when you get up in the morning? Dizzy spells? Biliousness? Bad taste in the mouth, backache, pain or soreness in the loins, and abdomen? Severe distress when urinating, bloody, cloudy urine or acid urine? All these indicate gravel or stones in the bladder, or that the poisonous microbes, which are always in your system, have attacked your kidneys.

Do not delay a minute. Go to your druggist and insist on his supplying you with a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In 24 hours you will feel renewed health and vigor. After you have cured yourself, continue to take one or two Capsules each day so as to keep in first-class condition, and ward off the danger of future attacks. Money refunded if they do not help you. Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand, and thus be sure of getting the genuine.—Adv.

Don't ignore the "little pains and aches," especially backaches. They may be little now but there is no telling how soon a dangerous or fatal disease of which they are the forerunners may show itself. Go after the cause of that backache at once, or you may find yourself in the grip of an incurable disease.

Health Was Shattered

South Boston Woman Tells How She Suffered Before Doan's Cured Her.

"I was in awful shape from kidney disease," says Mrs. W. F. Sterritt, 707 Dorchester Ave., South Boston, Mass. "My health was shattered and I would often fall in a heap. Had someone stabbed me in the back with a knife, the pains could not have been worse. I lost thirty pounds, was terribly nervous and could not do my housework. Fainting spells came on and my feet and limbs swelled so badly I couldn't wear my shoes. Puffy sacs came under my eyes, my skin looked shiny and the impression of a finger left a dent that remained for some time. My kidneys were in awful shape and it seemed that I had to pass the secretions every hour. The passages were scant and terribly distressing. I was feverish at night and perspired profusely. I was discouraged until told about Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought improvement from the first and about a dozen boxes cured me. My cure has lasted."

Nature will then throw off or digest the worms, and the child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.

HIS WIFE

By MILDRED WHITE.
(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

Richard's arms stretched despairingly across his desk, and presently his head drooped, to rest between them. It was all over as far as he was concerned, and there was nothing to do but go away and leave Constance in her father's care, from which he, Richard, should never have presumed to take her. But "love" at that time had seemed to be "the greatest thing in the world." Wealth, and all its protecting comforts paled to nothingness besides. He had not realized in youth's confidence to what length his ambition for his wife was leading him.

Creditors had forced the fact upon him—he was in debt, hopelessly in debt. How had expenses been allowed to exceed so completely his regular income?

Surely the smart little coupe had been needful; Connie, perched on the arm of his chair, had delighted in the convenience of her purchase.

The beautiful bungalow with its well-kept lawn had been her appropriate setting. The bungalow must go, this was now inevitable, the servants engaged by his wife must be dismissed. War conditions might partially excuse his own lack of success in money matters. He could bear the father's contempt—it was of Connie he was thinking. How would she look when he told her the truth? What would she do? But there was just one thing, of course, that she could do. She must go back to her father's home.

White-faced, and with lines of suffering about his mouth, he raised his head—reached for the telephone—no, he could not tell her—yet. He would write a letter, that would be the easiest way. He would place the sum of their indebtedness against that of his income; Connie should draw her own conclusion and give him answer.

Not once did it occur to him that his merry little wife might have shared the blame, yet it was she who had selected plans for the bungalow and its costly location.

When the letter was sent on its way, Richard left town for a business trip. On his return he would learn his fate. His own street seemed strange as he drove up to the bungalow door, and the auto went for the last time perhaps—back to the stone garage.

The rooms were empty as he passed from one to another, a speaking air of desertion hovered everywhere. In Connie's own boudoir, bureau drawers and closets stood open—she had been packing—and was gone. Richard sank wearily into a chair and rang for a maid; his fears were realized; yet he knew that he had been hoping against hope, allowing himself to fancy the impossible—that Connie might still have loved him enough to face with him a new beginning of things.

"Mrs. Byron started to pack immediately upon receiving his letter," the maid informed him. "She had left the address of her destination if he wished it."

Richard caught at the scrap of paper. "Willowdale," he read in Connie's writing, and that was all. He wrinkled his brow perplexedly, then sighed. No doubt Willowdale was some new country place of her father's.

They directed him at the railroad station. It was a small suburban town he learned, not far from the city. The agent at Willowdale shook his head when Richard inquired for the home of Constance's father. That great man's name appeared to be unknown.

"Mrs. Byron then," Richard asked, "can you direct me to her?"

The agent's face brightened visibly. "White cottage," he replied, "across from the square."

Richard was still perplexed as he turned into the garden path leading to the white cottage. It was a very pretty little house, with rambler roses climbing the veranda pillars, but he could not understand what Connie should be doing there—and at the doorway she met him. He paused breathless before her radiant face. There were not reproaches, surely, in that evident happiness.

"Come in," said Connie. She laughed as he had not heard her laugh since those first joyous days long ago. Then at sight of her husband's wren face, she put up her arms to draw him down to her.

"Dear," she murmured, "welcome, this is home at last."

Richard held her close. "You mean—" he asked eagerly.

"That I have never really had a home," said Constance. "Always there were servants about to order things—gardens too well kept to enjoy. Here there is but one small servant whom I shall order, Richard, and a garden full of flowers that grow alone. I chose the place and moved in while you were away. The rest of our furniture shall be sold. It has been such fun to plan things out. Father wanted to help, but I wouldn't let him. This is our home—our very own; and so ridiculously cheap. This time there will be a surplus on the income side. And dear"

—Connie smiled tremulously—"you need not be worried and distrust any more or give me anxious wondering hours. We are free, Richard, we shall really live, you and I—in this little room of ours."

With a great content Richard gazed deep into the eyes of his wife who had not faltered, wavered, or flinched, nor nodded promises to them from the doorway.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:
"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.
Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well. My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.
